Some Sensible Advice to Women by Mrs. E. Sailer.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—When I passed through what is known as 'change of life,' I had two years' suffering,—sudden heat, and as quick chills would pass over me; my appetite was variable and I never could tell for

CHAPTER XIV.
A Battle of Giants.

Some of the most frantic hovered at the windows, as though ready to plunge through space if the worst came.

They were crazed for the time being and could not be blamed.

Many a precious life went out that fatal day, that might have been saved by the exercise of a little judgment and coolness; for of all the attributes which mortal man inherits or acquires these prove the richest legacy in such a time of actual panic.

Having taken his bearings, and discovered which way the numbers ran, Charlie started upon what he believed was the last leg of his course.

Now he must speedily realize the worst; if he came upon Arline's rooms and found them empty, he would know she was somewhere about the intricate passages, lost and facing death, as when he first found her.

What a travesty of fate such a thing would be.

Tragedies were being enacted within those walls, that had many times echoed with the scunds of gayety, and now rang with shrieks; already the greedy fire fiend had cut off many from escape, and yearned to encompass their destruction.

Some doors were closed, but the majority stood gaping wide open, whence the terrified occupants had fled just as they were.

In passing one of these Charlie had a glimpse of a lady, richly attired, bending over an open trunk, evidently seeking to lay hold of her precious jewel boxes ere flying.

Mayhap they cost her what all the jewels from Cleopatra's day to this could not replace—life.

Once a woman had seized upon him—erazed by fear, she clutched him as a drowning man might a straw.

Charlie could not have his mission jeopardized by such detention—he was compelled to break away, shouting at the same time for her to go to the stairs and descend while the chance remained. God only knew how long this golden opportunity might be held out to them, for the greedy flames were making hideous headway and presently the entire building would be a charnal house.

All obstacles had thus far been overcome by his iron will—determined to reach and save Arline, he had swept them aside as the March wind whirls the dust out of its path.

But the end was not.

One barrier remained.

Charlie suspected it not until the thing burst upon him, sudden and unexpected as lightning from the clear sky overhead.

Again a detaining hand.

This time it brought his forward movement to a complete stop, and he realized there was something more serious in the detention than when the poor groveling chambermaid had clutched his knees.

It was a man; through the haze he had seen his presence without paying the least attention to him, and now the fellow, probably as terrified as the women, frantically clung to him.

"To the stairs or the fire escape! —let go!" shouted Charlie, and when the other laughed with devilish glee in his ear Stuart turned his head to see close to his own the face of the bogus Capt. Brand, transformed by passion into the countenance of a fiend.

Was it accident or deep design that brought Macauley to this floor of the hotel at such a tragical moment?

When Charlie felt that grip on his arm and looked into the maddened orbs of the ogre, he seemed to realize that a great crisis in his life had arrived.

The stake was Arline's love.

This man might be innocent or guilty of murderous design, but appearances were mightily against him.

His manner indicated as plainly as words: "This far shall you come and no farther."

Instinct warned Charlie to prepare for the worst, to throw himself into a position that was aggressive even while defensive.

It was a wise precaution, for the other, even while he continued to glare malevolently into his face, suddenly threw himself upon Stuart.

As he expected, Charlie found Macauley a man gifted with tremendous muscular power. Like trained athletes, the two men whirled around, each seeking the downfall of the other.

To Charlie each second meant a closer approach of doom, while with the other the passage of time brought savage satisfaction, as his base plans grew nearer realization.

Charlie retracted a step mustering every atom of power in his muscular frame for the storm which he meant to spring upon the already gloating enemy.

Macauley was drunk with the success that had seemed to be already within his grasp.

He thus could be taken off his guard, and once in retreat, complete rout must follow.

So sudden was the attack, so overwhelming in its resistless energy that the ogre fell back in confusion, hardly knowing just how to meet so strange a rally.

And Stuart followed it up—he knew full well that what was worth doing at all was worth doing well.

He was bent on ending the struggle then and there—in order to do so most effectively he let out still another kink, and surprised his enemy with a succession of tricks that completed his utter demoralization.

It was the work of a gladiator. Charlie, having stunned the ogre with a multiplicity of short-arm blows, hurled him in a shuddering heap aside, and found himself once more free to go forward.

CHAPTER XV.
When Charlie Kissed Her.

The flames had been making hideous progress while this mad encounter took place, and already their red tongues leaped into view at the further end of the corridor.

Charlie was panting like a hunted stag, hardly able to catch his breath in that smoke-burdened atmosphere—yet, no sooner had he hurled his enemy to the floor, and found the coast clear, than he started along the hallway.

The numbers on the doors now stood out plainly enough, thanks to the illumination afforded by the flames, and he knew he was close to where Arline might be found.

He saw the door was closed.

It gave him a shock—then she had not escaped with the first—she must still be within her room.

He pounced upon the knob and turned it.

Horrors! There was no response—the door utterly refused to give way, being locked within.

Charlie pounded with his fist upon the panel.

"Open the door, Arline! Open, for God's sake! The hotel is on fire!"

Apparently he shouted loud enough to arouse the dead, yet no answer came from beyond.

Stuart knew of but one resource left—it was a desperate case, and required a desperate remedy.

He raised his foot.

One mighty blow shivered the lock as completely as though a battering ram had been brought to bear against it.

The door flew open

Nothing barred his progress now, and with a bound the Briton was in the room.

Arline lay upon a Turkish lounge—the crash of the door had done what all else had failed to accomplish, for she had just raised her head and was staring at him with eyes dilating in horror as they discovered the whirling clouds of smoke that curled in after him.

Charlie ran to assist the girl to her feet, at the same time calling:

"The hotel is on fire, but be brave, and I will save you, if possible!"

His manner calmed her more than all else.

She looked into his face, and although her voice trembled, she kept a brave front as she said:

"I trust you with my life, Charlie! Tell me what to do, and God help us both!"

Brave little woman! That was what he thought her then and there—he had believed it on that former occasion, when she wandered in the dark Steen dungeons and passages, and now it was made doubly sure.

It would have been worth something to Stuart at this critical juncture, could he have become possessed of the valuable information which the fallen ogre had held regarding the ways and means of reaching a fire escape.

As it was, he found himself cast upon his own resources and compelled to make a virtue of necessity.

One thing was absolutely certain—he could not count on assistance, and if they escaped it must be through his persistent and determined work.

Then, again, he kept before his mind the fact that escape must be downward—that flight to the roof would only render their immolation the more certain.

Each story they could descend would take them nearer the street and increase their chances of being assisted through the medium of the fire ladders.

Charlie had taken his bearings—he knew the fire had not as yet spread over the entire building, though the smoke must have done so ere now.

The stairs he had ascended were still free from flames, though this could not long be said, as they were in jeopardy.

Snatching up a cloak which he found, he pressed it about Arline. Some craze must have been running riot in his veins at the time, for as her sweet face came close to his own he deliberately kissed her; nor did she by look or word protest—there was something almost holy in the act—it was as though the man wished her to know the great love that was in his heart before they faced the dreadful ordeal which might be their destruction. As though he might thus seal his claim upon the woman he adored, even though together they were doomed to journey toward another world.

"Come! Have courage, my darling," he said.

Probably few men on earth have been given so strange an opportunity to declare their love, and under such conditions who could envy Charlie Stuart the brief spasm of delight which he experienced, for the first time he passed his arm about Arline's waist with a sense of proprietorship.

Love is a strong factor in the race—the girl might have been rendered frantic with fear had she found herself alone face to face with the threatening destruction, but with his strong arm to lean upon, and the knowledge of his declared passion to sustain her, she could meet the dread issue with courage.

And it required all the nerve she possessed to keep from screaming when once in the hall she saw the avalanche of roaring fire at the farther end.

Charlie led her directly toward it, yet she trusted him implicitly—it was a glorious symbol of the power he was to exercise in all time to come, if so be they escaped with their lives.

The stairs at last.

Another minute and it might have been too hazardous to attempt a descent—but that small space of time has won kingdoms ere now.

Down one flight—that much was saved them at any rate, even should the worst happen.

When they started upon the second descent, it was like running the gauntlet; fingers of fire stretched out yearningly toward them, and one even came so close that Arline involuntarily uttered a scream, thinking Charlie, who had thrust his body on that side, was doomed.

This narrow escape told him that it would be utterly impossible to make any further use of the stairway in advancing their cause, since below it was wreathed in flames.

Their only course was to retreat from the fire as far as possible, and there await rescue or provide for it through their own ingenuity.

Still they heard the shrieks of fear-distracted women, cowering in corners or rushing wildly through the corridors calling for the help that could never reach them.

Such a scene of horror must haunt one while life lasts, so fraught with human suffering and the utter inability to render aid.

He had not calculated wrongly; while the smoke remained more dense than ever, the danger of immediate fire was not so great, although he saw it pushing toward them from three separate and distinct quarters, as though closing in upon its victims.

An open window at the end of the hall was Charlie's objective point.

He had hopes of discovering there the iron ladder that would enable those who had the nerve to grasp its rounds to drop to safety below.

Alas! disappointment awaited him, keen and cutting, since there was no such avenue of escape provided in this quarter.

It was a dizzy distance down to the street, and only a madened brain could conceive the idea of leaping out into space.

Charlie leaned out to survey the situation.

Immediately a roar of warning arose from thousands of throats below, while arms waved him back, doubtless under the belief that he meant to take the mad plunge.

He was not quite reduced to such an insane policy—his resources had not yet been exhausted.

Charlie had his bearings now—he remembered the lay of the land—surely there must be a better chance of escape in the rear.

Turning into another corridor, which led in the desired quarter he pushed on. Arline clung to him with whitened face and eyes that reflected the horror of her soul, but, thank Heaven! as yet her steps did not falter, nor did she give signs of collapse, while his great courage remained to buoy her soul.

The situation grew intense with every passing second and Charlie knew all too well that delay for tune speedily gave them opening it would be too late, since fire was now sweeping with remorseless fury over the main portion of the doomed structure.

Charlie Stuart knew he had to solve the problem of his existence as well as that of the gentle being who clung so eagerly to his arm.

No man was ever better equipped for the fray.

He had everything to help him on to superhuman efforts—bounding life, with all that means, healthy young man, and, besides knowledge that he was beloved by the girl to whom his heart had gone out.

Yes, if ever a man had reason to strive with might and main for victory, it was Charlie Stuart.

Manfully he met the situation.

HOW SLEEP MAY WOOED

Position in Which a Person Should Lie to Induce Some.

Few persons in an ordinary assemblage can tell offhand what position they assume to induce sleep, and yet there is not an individual in the world who has not some definite distributing limbs and trunk for slumber's blissful spell which he practices unconsciously. This night habit as perpetual and immutable under normal conditions as the succession of the seasons, soon are we really off to the land of nod than the night habit asserts itself. Our hands and arms seek certain parts of the bed or the portion of our bodies upon which have nightly rested since infancy, and legs stretch at the angle or loosely entwine in cable relaxation as commanded by the will.

It is seldom of our own volition that we place ourselves in position for sleep, as I find to-night on going to bed I remember these words. If you do not seek to combat it you will be surprised at the positions of the various members involuntarily made. If you endeavor to sleep by a new arrangement of the body you will also be sure of the revolt against slumber which surely ensue, but even the struggle is well begun you probably surrender and peaceful masterful night habit asserts those little details of which long practice has made you your comfort.

FORTUNES MADE

One Man Averaged $1,300 for Twenty Years.

In some restaurants in New York the waiters put all their tips in a box and divide equally. This is a very general plan in Paris, but rule, in this country, however, each gets is his own. In one with three distinct sets of patrons tipping is so constant that waiters serving there pay handsomely for the privilege. There is, however, only one such place.

At another well patronized place some of the waiters have been many years. One of these this day said he had kept account of tips for twenty years. The largest record was $800, the highest while the average was $1,300. He claims that in tips this waiter had taken in $3.50 a day during twenty years.

I was quite prepared, says Gilmer Speed in Lippincott's, to have him tell me that he had given one of his sons, putting him through college and the law school. The man was German. It probably never occurred to him that there was anything debasing in a tip. To him there was nothing debasing. He lived and acted in harmony with the sphere of life into which he was born. That was all. But it would be entirely different thing for one of this beneficiary of tips, to say. He is an American and would take fees only. For his father as well as his own I hope he will be large.

Protecting Milk Cans.

It is a misdemeanor in New York to bottle for anything else than milk in New York city.

Chimneys Sway Many Feet.

The following letter from Congressman Botkin speaks for itself:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, O.:

My Dear Doctor—It gives me pleasure to certify to the excellent curative qualities of your medicines—Peruna and Manalin. I have been afflicted more or less for a quarter of a century with catarrh of the stomach and constipation. A residence in Washington has increased these troubles. A few bottles of your medicine have given me almost complete relief, and I am sure that a continuation of them will effect a permanent cure. Peruna is surely a wonderful remedy for catarrhal affections.—J. D. Botkin.

This is a case of catarrh of the stomach which had run for twenty-five years, according to his statement, and Peruna has at once come to his relief, promptly accomplishing for him more benefit than he had been able to find in all other remedies during a quarter of a century.

It stands to reason that a man of wealth and influence, like a Congressman of the great United States, has left no ordinary means untried and no stone unturned to find a cure.

If such cures as these do not verify the claim not only that dyspepsia is due to catarrh of the stomach, but also that Peruna will cure catarrh of the stomach, it is impossible to imagine how any evidence could do so.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

To My Friends.

It is with joy I tell you what Kodol did for me. I was troubled with my stomach for several months. Upon being advised to use Kodol. I did so, and words cannot tell the good it has done me. A neighbor had dyspepsia so that he had tried most everything. I told him to use Kodol. Words of gratitude have come to me from him because I recommended it.—Geo. W. Fry, Viola, Ia. Health and strength of mind and body depedd on the stomach, and normal activity of the digestive organs. Kodol, the great reconstructive tonic, cures all stomach and bowel troubles, indigestion, dyspepsia. Kodol digests any good food you eat. Take a dose after meals. J. L. Harr.

Lubbe Weiland, who has been working the Chas. Velau place west of town this year, committed suicide last Friday by taking strychnine. It wos a great surprise to the community. Despondency is supposed to have been the cause. Deceased leaves a wife and two children. Funeral and burial services were held Saturday afternoon. Our community sympathizes with the afflicted ones.

It Needs a Tonic.

There are times when your liver needs a tonic. Don't give purgatives that gripe and weaken. DeWitt's Little Early Risers expel all poison from the system and act as tonic to the liver. W. Scott, 531 Highland ave. Milton, Pa., says, "I have carried DeWitt's Little Early Risers with me for several years and would not be without them." Small and easy to take. Purely vegetable. They never gripe or distress. J. L. Harr.

LOCAL OVERFLOW.

E. P. Schaefer was down from Garner Monday,

Julius Ridder. of Fenton, visited his brothers here the first of the week.

Miss Amelia Lenz left Tuesday for Charles City, where she will attend college.

G. W. Kluckhohn returned Monday from St. Paul, where he purchased holiday goods.

Mrs. J. J. Suckow and children visited Saturday and Sunday at the Ed. Schaefer home near town.

Ed. Schaefer returned Monday from a trip of inspection of the Red River Valley country in Minnesota.

Miss Bertha Schaub. who has been visiting here the past week returned to her home in Charles City Monday.

Mrs. G. I. Schaper and children left Wednesday, Sept. 3rd, for Pearl City, Ill., to visit with relatives. They will be gone about two weeks.

C. E. James, of Aurelia, Iowa, general agent for the Eastern Investment Co. was in town Monday and Tuesday visiting his friend, H. W. Bischel.

The brick work on the new bank building is about wound up, and the finishing touches will soon be put on. Some delay was caused by the non-arrival of brick.

School will commence next Monday morning with Miss King in charge of the grammar department, Miss Dulitz the intermediate and Mrs. Hawley the primary.

Rumor has it that Howard Africa has purchased the Kanawha Record. Rumor also says other things about Howard —but we won't tell what it is just now.

"Billy" Nissen, the popular young tonsorial artist, who has been working at Kanawha, was in Klemme visiting his folks Tuesday. He was on his way to Garner to work in a barber shop.

F. S. Grawe was in town Saturday. He has resigned his position as teacher of the Klemme schools. This will cause our school board some trouble as it is near time for school to commence.

Last Friday was a nasty wet day and threshing was suspended. Saturday turned off nice and clear, however, and threshing was resumed in the afternoon. Threshers are having their patience tried occassionally this year.

Fortune Favors a Texan

"Having distressing pains in head, back and stomach, and being without appetite, I began to use Dr. King's New Life Pills." writes W. P. Whitehead, of Kennedale, Tex., "and soon felt like a new man." Infallible in stomach and liver troubles. Only 25c at Harr's drug store.

The Britt News blames the defeat of its ball team last week to the fact that the Britt players indulged too freely in roast ox, etc. Not only is that just a poor excuse for the defeat, but it is also an insult to the gentle manly Britt ball players.

A Parson's Noble Act,

"I want all the world to know," writes Rev. C. J. Budlong, of Ashaway, R. I., "what a thoroughly good and reliable medicine I found in Electric Bitters. They cured me of jaundice and liver troubles that had caused me great suffering for many years. For a genuine, all-around cure they excel anything I ever saw." Electric Bitters are the surprise of all for their wonderful work in liver, kidney and stomach troubles. Don't fail to try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction is guaranteed by J. L. Harr.

Notice of Appointment of Administrator

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That the undersigned has been duly appointed and qualified as Administrator of the Estate of Lubbe Weiland, late of Hancock County, State of Iowa, deceased. All persons indebted to the estate are requested to make immediate payment; and those having claims against the same will present them, duly authenticated, to the undersigned, for allowance.

Dated August 29th A. D. 1902.

G. I. SCHAPER, Administrator.

DOINGS IN AND NEAR ELL CENTER

Dished up to Suit all Classes by Our Special Correspondent.

O. C. Allen, of Hansell, was a caller here last Friday.

Johnnie Hazard and lady visited at Tom Marshall's Sunday.

Mr. LaRue, of Ellington, visited one of his dearest friends here Sunday.

Miss Effie White commenced her duties as teacher in the Rice district last Monday.

A. Kelly and J. N. Sprole, of Garner, were looking after their land interests here last week.

It is reported that Bert Groesbeck and family will return to their farm in the spring, after a year spent in Washington.

Owing to the rush of threshing this place was not as well represented at Garner "Illinois Day" as it might have been.

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. J. L. Harr.

A Texas judge was robbed of a horse not long ago, and the thief, being apprehended, was brought before him for trial, says the Chicago Journal. The judge eyed the prisoner with deep satisfaction for a minute or so, and then delivered himself thus.

"Owing to a personal prejudice the court will not hear this case. It will be tried by the bailiff, who will find a verdict in accordance with the facts."

"In the meantime," added his honor impressively, "the court will go outside, prepare a rope, and pick out a good tree."

A Boy's Wild Ride For Life.

With family around expecting him to die, and a son riding for life 18 miles, to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds, W. H. Brown, of Leesville, Ind., endured death's agonies from asthma, but this wonderful medicine gave instant relief and soon cured him. He writes: "I now sleep soundly every night." Like marvelous cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds and Grip prove its matchless merit for all throat and lung troubles. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Harr's drug store.

Be careful how you let your temper get away with you. It is worse in its effect than a dose of quick poison. A Beloit woman fell dead in a fit of anger the other day because some horses trampled down her flower beds. How much better for her had she bottled up her wrath and taken it out in jawing her husband when he came home.—Ex.

Goodell Man Suicides.

Lawrence Ettinger aged about 50 years, committed suicide at his home in Goodell, Wednesday afternoon, by taking Paris-green. He was unmarried, lived alone, and had become despondent, thinking that no one cared for him. Funeral services will be held at the Catholic church here Friday forenoon and burial in the Belmond cemetery—Goodell Globe, 4th.

Home Visitors' Excursions

The time has come for the annual trip of home visitors and others who wish to visit points in Indiana and Ohio, and on September 2, 9, 16 and 23 round trip excursion tickets will be sold at C. R. Gretchen und Her Calf.

Vonce Gretchen haf a leedle calf, mit her it vas content, und everyveres dat Gretchen gone, dot calf vould also vent. It vent mit her der lifelong day, und people often said dey like to bet some money dot it mit her vent to bed. Von day it go de schoolhouse in, und all de kinder says to see a leddle scholar calf youst took de switzer kase. "Vot make de calf de school come in?" de leddle kinder cried "It vants to learn to be a cow," the teacher did replied. At last dere came dot awful trust, de very vorst vot efer, dot calf by dose times got to be a nice young lady heifer. Meat vent so high at von big shump 'twas roasted mit de sun, und Gretchen look und plainly see a duty she should done. Her fadder mit de prewery worked und didn't got much pay; his bread earned by de sveatness of his eyebrows efery day. Von time Miss Gretchen vipe some tears dot leak out mit her eyes and say: "I on mein papa spring some pooty big suprise." She kissed dot lieber cow farewell, her heart sore in her breast, und took it to de butcher man. Dot butcher did de rest. Her sadness vos most awful sad und bitter vos her cup, to dink dot cow in shunks vould soon be separated up. Her fadder from de prewery come. some sveatness on his prow, und Gretchen say: "Mein lieber pop, ve take a layoff now." O! it vould done your soul some good if you could see dem spiel de long vays of der af'nue in der autolocobile. No more vill hard times gif it to dose people in de necks. Dey lif now mit Go Easy strasse, und Gretchen writes de shecks.—James Barton Adam in Denver Post.

Germantown

H. Beier returned from his trip to Minnesota. His father-in-law and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lenz, reside there. They like the country very much.

Earnest and Fletcher Wellemeyer left for their home in Dubuque where they will attend school.

Miss Rose Bredlow was "first cook" at the Wellemeyer Bros. and Miss Tillie Greiman was "first cook" at Wes Lenz threshing.

Misses Amelia Lenz and Anna Griewe will leave for charles city this week where they will attend college.

Henry Griewe finished threshing Monday evening. His oats averaged 50 bushels to the acre.

Rev. Dulitz gave the Germantown Epworth League an interesting talk Sunday evening.

A Sad Disappointment,

Ineffective liver medicine is a disappointment, but you don't want to purge, strain and break the glands of the stomach and bowels. DeWitt's Little Early Risers never disappoint. They cleanse the system of all poison and putrid matter and do it so gently that one enjoys the pleasant effects. They are a tonic to the liver. Cure billiousness, torpid liver and prevent fever. J. L. Harr.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Sept. 5. 1902.

A steady decline in the number of convicts at Anamosa prison is shown by the annual report of Warden Hunter for the year ending June 30, 1902, which has been filed with the board of control. Since July 1, 1898, Warden Hunter says, there has been a steady decrease in the number of convicts. This decline was heaviest in 1899. July 1, 1898, there were but 626 prisoners. June 30, 1902, there were but 412. June 30, 1901, there were 4[illegible]. In the year there were 202 prisoners received and 238 discharged. Of the total 412 in prison June 30, 1902, 365 males were state prisoners and seven United States prisoners. There were 20 female prisoners. Four prisoners of those received the past year are under death sentence. Of the 208 received, 110 are addicted to liquor. Woodbury county has furnished the largest share of the 208 sent to Anamosa in the past year, there being 29 from that county. A table is presented, showing the number of new prisoners received at the prison since 1873. In that year there were 33, while in recent years the number runs from 200 to 250. There were 41 paroles in the year, and but one was returned for violation of the parole. One gave himself up, and was received back at his own request. Warden Hunter again expresses his belief a parole law and indeterminate sentence measure should be enacted. There were no escapes or attempted escapes in the year. The value of the labor put into various articles manufactured at the prison in the year, estimated on the basis of the values of free labor, was $72,521.29.

Everyone is looking for the old bureaus, sofas and tables that their mothers once owned, because they were well made and artistic. Chase & West, 712 Walnut, Des Moines, have the largest and finest stock in the state. They carry exclusive styles in antique and colonial mahogany high post and Napoleon beds, old sofas, dressers and bureaus. Do not fail to visit their store.

The executive council has appropriated $3,000 out of the providential contingent fund for the Iowa State college. The sum is to be expended by the trustees for the erection of an addition to the present temporary building used for class rooms. It is seriously needed on account of the recent fire, which destroyed the south wing of the main building, this wing having been left intact in the preceding fire. The appropriation made by the council leaves $7,000 in the providential contingent fund. It originally consisted of $35,000. An appropriation of $25,000 was made for temporary buildings at the institution for the deaf at Council Bluffs following the fire there. This left $10,000 in the fund, and the appropriation now made cuts the remainder down to $7,000.

Governor Cummins has issued a proclamation, offering a reward of $300 for the arrest and conviction of Ed Carnes, who September 1 shot and fatally wounded Sheriff Strain of Monona county. The shooting took place at the farm of John Tipton, two miles west of Whiting, the evening of September 1. There had been a fight among the members of a threshing crew, and Carnes started out with a shotgun to get revenge on one of the number who had worsted him. Strain endeavored to arrest him was shot fatally.

The Des Moines Horse Show, Sept. 15-20, will present a half million dollar display of fine horses and magnificent equippages—the most gorgeous ever seen in the west, and it will be given in the mammoth new State Fair pavilion. All railroads in the United States will give cheap rates and the whole country will be represented.

The Des Moines Union company has a large force of men working on the 'Coon river bottoms raising and broadening the grades upon which its numerous switch tracks are laid. The purpose is not only to get the tracks high enough so that traffic over them will not be obstructed by a recurrence of the flood of last July, but to make them serve the purpose of levees to protect the big property holdings it has in the district. The tracks are so located that by raising them to a certain height and strengthening them most of the river bottom east of Twelfth street will be protected.

Prof. S. R. Macy of Highland Park college was injured in a gasoline explosion last June. In lighting the fire one morning he used gasoline thinking it was kerosene. The Great Western company had a short time previous to the accident insured the professor against such injuries. A prompt settlement was made. Now the accident company has brought suit against Cline Bros., grocers, who sold the gasoline to Macy, to recover the amount of the policy, which aggregated $2,000. It is claimed the grocerymen had violated the state law in that they failed to properly mark the can containing the explosive. The state law provides that gasoline should be carefully marked before delivery. The claim is made by the accident company that the can used by Prof. Macy to light the fire had no marking whatever and that even a chemist is liable to just such a mistake as Macy made.

Grew Too Fast.

Little Tommy when told that he was growing fast, answered:

"Yes, too fast; I think they water me too much. Why, I have to take a bath every morning!"

"Mamma," said little Georgia, "does a deaf and dumb boy talk with his fingers?"

"Yes, dear," replied his mother.

"Well," continued the small interrogator, "how do you suppose he says his prayers if his fingers are sore?"

The hardest wood is not ebony, but cocus. It grows in the West Indies, and is used for making flutes and similar instruments.

Arab Superstition.

Arabs call whistling the "devil's music," and consider it the most unlucky sound that can proceed from human lips. An proverb of theirs is to the effect that after whistling the mouth is not purified for forty days. In many other parts of the world a similar idea prevails; in the Tonga islands, for instance, where the peasants strongly object to it, believing it to be a violation of the divine law. Whistling is quite unknown among the descendants of the Peruvian Incas.

SHIRAS DECIDES LAND CASE

Holds That Purchaser in Good Faith from Railroad Company Is Entitled to Possession—Talk at Washington that Wilson Returns to Ames as President.

Dubuque, Sept. 5.—Judge Shiras yesterday decided a case of long standing in the courts. It was that of Jesse Britt and John Britt vs. John Meisterling. The action is one to quiet title to realty in Dickinson county, the dispute arising out of the re-adjustment of the land grant in aid of the Sioux City and St. Paul Railway company. The plaintiffs claim their right upon the homestead settlement laws and the defendant upon his purchase from the railroad in good faith. The plaintiffs claim that the land does not fall within the limit of the grant, but as the land department has settled that question the court cannot investigate it, and the only matter of dispute left for the court's decision is which party has prior right to the land. Meisterling bought the land from the company in 1887, paying $10.50 per acre, and the complainants entered in possession of the land and resided thereon continuously from 1890. The court holds that Meisterling was an innocent purchaser of the land, and therefore is entitled to enter into possession of the land.

ROOSEVELT'S ITINERARY.

He Will Be Twice in the State at Different Times.

Des Moines, Sept. 5.—The itinerary of President Roosevelt in Iowa has been formally reported to Governor Cummins. He will be in Iowa twice, arriving in Sioux City four days before he reaches Des Moines. He will make his Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri dates between times.

The president is to be in Sioux City the afternoon of September 26th, remaining two hours, where he will be entertained by the Elks. Governor Cummins has been invited to be present and welcome him and will be if he can return from the cruiser christening in time. The same evening he will go to Denison, making a short stop and change at Arion. Then he will go to Omaha.

On the 30th the presidential party will come back into Iowa, making Clarinda, Van Wert, Osceola and then Des Moines. The party will arrive here at 2:30 and remain until 4 o'clock. No arrangements have as yet been made definitely for his entertainment here. He will go from Des Moines to Oskaloosa and Ottumwa and the next morning, that of the 31st, be in Keokuk.

$25,000 FOR DEATH.

Heavy Suit Commenced Against Edison Company at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Sept. 5.—Charles Martin, administrator of the estate of William Bass, killed at the plant of the Des Moines Edison company, April, 1902, commenced action to recover damages. Judgment for $[illegible],000 is demanded.

Bass, a lineman in the employ of the company, was at work on the interior of the building on the morning of his death. It is claimed he had climbed to the top of a step ladder and was in the act of repairing a wire which he supposed was dead, when he was thrown from the ladder to the floor. He was dead before assistance could be rendered.

The company claimed at the time Bass did not touch a live wire, but that his death was due to heart failure. The coroner's jury held otherwise, however, rendering a verdict to the effect that he came to his death through contact with heavily charged metal or wires.

HORSE'S TAIL JERKED OUT.

Animal Switched Its Tail Into Four-Inch Belt.

Early, Sept. 5.—A peculiar accident happened on the farm of John Scotthorns, near here, while threshing was in progress. A horse hitched to a load of bundles as it stood near the machine switched its tail into the main drive belt, where it goes over the cylinder shaft. The tail wound around the shaft and pulled the horse against the machine and finally jerked the tail out of the horse's body where it joins the backbone. The resistance and jar was great enough to break a four-inch belt and bend the cylinder shaft. The horse was killed to end its sufferings.

WILSON TO AMES.

Wahington People Are Discussing Possibility of Resignation.

Washington, Sept. 5.—A rumor is again current that Secretary Wilson will shortly resign to accept the presidency of Iowa State college at Ames. If he does resign it will be on his own motion. President Roosevelt desires him to remain. It is reported here the trustees have offered the presidency to Wilson, and that he declined, but with the understanding the place would be held open for a year. Secretary Wilson is not here and the story cannot be verified.

Strange Fate of a Farmer.

Iowa City, Sept., 8.—Menno Guengerich, son of George Guengerich a prominent farmer of Washington township, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. He and his brother had driven into the barn lot with a load of hay and when within a few rods of the barn the bolt descended, killing the young man and one of the horses. The grandfather of the young man, Joseph Shetler, was killed by lightning eight years ago today two miles from where the accident occurred last night.

BOIES IS TO BE NAME.

Announcement Made by Democratic Leaders at Waterloo.

Waterloo, Sept. 5.—Governor Horace Boies will be the nominee of the Third district democrats for congress. He will be nominated by acclamation at the convention to be held in Dubuque next Thursday and he will accept the nomination and enter the campaign to make the fight of his life. This is the announcement here by members of the democratic congressional committee and local leaders of the party. It had been the hope of Governor Boies and the party managers here that his son, Louis Boies, would take the nomination and for a while it was believed he would accede to the pressure being brought to bear on him. But he has declined, giving his professional engagements as a reason. Besides this it is known that he is wedded to the law practice and that he has no taste for politics. In their dilemma the democrats turned to the governor and will make him their candidate. They say that his showing of wonderful vigor and vitality at Des Moines and his popularity with the party demonstrate that he is an ideal leader for them. They also say, though he has not given assent to the use of his name, the former governor is too good a democrat to refuse to make the fight.

CASE EFFECTS 140 SALOONS.

Mulct Law Will be Tested in District Court at Dubuque.

Dubuque, Sept. 5.—The mulct law will receive a test here next Monday before Judge Matthews of the district court. The case of Kintzinger vs. the Dubuque Star Brewing company will then come up for hearing. Three weeks ago the plaintiff had an injunction issued restraining the brewery from conducting a saloon in connection with the malt house on the grounds that the saloon kept open Sundays in violation to the law. By mutual agreement the case was continued until Monday. The defendant avers that Kintzinger is actuated by malice and is also guilty of blackmail. If the court decides that the saloon is being conducted in violation to the law, 130 other Dubuque saloons will be affected.

BARTHOLIN DIES IN IOWA

BODY FOUND IN A FLAX FIELD NEAR RICEVILLE.

Wrote a Letter Acknowledging the Double Murder and Then Committed Suicide.

Riceville, Sept. 8.—The body of a man, confidently believed to be William Bartholin, was found Friday evening in a field six miles southeast of Riceville. There is every proof that he committed suicide in the night of the 31st of August.

Bartholin came here the first week in August from Chicago and worked on the Chicago Great Western railroad. After one-half day he went into the country and worked on the Higginson farm three weeks. Then he went to the Huss farm and stayed three days. He returned to Riceville the night before he suicided and slept at the Hotel Wilkes. He had breakfast taken up to his room. He remained all forenoon and went down the track six miles. He was not willing to enter the dining room while at the hotel. He was very quiet and seemed to be troubled.

About 8 o'clock he was met by J Cashman on the road toward the Huss farm. They talked for some time and Bartholin agreed to help stack the next day. This meeting was about ninety yards from where the body was found. It is thought by Cashman that the tragedy occurred soon after the meeting.

The body was found by Joe Pratt, who has put in a claim for the $1,000 reward offerred by a Chicago newspaper. Pratt was driving along the road. The body was lying on a shock of flax about twenty rods from the road and had the appearance of a drunken man stretched out with the legs crossed.

A letter of confession to two murders in Chicago and love letters from Minnie Mitchell were found on his person. He had a 32-caliber revolver in his left hand. He had been shot through the head. There was some small change in his pocket.

The body, which was decomposed badly, answers the description of Bartholin to a "T." He was crippled in one leg, had a gold tooth and was 5 feet 10 inches tall.

The following is the text of the letter found on the body:

"To All Concerned: I am alone to blame for the death of my mother and sweetheart; had no accomplices.

"Wish those now under arrest to be released.

"Would write more of the particulars, only cannot get my mind centerred on subject.

(Signed) "William Bartholin."

Several other letters were found on his body signed "Your Darling Sweetheart, M. M.," and are supposed to be from Miss Minnie Mitchell. One was signed Minnie Mitchell.

Riceville, Sept. 8.—The body which was believed to be that of William Bartholin was exhumed yesterday and positively identified as that of the Chicago double-murderer.

The identification was made by William Mitchell, a brother of one of Bartholin's victims, and Detective Andrew Rohan of Chicago. Dr. A. J. Coey of Chicago, who came here with Detective Rohan, cut out the lower jaw of the murderer, which contained the two gold crowned teeth which have figured so largely in the description sent broadcast throughout the country for the purpose of identification. The jaw will be taken to Chicago by the detective.

AMES' NEW PROFESSOR

Prof. P. G. Holden Accepts Proposition to Come to Iowa.

Ames, Sept. 8.—The friends of the State college are highly pleased at the announcement that Prof. P. G. Holden, the eminent specialist, has accepted the chair of agronomy at the institution. Professor Holden is considered a great addition to the faculty of the agricultural school, and is expected to carry on a work which will add to the already great prestige at Ames.

Professor Holden was elected to the chair of agronomy at the last meeting of the board of trustees. The college was not able to pay in excess of $2,000 per year salary out of its funds, and Professor Holden could not be secured for this sum. So three friends of the college agreed to contribute $200 each to raise the salary to $2,600, at which figure it was hoped an acceptance could be secured. Those contributing to this fund are Wallace's Farmer, the Cook farm at Odebolt and a friend of the college who withholds his name.

Has Become a Murder.

Pocahontas, Sept. 4.—Mrs. Claus Light, wife of the man in jail here, charged with attempting to murder her, is dead. County Attorney Hazlett took her dying statement which corroborates the testimony on which Light is held.

CHEROKEE HOSPITAL FILLED.

State Now Has 570 Patients at the New Home for the Insane.

Des Moines, Sept. 5.—Judge Kinne has returned from Cherokee, where he was for several days in connection with the opening of the new insane hospital of the state. One of the patients brought from Independence died since reaching the hospital, but the state was fortunate in that there was no illness because of the journey across the state of the patients. There are now 570 insane at the hospital. In the general dining room 400 insane receive their meals at one time. Everything is running as smoothly as could be expected with such a large force of comparatively new employes and all the arrangements new and strange. The physical culture teacher has arrived and is organizing the classes. The farming and garaening is being finished and the potatoes on the farm are said to be very fine with a yield of 300 bushels to the acre.

FOR PETERSON MURDER

THOMAS LEWIS UNDER ARREST AT DES MOINES.

Is a Miner and Was Near the Scene of the Murder When It Occurred.

Des Moines, Sept. 5.—Thomas Lewis, a miner at Marquisville, was arrested yesterday by Constable Ed Sunberg and a deputy sheriff, accused of murder in the first degree. The information is sworn to by Attorney H. G. Carpenter, commonly called "Hod," who has been working on the case since the crime was committed. Lewis was taken to Justice Aylesworth's court where he was arraigned and then taken to the county jail. Justice Aylesworth set the case for next Tuesday and the man was committed without bail.

Lewis lives near the scene of the crime and was investigated by the detectives at the time the crime was committed. It is alleged that he told conflicting stories in regard to his whereabouts that night, but he was released. Two other men were with him the night that the crime was committed. He and another man, it is alleged, were on the bridge near the crime when the awful deed was done. The man who was with Lewis worked at Morningstar's dairy.

The father, brother and brother-in law of the accused man came to the city at once and went to Justice Aylesworth's court to get the man released on bail if possible. Justice Aylesworth had committed the man without bail, however, and he could not be released. Then the men at once engaged Attorney Walter McHenry, who will defend Lewis.

Lewis is a small man 28 years of age. He was at work when arrested and took his capture without flinching or making any resistance whatever. Quietly he walked to the buggy and was taken to the court room. Justice Aylesworth was not in the room when the men arrived and they awaited his return. The man was arraigned at 11:45 when the justice returned to the room.

H. G. Carpenter, the man who filed the information, refused to discuss the evidence as known to him. He said however, that he had a complete case against the man and that if he had not he never would have dared to file any such information.

The information states that the weapon used is to the prosecution at this time unknown. The full text of the information is as follows:

"The defendant, Thomas Lewis, is accused of the crime of murder in the first degree.

"For that the defendant on or about the 13th day of April, A. D., 1902, in the county of Polk and state of Iowa unlawfully, willfully, feloniously, deliberately, premeditatedly and with malice aforethought, and by lying in wait, did make an assault in and upon the person of one Lena Peterson, then and there being, with a certain dangerous and deadly weapon in the hands of the defendant held, a more particular description of the weapon being at this time to the defendant unknown. And he, the said Thomas Lewis, with the specific intent to kill and murder her, did willfully, feloniously, deliberately and premeditatedly and with malice aforethought with a deadly weapon, then and there, in his hands held, as aforesaid, beat, strike and bruise the head, person and body of her, the said Lena Peterson, willfully, feloniously, premeditatedly and of his malice aforethought, inflicting upon the body of her, the said Lena Peterson, a mortal wound, or wounds, from the effects of which she, the said Lena Peterson, then and there died; contrary to the statutes in such cases, made and provided, and against the peace and dignity of the state of Iowa. —H G. Carpenter."

The murder occurred last spring, north of Highland Park college, as the children were going home from church one Sunday evening. It is the theory that the girl was outraged and that her brother was killed after a desperate struggle in defense of his sister's honor.

SOMETHING FOR YOUR GRANDCHILDREN.

What is pleasanter than saying this beautiful high post bed, or handsome old chest of drawers, or this lovely quaint sofa was mother's? Chase & West, 712 Walnut street, Des Moines, have the finest and largest stock in the state, of good furniture. They carry many colonial and antique styles. Freight is prepaid.

BAD MEN BREAK JAIL.

Were Aided by Friends on the Outside.

Nevada, Sept. 6.—George Smith and William H. Bradley, two desperate crooks, who were removed from the Hamilton county jail at Webster City to the Story county bastile for safe keeping, escaped by the aid of confederates. Their escape was made before the eyes of several other prisoners in the same cell, none of whom got away, and no clew has yet been found as to their whereabouts. Their confederates came up to the back window of the jail, tore a small hole in the iron screen and shoved two revolvers in to Smith and Bradley, who covered the other prisoners and ordered them to keep quiet or be shot. In the meantime the men outside were diligently at work sawing away the bars, which was soon effected. The inside bars are in two sections the lower one of which was let down by Smith and Bradley, who then crawled through the aperture, eight by sixteen inches, made by removing one of the outside bars, and got away. The other inmates of the cell aroused the sheriff as soon as Smith and Bradley were gone, but it was too late to apprehend them. Smith has been here about a month, and was arrested for larceny from the person during the Webster City carnival. Bradley, the more desperate of the two, has been here only a short time. They were to have been tried in a few days which fact probably hastened their determination to escape.

THOUSAND DEAD ON MARTINIQUE

Mont Pelee Has Been in Constant Eruption Since August 15.

THE PEOPLE ARE TERRIFIED

All Available Boats Are Being Used to Remove the Residents of Coast Villages to Fort de France—Ashes Falling on Neighboring Islands.

Basse Terre, Island of Guadelope, French West Indies, Sept. 3.—It has been learned from the gendarmes of the island of Martinique that 1,060 persons were killed and 1,500 injured during the last eruption of Mont Pelee.

According to an official account the eruption of August 30 was one of the most severe that has been experienced.

Morne Rouge and a great part of Ajoupa Bulion were destroyed.

The zone between the river Capote and the valley of Champ Florre and Fonds Marie Reine has been devastated.

Mont Capote suffered severely and the hills around Basse Point were burned.

The governor of the island is arranging for the evacuation of the northern parishes and the removal of the wounded.

The temperature at Martinique is reported to be almost unbearable.

Paris, Sept. 3.—The Havas Agency has received an undated dispatch from Port De France, Island of Martinique, announcing that about one thousand people were killed and several hundred were injured from the violent eruption of Mont Pelee on Saturday, August 30, which destroyed Morne Rouge and Ajoupa Bouillon, two villages near the volcano. The village of Le Carba was damaged by a tidal wave, which was also felt at Fort De France, where the people were terror stricken.

The French cruisers Suchet and Tage are embarking people in the northern part of Martinique.

Kingstown, St. Vincent, B. W. I., Sunday, August 31.—A remarkable volcanic phenomenon occurred here between 9 and 10 o'clock last night. There was a startling series of detonations from La Soufriere, louder than any time since the terrible eruption of May 11.

Each explosion shook the buildings of this town. The noises were terrific and gave the impression in every town and village of this island that the scene of disturbance was only about two miles away.

During the period of intense anxiety which attended the detonations, two luminous circles, like rainbows, appeared in the cloudless sky to the nortwest.

They were presumably the reflection of the flames in the crater of Le Soufriere. Subsequently a dence cloud of steam arose from the crater, but this soon dispersed. The weather today is fair.

Telegraphic reports have been received here from the islands of Grenada, Trinidad and Barbados saying loud detonations were heard at these respective places between 9 and 10 o'clock of last night. These experiences were similar to those heard when Mont Pelee, Martinique, was previously in eruption.

The people of Grenada were greatly alarmed at the detonations. They were the loudest which have been heard here. This phenomenon was not attended by serious results on St. Vincent, but fears are entertained here for the people on the island of Martinique, as Mont Pelee is known to be still terribly agitated, two eruptions having occurred there in the last six days. The last eruption was witnessed August 21 by passengers on the French steamer Dahome, which vessel narrowly escaped destruction while passing near St. Pierre.

Paris, Sept. 6.—The Paris edition of the New York Herald publishes a dispatch from Point-a-Pitre, island of Guadeloupe, F. W. I., dated September 4, which says that constant detonations heard there last night indicate a terrific volcanic eruption on the island of Martinique.

Thick, black clouds were seen to the southward of Guadeloupe and the heat at Point-a-Pitre was intense.

The population was said to be greatly alarmed and apprehensive of a tidal wave in the event of the collapse of Martinique.

Castries, Island of St. Lucia, B. W. I., Sept. 5.—The Royal Mail steamer Yape arrived here last evening from the island of Martinique. She brings the report that a violent volcanic eruption occurred there Wednesday night and that about two thousand persons are said to have perished. A large number of people are leaving the island.

Castries, Island of St. Lucia, B. W. I., Sept. 5.—The coast telephone service reports that a violent eruption of the Soufriere volcano on the island of St. Vincent was observed at midnight Wednesday.

Paris, Sept. 5.—The ministry for the colonies received a cable dispatch today from the governor of Guadeloupe, M. Merlin, saying that Morge Capete was much damaged and that flames surrounded Morge Parnasse, but stopped at the St. James house. Passe Point heights was burned.

Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 5.—The German steamer Castillia, which arrived here from St. Thomas, B. W. I., yesterday, reports encountering a heavy fall of volcanic dust while 800 miles out at sea. She also reports that the coast of Hayti was completely obscured by a haze, caused by dust.

London, Sept. 5.—The correspondent of the Dail Mail at Castries, St. Lucia, has cabled an account of the phenomena witnessed at the time of the recent out-break of Mont Pelee, Martinique. The correspondent confirms the details of the eruption as already known, and says:

"There were tremendous earth rumblings and explosions. The ground rocked and nothing could stand on tables or shelves. Boats for St. Pierre were unable to reach the town owing to the fall of cold ashes, and a tidal wave destroyed the whole of the sea front of Le Carbet. People returned here from Martinique only last week to take their families to Fort. De France."

Roseau, Island of Dominica, B. W. I., Sept. 5.—A copy of L'Opinion of Fort de France, Martinique, dated September 3, says that over 1,500 people were killed during the volcanic eruption of Mont Pelee of last Saturday and that a still greater number of persons have been brought to Fort de France by the French cruisers Tage and Suchet and by coasting craft. The hospitals of Fort de France are filled with the sick and wounded.

MARTINIQUE IS DOOMED.

View of Situation Taken by Correspondent at Pointe-a-Pitre.

New York, Sept. 6.—It is generally believed that the island of Martinique is doomed to total destruction and the fear is that when the catastrophe comes Guadeloupe will be visited by an all destructive tidal wave, cables the Pointe-a-Pitre, Guadeloupe, correspondent of the Herald. Business is absolutely at a standstill. Few shops are open and if it were not for the efforts of a small number of more valiant souls hundreds would starve to death here because of their fear of a more terrible death.

Details that have been received during the last two days prove that the eruption of Mont Pelee of August 30 was for more violent than any of the earlier explosions.

As the eruptions continue, the mouth of Mont Pelee grows in size. It is now of enormous proportions. Morne La Croix, one of the peaks that reared skyward from the side of Pelee, has fallen bodily into the crater and has been completely swallowed. There seems to be a side pressure in the crater and the burning chasm widens perceptibly every day.

Clouds of mist hang about the crest of Mont Pelee. The terrific heat seems to drive everything away. The column of flame and smoke rears directly into the heavens, so that its top is lost to sight. In the darkness of the night it has the appearance of a stream of molten iron, standing fixed between heaven and earth. From Morne Capote the relief troops were compelled to make a quick retreat, although they succeeded in taking out a few wounded. The entire country nearly to Fort de France is buried under a deep cover of ashes. This has made it almost impossible to find the bodies of those who have perished while fleeing to the seacoast.

SUFFERING IN CARACAS.

Appeal to Philanthropic People of America for Help.

Washington, Sept. 6.—United States Minister Bowen at Caracas has forwarded to the state department under date of August 24 a plaintive plea for the poor in that capital who are suffering great misery as the result of the protracted war now in progress. The special plea is made by Rev. T. S Pond, the senior American missionary in Caracas, and Mr. Bowen has undertaken gladly to receive any contributions that may be sent from America to his legation. He says that Mr. Pond does not propose to give money to the poor, but only provisions that are cooked. He needs, according to Mr. Bowen, $2,000, but could easily use five times that amount.

In his appeal Mr. Pond says that in his experience he has never known anything to compare with the widespread and hopeless poverty of the present. He refers to the fact that Minister Bowen himself is feeding 100 or more destitute people. "At least half the families of this city," says Mr. Pond, "can gain only one fair meal a day. Hundreds cannot obtain even that."

WEST VIRGINIA STRIKE OVER.

Miners Who Went Out June 7 Return To Their Work.

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 7.—The coal miner's strike in the Kanawha and New River fields, involving fifteen thousand miners, which has been in existence since June 7, is practically at an end. Each local union is instructed to go back to work on the best terms possible without regard to the action of any other local. Several of the largest operators in the New River field have made terms with their men and will resume on tomorrow. No concessions have been granted and from the miner's standpoint the strike is a complete failure, the men returning to work at the same rate as before the strike. There is great activity here among the operators getting ready to start up. Evictions will stop now and other men will be given employment where possible. Most of the strikers are happy that it wil soon be over.

TO SETTLE MINE STRIKE.

Labor Commissioner Make an Important Report.

Washington, Sept. 4.—The report of Carroll D. Wright, the commissioner of labor, on the anthracite coal strike, has been made public today.

Commissioner Wright finds that there is no confidence existing between the employes and their employers. This, he believes, is one of the chief causes of the difficulties between the operators and the miners. He suggests that it would be reasonable and just for the operators to concede at once a nine hour day for a period of six months as an experiment. He suggests that there should be organized a joint committee on conciliation composed of representatives of the operators and of a new union of anthracite employes, to which all grievances should be referred for investigation and that their decision should be final and binding upon both.

FLOOD KILLS HUNDREDS.

Thousands of Houses Washed Away and Many Vessels Wrecked.

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 6.—Floods have caused heavy loss of life and great damage to property in some of the districts of Japan. In Hiroshima 79 persons lost their lives and 29 were injured, while many houses were washed away and vessels were wrecked. In Yamagushi 78 were drowned, 13 crushed to death, 11 washed away with their houses and 15 injured. Several thousand houses were inundated. In Siam province 246 persons were drowned and four crushed to death. Cholera has claimed many victims along the Asiatic coast.

FARMER COMMITS SUICIDE.

E. N. Robbins Shoots Himself With a Shot Gun.

Elkader, Sept. 4.—E. N. Robbins, a farmer living near Mederville, Clayton county, committed suicide by shooting himself with a shotgun, the charge completely removing the head from the body. The rash deed was performed at 5 a. m., just after arising. He was a man of 50 years of age, and had been afflicted with a nervous trouble for which he expected to come to Elkader for treatment, having made arrangements for treatment from a local doctor. Evidently his trouble brought on temporary insanity.

BOY KILLS BROTHER.

Picked Up a Rifle Used by Oldest Brother.

Jamison, Sept. 5.—At 5:30 last evening 6-year-old Forrest Prine accidentally shot and almost instantly killed Wetzel Prine, his 4-year-old brother. An older brother had been hunting with a 22 caliber rifle. Coming home, he sat the gun down to open a gate when the younger boy picked it up pointed it at his little brother and shot him just under the left eye. All three are sons of E. V. Prine of Jamison.

STORYETTES.

Queen Victoria, on her last trip to Italy, visited a church at Assisi, where she met a very devout monk, who escorted her through a chilly corridor. His head was shaven, and she asked him if he did not feel the draft when wearing the tonsure in the way the order did. His reply was not in Italian, as she expected, but in perfect English, tinctured with the brogue: "No, madam, I don't feel it at all in that way. You know, we Irish are a hot-headed race!"

A good story is related of Henry Clay Dean, the famous orator of a generation or so ago. Mr. Dean was generally referred to as "Henry Clay Dean, of Iowa," even long after he had established a home in Missouri. He explained his change of habitation in this way: "You see, they passed a nefarious prohibition law in Iowa, and there's your whiskey gone. Then they abolished capital punishment, and there's your hanging gone. And now the whole population seems to be drifting toward universalism, and there's your hell gone. I can't live in a state that has neither hell, hanging, nor whiskey."

Dr. Henry Van Dyke tells a story of an old Irishman who was engaged in the business of chicken-raising at Princeton. One day a traveling man expressed surprise at the use of so much cornmeal at feeding-time. He suggested that the meal be mixed with sawdust, insisting that the hens would not know the difference. A few months later the traveling man was again in the community, and he asked how the new diet had been tried, and what the result had been. "It works beautifully," was the reply. "See that yellow hen? Well, I tried her on sawdust-and-half and she liked it so well I changed it to all sawdust, and the next time she hatched, three of the chicks had wooden legs and the fourth was a woodpecker."

She was Persuaded to Try St. Jacobs Oil, and All Pain Disappeared Immediately.

It is undoubtedly a fact beyond dispute that the strongest advertising medium the proprietors have is the people who recommend others to use St. Jacobs Oil. People who have themselves experienced a happy relief which invariably follows the use of this great remedy, show their gratitude by recommending it to those whom they know are similarly afflicted. This is the case of Margaret Green of 71 Brightfield road, Lee Green, S. E.

"Having suffered from muscular rheumatism for years, and not receiving any benefit from various remedies I used St. Jacobs Oil; pain and stiffness removed at once; no return of rheumatism." St. Jacobs Oil is sold in 25 cts. and 50 cts. sizes by all druggists.

IRONING A SHIRT WAIST.

Not infrequently a young woman finds it necessary to launder a shirt waist at home for some emergency when the laundryman or laundrywoman cannot do it. Hence these directions for ironing the waist: The summer shirt waists so that they look like new it is needful to treat them starched evenly with Dobbins' starch, then made perfectly smooth and rolled tight in a damp cloth and laid away two or three hours.

Ironing have a bowl of water and a clean piece of muslin beside the ironing board. Have your iron hot, but not sufficiently so to scorch, and absolutely clean. Begin by ironing the back, then the front, sides and sleeves, followed by the neckband and the cuffs. When wrinkles appear sprinkle the damp cloth and remove them. Always iron from the top of the waist to the bottom. If there are plaits in the front iron them downward, first raising each one with a dull knife, and with the edge of the iron follow every line of stitching to give it distinctness. After the shirt waist is ironed it should be well aired before a fire or in the sun before it is worn, and put away, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Klondyke Gold Mystery.

By JOHN R. MUSICK,

Author of "Mysterious Mr. Howard," "The Dark Stranger," "Charlie Allendale's Double," Etc.

CHAPTER I.

Strange Information.

From the flowery fields of California to the barren region of the Klondyke, from 1849 to 1897, is a wide reach, but the gulf of time is bridged over and the hopes and fears of thousands of hearts follow the argonauts who go to search for the golden fleece in the confines of the Arctic Circle, as they did forty-eight years ago the California prospectors. The real story of the discovery of gold on the Klondyke is not generally known, and to unravel that mystery is the purpose of this story.

On a certain night, about three years ago last May, five men were seated about a camp fire, built under the south side of a cliff, among some pine trees, near the banks of the Yukon river, fifteen miles above Dawson City.

As some of this party have become well known by the development of the Klondyke gold fields, it will be as well to introduce them to the reader before we proceed with our story. That large man dressed in moose-skin coat and trousers, with a bear skin thrown over his shoulders, was once well known in the great northwest as the most daring hunter, miner and adventurer in all Alaska. He was as honorable as he was brave, and as kind hearted as he was sullen. His name was Jack Ralston, but along the Yukon he was commonly known as "Glum Ralston."

Ralston was once an American He was getting along in years, for his hair was growing frosty, yet his frame was still strong and his heart had not abandoned its hope.

George W. Cormack, or "Lucky George," as the miners nicknamed him, sat on the log just opposite Glum Ralston. George was an Englishman, a brave, adventurous fellow, who was also an expert miner. Perhaps it was his knowledge of geology and mining that tended to his success. Nevertheless, the miners attributed it to luck.

Gid Myers was a man of thirty, with pale blue eyes and sandy complexion. Gid had had considerable experience as a hunter and prospector, but in the miner's parlance had never struck it rich.

Porter Allen, or "Big Port," was a giant in size, being over six feet in height, with broad shoulders and sinews of steel. He was forty, his hair and long beard quite grizzled with time and exposure.

The fifth was a young man of twenty-two or twenty-three years of age, with the freshness of youth and innocence still on his face. While his older companions were smoking their pipes, the younger man of the party gazed abstractedly into the glowing fire. His mind went back over the mountains, rivers and seas to his quiet little home in Fresno, where he had left his widowed mother, dear to his heart, and one still dearer. Her name was Laura Kean. They were lovers and betrothed.

While he sat gazing into the fire and seeing only the well-beloved face of his betrothed, his companions toasted and ate their suppers and talked of their present situation.

"Glum, how long ye been in Alaska?" asked Lucky George.

"It's now twenty-one years."

"An' never been back to the States?"

"No."

"Are you ever goin'?"

"Don't know," he answered, with a sigh. "It'd be like goin' back to a graveyard now. Most everybody I knew's dead. If——" but he did not finish the sentence. His weather-beaten eye seemed to gleam with softer light as he gazed into the fire, and Gid Myers thought he saw a shade of moisture gathering there.

"Glum, you often promised us you would tell your own story sometime—how you came here, and why you have spent all these years in Alaska. Why not tell now?" asked Lucky George.

Glum moved uneasily on the log on which he was sitting and, clearing his throat, said:

"Boys, 'tain't much of a yarn when it's spun. I came to Alaska in '73 in the sealin' schooner 'Eleanor.' We had good officers and crew, an' the sun never shone on a better man than our captain. We all loved him and would have died for him.

"Well, we had no luck sealing, and the captain and sailors went with a party of Indians who said they knew where gold could be found. I didn't believe them, and wouldn't go. But he asked me not to leave Alaska till he came back, and I promised.

"At the end of six months an explorin' party came back with the cap o' one o' the sailors which they had found on the snow several days' journey away.

"Winter was on us, and we ran into Sitka, where we anchored until spring. It was a hard winter, and I have often wondered why we didn't all die, but all but two pulled through, and when spring came on, an' the captain hadn't hove to in sight, the first mate said he was going back with the ship. They tried to make me go, but I'd promised the captain I'd stay until he came back.

"Our ship sailed away, an' I stayed around the town for a while, an' then went on a cruise with some hunters. We branched off into the woods. I didn't tell the story of my captain and the Injun chief with the gold beads for a good many years. Then I went into the interior to try to find him. I got in with some moose hunters and traveled one whole summer and part of a winter and nearly starved an' froze a hundred times, but not a word could I hear of him, so I suppose I am doomed to make my last voyage from this port. When I meet my captain on that unknown sea to which we are all steerin', I'll tell him I kept my promise."

When the ex-sailor had finished his story a silence fell on the group. No one spoke for several minutes.

The youth, known only by the sobriquet of "Crack Lash," sat gazing abstractedly into the fire. He had heard no part of the story, for his mind was still on his far-away home, where dwelt mother and the fair being who had promised to be his wife, for whom he had braved the dangers of the wilderness.

At early morn the little camp on the Yukon was astir. Paul was the last to awake. Youth is healthful and innocent, so sleep lingers longer about its eyelids than those whose bodies are freighted with disease or minds burdened with cares.

"Where's George?" asked Gid, as he toasted steaks.

"Been gone these two hours," Big Port answered.

"Alone?"

"Yes."

"That's strange."

Breakfast was disposed of, the dogs fed and harnessed, and the party prepared for their journey up the river to Dawson City, then an insignificant village, and yet lucky Gorge had not returned.

As the sun rose higher the mud and snow made travel more comfortable, yet Paul trudged on, unmplainingly. He could bear any burden or hardship without a murmur when he reflected that it was for Laura. Her presence gave strength to his arm and keenness to his eye, spurring him on to efforts more than superhuman.

When they halted at noon they were compelled to go to leeward of the smoke to protect themselves from the mosquitoes. But little had been said of their missing companion, Lucky George. Gid followed his trail through the snow without difficulty, and gave it as his opinion that he was going straight to Dawson City.

Glum Ralston, who had not expressed an opinion on the subject for some time, at last said:

"Boys, I heard him say somethin' one day 'bout goin' up the Klondyke."

"What for?" said Gid.

"Said a squaw an told him there was heaps o' gold along that air stream."

Glum informed him it was one of the tributaries of the Youkon which had been but very little explored. Gid remained with his head bowed for a few moments, his mind lost in thought. At last he said:

"Boys, he's tin' to give us the slip, I a'm afear or run a cold deck on us," said Gid

"What if he does?" asked Port.

"We don't lose much."

"We might fine struck pay dirt," said Gid.

"Won't we be just as likely to strike pay dirt as Gorge?"

"No."

"Why?"

"Because Gorge is allers in luck. Every time he draws from the deck it's a trump. If a feller holds a straight Gorge has a flush. I'll gamble my dogs a' packs that he makes a ten strick right now."

There was a silence, and the men sat and smoked and steamed, to drive away the moquitoes. At last Port broke the silence by saying:

"If there is gold on the Klondyke let us go and find it ourselves."

"Now yer shoutin'," cried the prospectors. "Why not go to the Klondyke ourselves?"

"Truth is, boys," said Glum, "I never had any very exalted opinion of Lucky George's honesty. If he makes a big strike we can, o' course, come in for a clam, but he'll strike the best an' work on the others without a-knowin' it."

They decided to set out at once for the Klondyke. It was a journey attended from beginning to end with great danger and hardship. Glum Ralton was the only member of their party who had been on the stream, and he acted as guide.

Again night came on, and they went into camp and prepared their suppers. Paul was a little disheartened on this night. Continual disappointment had made him heart-sick. Rising to relieve his cramped limbs he turned his back toward the fire and gazed across the wood-covered hill into the darkness beyond. To his surprise he discovered a glow of the woods far in the distance. For a moment he gazed upon it in doubt, and then, touching Gid Myers who sat near, on the arm, he whispered:

"Look off there, Gid, in the direction I am pointing. Don't I see anything suspicious?" Gid Myers did as directed, and said:

"Yes, thar's somethin' onusual, Crack Lash."

"What is it?"

"Well, I'd say it was th' glow from a camp fire like our own."

"Gid, suppose we go and reconnoitre. We may make some discovery."

"Keep your eyes peeled, boys," cautioned Big Port. "It may be a mighty sight more risky'n ye think."

"Oh, let us alone for that; we'll let no red nigger o' the north west get the drop on us."

Through the dense wood, across ravines, snowdrifts and muddy streams the two pressed on over hill and dale, until, after three hours' painful toil, they came upon a bend in the stream called the Klondyke, where, passing around a spur of the cliff, all of a sudden the full glare of torches and fire light fell upon them. It was a strange and unexpected sight that met their view. A great fire was blazing, to which was added the light of pine knot torches stuck in the sand.

Two men were at work with picks, shovels and pans. Late as it was, dark as it was and tired and hungry as they were, they toiled on and on.

"Crack Lash," Gid gasped in a hoarse whisper, "it's Lucky George and the squaw man, Lattimer."

"Yes."

"What are they doin'?"

"Digging! Great heaven! look at the shining ore! See! the buckets and pans are full of nuggets and dust. Oh, Gid! Gid! It's a bonaza!"

"Hush, they will hear us."

"I am going to make myself known to them."

"And be shot?"

"Why should they shoot me when we are friends? If they are like savage dogs over a bone, then we can shoot first."

Gid consented to go to them, and, advancing to within a hundred paces, they called to the diggers. At first they were a little confused, but Lucky George, who was a shrewd fellow, saw it was best to admit to the discovery.

"Come down, boys; come down," he cried cheerfully. "I tell you we have made the greatest strike in the world. Look the work of a few hours."

"Gorge, are there more good claims?"

"Plenty of them. Let us all set to work, take out the best and get the cream before the world finds it out. Lattimer here put me onto this. He got it from the Indians."

It was the discovery of the great gold fields in the Klondyke. Lucky George got the tip from Lattimer, the white man with an Indian wife, and had determined to work it alone if he could do so, but now that his friends had found him, he decided to make the most of it and divide.

The others were sent for, and claims for all staked out.

Next morning with the dawn of day Paul began to work his claim. With the first shoveful of earth, he began to take out gold. His pick struck attracted to the largest nuggets, and his pan was always rich in gold. He washed out a thousand dollars worth of dust and nuggets to the pan. He forgot breakfast, lunch and dinner, but toiled on. The small buckskin bags were quickly filled, and then he poured the renewed accumulation into a water bucket. His eyes gleamed with the fire of the mine, and in his mind he saw only the faces of sweetheart and mother. He took no thought of rest, health or the danger which his accumulation brought him.

There was danger hovering over the happy youth. His claim was some distance up the stream from the others, and one day, as he was toiling and heaping up the golden treasure, two pairs of fierce, avaricious eyes glared at him from the dense foliage of pines. They watched him a long time as he toiled, and then exchanged knowing looks, winks and smiles, which said:

"Let the fool toil on. When he has taken his thousands from the earth we will have it."

After the first few days he stopped long enough to eat and sleep a few hours at a time, dreaming of home and of making loved ones there happy. Little did he dream that a storm cloud was gathering over the loved ones at home and another over his own head, threatening to ruin himself and all most dear to his heart.

INQUIRY ABOUT JOB'S TURKEY.

Important Point Man Was Anxious to Have Settled.

Mr. Brownlow of Tennessee has among his constituents an itinerant preacher who is not only an eloquent preacher, but, in his opinion, has a knowledge of the scriptures second to no one's. So confident is he that he can make clear the most obscure passages that he invariably asks his hearers to bring him any puzzling text they wish explained.

At the close of a very large and successful meeting a country bumpkin sitting in the back of the hall in response to the pastor's invitation announced that there was a matter, a very important matter, he would like to have unraveled.

Happy that an opportunity to show his erudition had come at last, the wise man encouraged the fellow to come to the front and present his problem.

"What I want to know is," said the bucolic, "is whether Job's turkey was a hen or a gobbler."

And when the preacher turned red and coughed, to hide his confusion, his interrogator remarked in a voice that was audible through the whole hall: "I'll be durned if I don't stump him the first time."

RAMIE A FAILURE HERE.

Impossible to Grow or Manufacture It Profitably in America.

A gentleman connected with the agricultural department declares that and manufacture ramie in the United the efforts of certain parties to grow States are simply wasted. He states that the successful growing, marketing and manufacturing of ramie is a dead issue in every country except China, where it has been raised for centuries and prepared by slow and laborious hand processes for which the Celestials are famous.

He states further that millions of dollars have been spent in this country and Europe trying to invent a machine for "decordicating" ramie, but without success, and that it is too late for any one to attempt to resurrect an issue as dead as the ghost of ramie in the United States, where it has been given a fair test and proven a failure. He also states that there are many persons who are honestly misled in the matter and still think that ramie can be grown and manufactured in this country with profit and who every now and then sink their substance in enterprises engineered by persons who are similarly misled.

A Ventriloquist's Joke.

The following incident is well worth repeating and in the words of an eye witness:

"While overseeing a gang of men, who, with mule teams were hauling loads of dirt, a friend of mine—a ventriloquist—came up and stood by my side.

Presently a mule, driven by a fiery-tempered fellow, balked right in front of where we were working. The driver lost his temper and began to beat the animal. Every now and then the mule would turn his head and look reproachfully at his fellow but refused to budge.

"Now just watch him," the ventriloquist whispered in my ear.

At that moment the driver gave the animal a kick with heavy boot.

The mule turned his head and looking the man square in the face opened his mouth: "Don't you do that again."

The voice sounded as though it came direct from between the mule's parted lips.

The whip dropped from the fellow's hand. For a moment he stared at the mule, and then without a word he bolted down the street as fast as his legs could take him.

FIFTY THOUSAND PEOPLE

personally interviewed in their homes say Doan's Kidney Pills cured them. Thousands took advantage of this following free offer after it was made. Friends heard of their cure; thus came the great fame of Doan's. They realized what they promised. By their direct action on kidney structure, backache, back, hip, and loin pain is removed. The conditions causing sleeplessness, heart palpitation, headache, and nervousness passes away; swelling of the limbs and dropsy signs vanish. They correct urine with brick dust sediment, high colored, excessive, pain in passing, dribbling, and frequency. These pills dissolve and remove calculi and gravel. They are free to readers of this paper for a few days. Cut out coupon, fill address plainly, and mail Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Fortune Favors a Texan

"Having distressing pains in head, back and stomach, and being without appetite, I began to use Dr. King's New Life Pills," writes W. P. Whitehead, of Kennedale, Tex., "and soon felt like a new man." Infallible in stomach and liver troubles. Only 25c at Harr's drug store.

Speaker Henderson, finding his views in respect to treatment of trusts by reducing tariff in whole or in part, are not in accordance with views of many of his party in Iowa, has declined to accept the nomination for congress and has withdrawn from the race.

A Parson's Noble Act.

"I want all the world to know," writes Rev. C. J. Budlong, of Ashaway, R. I., "what a thoroughly good and reliable medicine I found in Electric Bitters. They cured me of jaundice and liver troubles that had caused me great suffering for many years. For a genuine, all-around cure they excel anything I ever saw." Electric Bitters are the surprise of all for their wonderful work in liver, kidney and stomach troubles. Don't fail to try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction is guaranteed by J. L. Harr.

Kanawha

From the Record:—

Harry Peters will build a large barn, getting estimates on one 42x48 feet.

Berr Crawford is here from Klemme, on a settlement with the church building committee.

Dan Holland is having a foundation laid under his billiard hall and also building on an addition.

Howard Africa, who has been publishing the Plymouth Journal, has returned to Kanawha and is connected with the Record.

Willie Hallahan, who went to Minnesota with Marion Deal, was seriously shot by the accidental discharge of a 22 calibre rifle and was brought here to the deal home for nursing. He is a relative of the Ilinga and Schroeter families, of Kansas. The boy's mother is with him. The bullet at this writing has not been removed, but he is doing reasonably well under the circumstances.

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. J. L. Harr.

Corwith

From the Hustler.

Miss Bessie Steven, a graduate of the Corwith class of '02, will teach this winter.

"Well, that's enough to try the patience of Job," exclaimed the village minister. "Why what's the matter, dear?" asks his wife. "Last Sunday I preached from the text, 'Be ye therefore steadfast,' answered the good man, "but the printer makes it read, 'Be ye there for breakfast.'"

"INCIDENTAL" MUSIC.

William Gillette Gives for It a Very Satisfactory Accounting.

People who watch theatrical performances from below the footlights have often been moved to seek an explanation for the "incidental music" which is an almost invariable accompaniment of the scenes most conveniently described as "moving." Lay theories about the purpose of this music differ widely, but lay opinion practically agrees that it is more or less of a nuisance, and that its abolition would make easier both the enjoyment and the criticism of the work of the actors. The Washington Post gave utterance to some such view the other day, and either because of the severity of the Post's language, or for some reason easy enough to imagine if one is a cynic, and therefore, since cynics are numerous, not necessary to mention, Mr. William Gillette has written to the paper mentioned a letter in which he tells just why he makes use of the antique device. He admits, in beginning, that "incidental music" needs excuse; that it is an offense to refined taste. But he continues: "I find myself in the world surrounded and to some extent harassed by its conditions. An audience, no matter how deeply interested or absorbed it may become, is unable to maintain absolute quiet. The individuals composing it must breathe; they must occasionally move or cough or gasp, or shuffle their feet, or rustle programmes, or make other involuntary disturbances. In the performance of my own plays I am in the habit of resorting largely to the effects of natural pauses, intervals of silence—of moments where few words are spoken and much mental struggle is supposed to take place. These methods I find especially effective at the most critical junctures. It is precisely at such moments that an intensely absorbed audience will be utterly demoralized by the least individual disturbance in its midst. Now a low, scarcely audible strain of music seems to prevent such a catastrophe. While it by no means drowns other sounds, it tends if in harmony with the situation on the stage to keep the attention from being diverted. I therefore resort to it. To speak in somewhat plain terms, if there is to be a noise during some of my especially critical scenes, I prefer to make it myself and have it somewhat, if not entirely, harmonize with the matter in hand." That, it must be granted, says the New York Times, is a pretty good explanation. It comes from behind the foot lights, at any rate, and therefore is of interest and possibly of value.

A man in a neighboring town who took a city paper in preference to a country paper because he got more paper for the money, was attracted by the advertisement of a fire escape which would be forwarded on receipt of $2. He sent the cash and in a few days received a copy of the New Testament.

GREAT OIL FIELD IS ALL ABLAZE

Flames Set by a Passing Engine Communicated to Spindle Top.

PACKING PLANTS IN A MERGER

Great Meat Interests of the Entire Country Will Be Consolidated September 27 if Present Plans Work—Second Only to Steel Trust in Point of Magnitude.

Beaumont, Tex., Sept. 12.—Between 3 and 4 o 'clock yesterday afternoon the oil running under the trestle of the Sabine and East Texas railway near the loading tracks of the Palestine Beaumont Oil company on Spindle Top, was ignited by sparks from a passing engine, and about 60 feet of the trestle were burned away.

Last evening the fire was in some way communicated to the field and a number of huge settling tanks, containing thousands of barrels of petroleum, have already exploded and others are reported as being in the direct line of the fire, which has spread over a wide area already.

The ground is saturated with oil, and there is no chance for stopping the progress of the flames at present.

The fire is spreading rapidly, and it is feared the whole field will be ignited before daylight.

A telephone message from Gladys, which is the station at the oil fields, says the whole of the Keith-Ward tract, embracing several acres and containing a large number of wells, has been burned over and it is believed that some of the wells have caught, though this is not as yet positively determined, as no one can approach to find out.

At 1 o'clock this morning the big tanks belonging to the Higgins company were burning.

Runners have been sent out in every direction for the men who own them or represent the companies.

The telephone service is entirely inadequate to care for the scores of calls and the streets are filled with people, thousands of them now on the way to the fields in every sort of vehicle and on foot.

A statement issued yesterday shows that there are 410 producing wells in the field, some of which are buried under earth to safeguard against fire.

At 1:30 this (Friday) morning the telegraph operator at Gladys says he fears he will be compelled to leave his post and all means of communication will be cut off.

The workmen on the hill are standing about, unable to do anything even toward protecting that portion of the field which is not yet on fire.

Beaumont, Tex., Sept. 13.—The fire in the oil field has burned itself out and there are only four wells and two tanks burning. One of the wells is a big gusher and there will be much trouble experienced in extinguishing it. The smaller wells can be easily handled, as the fire is principally fed by gas. The oil is being drawn from the tanks as rapidly as possible and they will probably burn themselves out in a few hours. There is a large force of workmen on the ground and a spread of the fire can now be checked.

The loss caused by the fire is variously estimated. The lowest figures place the total loss at about $75,000. From this it ranges up to $250,000.

The fire was started by the carelessness of a workman, who went into a tank partly filled with oil with a lighted lantern. An explosion of gas followed which ignited the oil. The man escaped.

PACKING MERGER A FACT.

Great Meat Interests to Be Consolidated September 27.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—The Record-Herald says:

The long expected merger of the great meat packing interests of the United States will go into active and open operation Saturday, September 27, unless there should be an entirely unlooked for change in the plans agreed upon by all those concerned in the deal at a meeting held here today.

An industrial combination second only to the steel trust in point of magnitude and importance is therefore practically an accomplished fact.

Reports concerning the actual terms of the consolidation differ. The most reliable light shed upon the subject is that the new packing combine is to be capitalized at the rate of twenty-five times the earnings of constituent companies. For example, Cudahy & Co., are said to have earned about $820,000 in 1901, which would make their share of the capital stock of the merger $21,000,000. A 4 per cent dividend that the consolidation might be expected to declare would amount to $840,000 on this lot of stock—approximately its legitimate earnings.

On the basis of capitalization Armour and Co. will receive $200,000,000 in the new securities in exchange for their business. Swift & Co. will receive $50,000,000, and the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger company would receive $26,000,000.

It is said that it is the undoubted determination of the consolidated meat interests to control all of the packing houses and stock yards of the country and save every possible dollar in the cost of manufacturing and distribution.

ORDERED TO PANAMA.

Battleships Wisconsin and Cincinnati Sent to Central America.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Secretary Moody telegraphed to the commanders of the battleship Wisconsin, now at Bremerton, and the cruiser Cincinnati, at Cape Haytien, directing them to proceed as soon as possible to the Isthmus of Panama, the Wisconsin reinforcing the Ranger at Panama and the Cincinnati taking the station at Colon.

It will take the Wisconsin fully twenty days to make the long trip of over 4,000 miles down the Pacific coast to Panama. The navy department had intended to send the Boston which is now getting ready for service at San Francisco, to relieve or reinforce the Ranger, but the alarming situation which has so quickly arisen on the isthmus prompted the officials to take more extensive measures to increase the naval representation of the United States in that section.

The Cincinnati will only consume four days in her trip across from Cape Haytien, so that the first part of next week she should have reached the terminal of the railroad.

HAPPENINGS IN HAWKEYEDOM

What Has Been Going on During the Past Week.

FIND LEAD NEAR DES MOINES

Important Discovery of Galena Ore Announced By a Des Moines Capitalist—Reports of Damage to Corn By Frosts in Northern Iowa.

Des Moines, Sept. 15.—Lead has been discovered within twenty-five miles of Des Moines—and it is believed in paying quantities. Des Moines capitalists have taken a lease of the land and if prospecting to be carried on supports the surface indications as to the extent and richness of the vein, it is their intention to work the deposit.

A Des Moines capitalist who is interested in the project has in his possession several specimens of lead taken from the tract. One of them is twice as large as a man's fist and almost pure. A number of other pieces are in the shape of cubes from an inch to three inches square. The gentleman said: "The specimens I have here I dug up on this place within the last week. It is within twenty-five miles of this city and I am satisfied lead exists on this property in considerable quantities. Lead has been found in paying quantities only in the northeast part of the state, but traces have been found in numerous localities over the state. The traces found are generally pellets, known as 'water wash.' They are always round, showing the action of the water and the fact that they have been carried long distances. Where lead is found in paying quantities it is taken out of limerock as cubes. The specimens I have here I dug up from the surface with a shovel One hole we put down would indicate a vein of ore about four feet in thickness. I could not say what the extent is, but the formation and the development of other fields would indicate that it extends over a very considerable area.

"No, I cannot give the locality of the find at this time. We have not made all our arangements for the control of the property. We have a portion of the ground under lease, but we want a firmer hold upon it before we will reveal the locality. It is in a locality where no one has suspected the existence of lead until very recently."

CORN HURT BY FROST.

Report of Damage in the Northern Part of the State.

Des Moines, Sept. 15.—Reports received from over the state would indicate that serious damage was done to corn in the extreme northwestern parts of the state by the heavy frost of Saturday morning. Reports from Ruthven, Estherville, Charles City, Sibley, Rock Rapids and Sioux City and from all over Minnesota and South Dakota and considerable portions of Nebraska received by grain men are to the effect the frosts injured the growing corn crop and that, while the quantity of the yield will not be decreased, the quality will be poor. It will make the corn chaffy and detract from its value for both milling and feeding purposes. Reports from along the Missouri river in the west part of the state were also discouraging and, while not as bad as those from the extreme northern counties, would indicate considerable damage.

The Rock Island's reports from all stations on its main line and the branches in the south part of the state were to the effect that, while there were frosts that killed lighter vegetation, there was no damage to corn except to fields on the extreme low ground or that were planted late and that do not average up with the bulk of the crop. From north of the city Rock Island reports are not discouraging except from the stations on the extreme north ends of the Ruthven and Sibley divisions and along the Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern division. These all indicate corn damage and several stations reported that the weather was so cold that ice formed.

INDIANOLA GETS CONFERENCE.

Des Moines Lost the Day at Jefferson By a Close Vote.

Jefferson, Sept. 15.—At the Des Moines conference of the M. E. church here it was voted to hold the next conference at Indianola. Emory Miller nominated Indianola as the location for the next conference, while Dr. Storms invited it to the First Methodist church of Des Moines. The vote was close, Indianola winning by ten majority.

L. M. Mann of Des Moines addressed the conference in the interest of the Methodist hospital of Des Moines. In the past year it has cared for 1,008 cases; it has forty beds; one-fifth of the cases are free. It has property worth $60,000, pledges of $30,000 and is $30,000 in debt. A new building for 100 beds, costing about $50,000, is to be erected.

HUNT FOR PRESIDENT.

Organize to Find Man to Succeed President Beardshear.

Ames, Sept. 13.—At the meeting of the board of trustees of the college a committee was appointed to make a search for a proper person for president of the college. The committee consists of J. B. Hungeford, A. B. Cummins, C. I. Barclay, W. O. McElroy and W. J. Dixon. The committee has instructions merely to make investigation as to the fitness of candidates or persons considered available and to report in the discretion of the committee. This means that the committee will have the matter under its full control until such time as it may see fit to report. The committee will take time and probably not make any report for several months.

Walked Into Jaws of Death.

Sumner, Sept. 11.—An unknown man committed suicide at this place by throwing himself under the wheels of a Northwestern train. He was seen to come from under a bridge, walk in front of the train and deliberately throw himself on the track. There was nothing on his person to identify him. His hat band contained the name of C. M. Reed, but this is not believed to be his real name.

Shooting on Steamboat.

Burlington, Sept. 12.—Two colored employes got into a quarrel on the steamer Sidney over a game of craps. One, a watchman named Foster, was shot, a roustabout named Steve Robinson seriously injuring him. Both are in jail in Fort Madison, Iowa. Robinson has a wife in St. Louis

LEWIS NOT GUILTY.

Was on Trial for Murder of Peterson Children.

Des Moines, Sept. 12.—Thomas Lewis accused of the murder of Lena Peterson, was discharged by Justice Aylesworth yesterday afternoon. The court announced that evidence against the young man was not such as to warrant binding him over to the grand jury.

Lewis went on the stand in his own behalf, and his mother and sister supported his statement that he was in bed before 8:35 o'clock of the night of the murder. The state had proved that the murder was committed about 9:15 o'clock.

Detectives Brothers and McNutt disputed the testimony given by Gordon Bowlby to the effect that there were tracks leading in a semi-circle from the scene of the murder to the rear of the Lewis houses.

Justice Aylesworth overruled the motion of the attorney for the defendant to dismiss the case when the prosecution had rested. He wished to hear the evidence as to the whereabouts of the defendant the night of the murder and as to the tracks said to lead toward his home.

Lewis and his family were highly elated by the decision of the court, and went home together to have a jubilee. Thomas Lewis himself was relieved because he has been the victim of gossip ever since the murder on account of the circumstances to which the state witnesses testified. He regards this preliminary as the end of the proceedings against him.

The city authorities are much disappointed over the case because it revealed not a scintilla of evidence in addition to that long ago secured by them. They had hoped, at least, to acquire some information that would be helpful in the further investigation of the case from the testimony elicited at the Lewis hearing.

HORACE BOIES NOMINATED.

He is Named for Congress Against Henderson.

Dubuque, Sept. 12.—Horace Boies was nominated for congress at the Third district democratic convention here yesterday. No platform was adopted, Mr. Boies being deemed a platform in himself, as he wrote practically all of the recent state platform. In his letter of acceptance he will define the issues upon which the campaign will be fought.

L. F. Springer of Independence was chairman of the convention, which was enthusiastic and harmonious. Democrats out of the party councils for years were present yesterday, and the opinion was very general that the former governor will defeat Henderson.

M. J. WADE NAMED.

Unanimous Choice of Second Congressional Convention.

Iowa City, Sept. 11.—The democrats of the Second district met in convention yesterday and nominated Martin J. Wade for congress. Henry Vollmer of Davenport presented the name of Judge Wade and when the roll was called all of the counties voted for the judge, who made a brief address accepting the nomination. Irving B Richman was chosen chairman and in his speech declared the party in line for victory and made an appeal for the democrats to use every effort to insure success at the polls. The resolutions adopted expressed an endorsement of the state platform and an appreciation of the rights of the laboring man. A reasonable expenditure for public buildings and other improvements of public necessity, and a just constitutional tax on the incomes of individuals and corporations as the most equitable method of raising revenue for the support of the government were endorsed.

LIKE RATS IN A TRAP.

Children Locked in While the Flames Nearly Smothered Them.

Fort Dodge, Sept. 11.—With the mother away and her three small children locked up in the house, fire broke out in the home of Mrs. Michael Kahout. The little ones screamed with terror and a passerby heard them. He rushed to the back yard and broke in the door with an ax, bringing them out just as the entire roof broke into a mass of flames. The children were not burned, though nearly smothered to death. Their mother had gone calling across the river and left them locked in a room with a hot fire in the stove.

Ed Carns May Yet Escape.

Sioux City, Sept. 11.—The posse in search of Ed Carns, the slayer of Sheriff Strain of Monona county, is making little better progress in the pursuit. Carns was tracked to the Winnebago reservation where it was thought he would be surrounded and captured. However, the officers have failed to bring about his capture and he may yet make good his escape.

It Was Nearly a Murder.

Fort Dodge, Sept. 11.—Because his broadax glanced, Shorty Prime, a carpenter, escaped being charged with murder. Prime became enraged at Andy June, a colored hostler, and struck at him twice with a broadax sharp as a razor. The ax cut a tuft of black kinky wool off June's head and made a deep gash three inches in width in his neck.

Claim He Doped the Beer.

Newton, Sept. 11.—Henry Callison is held in jail here upon a charge of drugging and robbing an old soldier named Burton, who was attending the Jasper County fair. It is alleged that Callison got Burton drunk and drugged his beer, then relieved him of $20.

CHAPTER II.

The Storm Bursts.

There was a cloud hanging over the distant mountain peak, and occasionally the low muttering of far-off thunder could be heard, but it did not disturb the young pleasure seekers, who had come out from Fresno, California, to have a good time. One tall, graceful girl whose golden hair and deep blue eyes would have attracted any beholder, was standing in the shadow of a tree, whither she had wandered alone. She took very little interest in the sports of her youthful companions, no more youthful, however, than herself. As she strolled under the shades of the pines her pale blue parasol half concealed a face that was exquisite in its loveliness.

"Oh, Laura, why are you alone?" asked a pretty, dark-eyed girl leaning on the arm of her lover as she passed. "There are plenty of young fellows who would be glad to take Paul's place. Shall I tell them they can?"

"Thank you, Nellie; I do not want them," while a faint smile flitted over her face.

At this moment another couple passed where the three stood, their faces half hidden behind a pink embrella. Nellie, smiling, said:

"There goes Clarence and Nellie Bush. People say they are to be married in the spring and start for the Klondike."

Laura sighed and her little friend went on. The gaze of Laura Kean was now riveted on Clarence Berry and Ethel Bush. The rumor that they were going to that strange, far-off northern country awakened in her mind a new interest in them. Ethel Bush was one of her dearest friends, and Clarence and Paul had been boys together.

As Clarence and Ethel sat in the shade of a tree, they built anew their air castles amid the glaciers and icebergs of the frozen north.

"I hope I don't intrude," said a sweet, silver-like voice, and, looking up, they beheld their friend Laura Kean standing near, a smile on her pretty face. "My excuse for coming is to discuss your intended journey to the Klondike. I have heard you are going in the early spring."

"We have so decided," Clarence Berry answered.

"And if agreeable I have decided to accompany you."

Ethel Bush was delighted, and declared if they could find a preacher in Alaska the wedding would be celebrated in the frozen north. The three sat on the green and planned and talked with increasing enthusiasm, and Laura, with her pretty face beaming with happiness, arose, left the lovers to themselves, while she strolled down the grove, that her mind might conjure up her lover's joy and surprise at meeting her in those faraway regions.

Unconsciously she strolled deep into the wood and was lost to the sight of her friends, when a footstep near caused her to start in surprise if not alarm. Before her stood a young man of twenty-eight, with a pale cast of countenance and keen blue eye. He was of a figure that might have been called handsome, but to Laura Kean he was repulsive. She gave him a glance and gasped:

"Mr. Lackland!"

Theodore Lackland had followed Laura to this picnic and into this wood with a set purpose in his heart. He was wealthy, a young man of good family and reputed ability, but a man of firm and fixed purposes. To accomplish an end he would go to almost any limit. He had known Paul Miller long before he set off for the Klondike and hated him because he loved Laura Kean. Why should this beautiful girl, the only woman whom he had ever loved, prefer this rude, penniless country boy to himself?

Mr. Lackland failed to realize what so many have in this life—that it is the soul that attracts and not the face and figure. There is no freemasonry so subtle as the freemasonry of the soul.

"I am pleased to see you happy, Miss Kean," he said. "There has always been something wrong with me, and while others are happy I am sad."

"Surely it is a morbid fancy," said Laura. The light was dying out in her eyes. She made one quick downward look at the path, as if wishing to pass him. He observed her glance and said:

"No, no, Laura, wait a moment; I have something of great importance to say to you, which I must say now.

"I have just been told that you have decided to go to Alaska in the spring." He looked earnestly into the girl's glowing face, and added, with deliberation:

"Laura, there are reasons why you should not undertake such a journey."

"What reasons?"

"A million natural obstacles are in the way."

"If Ethel Bush can go, why not I?"

He did not answer immediately, but stood at the side of the path carelessly kicking the leaves with the toe of his boot. At last he answered:

"Laura, if your love had been a great love, you must have read my secret, just as I have read yours." In a low tone he continued: "Long ago I knew that you loved, or thought you loved Paul Miller. I saw it before he did—even before you realized it."

The red glow covered her cheeks more deeply than before. She was silent, and he was tramping nervously backward and forward. Then he went on rapidly in a tone of irritation. "Laura, I understand you. It is not for a rude man like this Alaskan miner to do so." Then in an eager voice he said: "Dearest, I bring you a love undreamed of among such low creatures."

"Low creatures!" she hissed, almost breathlessly.

His cheeks quivered; his lips trembled; his voice swelled, while his nervous fingers were riveted to his palm. He approached her and took her hand. She seemed benumbed by the feeling. She stood as one transfixed, a slow paralysis of surprise taking hold of her faculties. But at his touch her senses regained their mastery. She flung away his hand. Her breast heaved. In a voice charged with indignation she said:

"So this is what you mean! I understand you at last!"

Theodore Lackland fell back a pace.

"Laura, hear me—hear me again."

But she had found her voice at last.

"Sir, you have outraged my feelings as much as if I was at this moment Paul Miller's wife!"

Theodore Lackland felt his self-control rapidly slipping away, and in the height of his passion said:

"You shall never marry Paul Miller, Laura Kean! I swear it! I hold your fate and his in my hand, and have more ways of crushing you than you imagine. Be sensible; recall your insulting words, and do not throw yourself away on that impecunious ne'er-do-well—a hulking brute, made for a pick-ax and shovel——"

"Enough!" she cried. "I would rather marry a plow-boy than such a 'gentleman' as you!"

Face to face, eye to eye, with panting breath and scornful looks, there they stood for one moment; then Laura, without a word, swung about and walked away to where her friends were preparing to return to town.

The features of Theodore Lackland underwent a frightful change. The gathering thunder cloud was not more black than his face. He raised his clenched fist to heaven and cursed his rival, heedless of the rolling thunder and on-coming storm.

"It is a long way to the Klondike," he finally muttered, while the smile of a devil flitted over his face; "but, great as the distance is, he will feel my power, and so shall she."

A heavy peal of thunder and the falling of rain roused him to the fact that the little excursion had all gone, leaving him alone in the wood and storm. He hurried to where his horse and buggy were, and, leaping in, drove furiously to town. He took the train that night to San Francisco and spent a whole day in consultation with two ill-favored looking men.

In a few weeks Laura had forgotten the unpleasant scene with the wealthy Mr. Lackland. She was busy preparing for the journey in the spring.

It was the last of February, and on the next day Laura was to draw her money from the savings bank and put it in the hands of a friend to secure her a passage and outfit for the Klondike. Late in the afternoon she saw a great crowd of men on the street talking in an excited manner, and a moment later Mr. O'Bourne, the butcher, came running toward her, wringing his hands.

"What is the matter, Mr. O'Bourne?" she asked.

"We are ruined, Miss Kean; we are ruined. The savings bank has failed; can't pay a cent!"

She grew dizzy and clutched at the door for support. Quickly all her bright dreams of surprising her lover vanished.

Mrs. Miller consoled her with the assurance that the loss would be made up by the great fortune Paul was taking from the Klondike. A few days later she learned that the bank had been wrecked by Mr. Tom Harris, the cashier, speculating on San Francisco Board of Trade. Later came the whisper that Harris had fled to avoid arrest, but before going had confessed his crime, and said that he was induced by Mr. Lackland to speculate. He went on the wrong side of the market and was ruined.

The evening post brought Laura a letter. It was addressed in the well-beloved hand of Paul Miller. But there was something in the chirography to alarm her. It was in a scrawling, feeble hand, and with many misgivings she broke the seal and glanced at the contents. Then, with face ashen white, she shrieked:

"Wounded, robbed, ruined!" and fell senseless to the floor.

Ethel Bush, learning of her friend's trouble, hastened to see Laura, who sank so rapidly under the double blow that she was confined to her bed.

Ethel tried to console her.

"Don't worry, dear. We shall soon be with Paul, and if I find him I will nurse him back to health, and Clarence will defend him if he is attacked until he is able to defend himself."

"Will you take a message to him from me, Ethel?"

"Yes, dear, a thousand."

"Warn him, Ethel; warn him!"

"Of whom or what shall I warn him, dear?"

"Of Theodore Lackland. He is our evil genius."

"I fear you wrong Mr. Lackland."

"No, no; he threatened me last autumn when we were up the valley to the picnic. I forgot it at the time, but it is all very fresh and vivid to my mind now."

Ethel remained with her for over two hours and spoke encouragingly, then left, urging her to recover her strength and spirits in time for the wedding.

For downright luck and pluck the bridal trip of Clarence Berry was without parallel. On the day he and sweet Ethel Bush were married they were poor in everything but luck, pluck and faith in their future. Their wordly possessions consisted of just enough to pay their passage to San Francisco, thence to Juneau, and on to Forty-Mile Camp, and provide themselves with the necessary stores for a year.

On the 15th they were married at the pretty little church in Fresno, and their friends in great numbers gathered about them to congratulate them and bid them a tearful adieu.

Next day the bride and groom took their departure for San Francisco. Laura imprinted a kiss on the young bride's lips and whispered:

"Give it to him! Oh, I wish I could go with you!"

They went to San Francisco, where they met the remainder of their party bound for the Klondike. Among the party was a tall young fellow named Dick Ronald, from Seattle, who from his height soon acquired the soubriquet of Long Dick. There were half a dozen other men, some young and some middle-aged, but Ethel was the only lady in the party bound for the frozen north.

The voyage and journey to Juneau was made without any unusual discomfort, but from that on it became perilous and every mile marked with danger.

They engaged some Indians as guides and an Esquimaux with the euphonious name of Umstich, which Long Dick translated for convenience into "Hemstitch."

Umstitch was engaged as a sort of general superintendent of the dogs and sleds, of which they had several to convey themselves and packs across the bleak, white deserts, the dog being the only animal capable of making those journeys in all weather.

The accommodations for the young bride were poor, but Clarence did the very best he could for her. They carried a stove and tent, and every night the latter was pitched in some spot where the snow was hard. Beds of boughs were made, and Ethel was wrapped in furs until there was little chance for her to suffer from cold. She rode all the way from Juneau to the mining camp well muffled in bear-skin robes and furs, strapped on a sled or boat as the case might be, and while this method of travel was much better than walking, the uncertainty of her position made it anything but comfortable.

CHAPTER III.

Paul's Discovery.

It is essential at this point in our story to return to the Klondike. It is again night, and the little camp on the densely wooded stream is wild with excitement and confusion. Men were hurrying to and fro and giving utterance to angry exclamations. Among the most excited was our old friend Gid Myers. Gid had a rope in his hand, and was gesticulating wildly toward a cabin that had been erected on the banks of the stream, around which stood four or five men with rifles in their hands.

No wonder the gold-diggers were excited. A terrible crime had been committed in their little community. It was the first that had ever been known on the Klondike, and these hardy frontiersmen felt like wreaking vengeance upon the perpetrators.

"I tell ye, boys, we ought to make a holy example o' that precious rascal in yonder shanty. We have found gold here by the million o' dollars, an' when we thought we had an honest community four thieves pounce upon us, rob one o' us, an' almost kill him. Now let's hang the feller Crack Lash wounded."

"Wait, boys," cautioned Glum Ralston, who had listened to the harrangue of Gid Myers. "This chap what got a little more lead in his skin than he calkerlated on ain't goin' t' git away. I tell ye that robbery warn't done by accident. It warn't planned in a minnit neither——"

"Now yer shoutin', comrade," put in a grizzled veteran.

DAMAGE DONE BY LOCUSTS.

Seventeen-Year Specimens Have Begun Their Work.

The 17-year locusts are beginning to show what real damage they can do. When they first appeared in numbers in parts of Maryland a few weeks ago the farmers charged them with but very little damage; now the residents' tune has changed, and all about you can hear them saying: "The locusts are ruining my snade and fruit trees." According to the farmers, the greatest damage being done by the locusts is to the limbs of trees. After the locust emerges from the ground it at once makes for the body of the tree, and sticks upon it until ready to emerge from its shell, which is exactly the shape of the insect, legs and all. The shell breaks lengthwise of the locust, from the middle of the back to the head. Out of this opening the locust comes forth as white as a sheet. It immediately begins to crawl to the trunk of a tree. It is not long before it begins to get darker in color, until within a few hours it becomes almost black, with the exception of the body and the eyes, which remain a reddish brown. As soon as they turn dark they proceed to the extreme ends of the trees where they do the damage. The female's sting kills the branches. Chickens, dogs and sparrows are making short work of the insects when they come in contact with them. The crops in the fields have not suffered as yet.

His Compromise.

A Boston young man fitting for Harvard has just gone up pin Maine in the capacity of bellboy in a summer hotel. He says in a letter to me: "I answered a call on the third floor. The man said, 'Have you any funeral bouquet cigars?'

"'No, sir.'

"'Have you any graveyard whiffs, then?'

"'No, sir.'

"Well, for heaven's sake, what have you got?'

"'We have some nice spring water sir,' I replied.

"'Bring me some,' he said briefly, and I did so. He tipped me a dime. Up here they all like spring water.'

In Doubt.

"Oh, Jack, have you seen father?"

"Yes; I have come straight here from his office."

"And did he give his consent?"

"I couldn't quite make out. He seemed disinclined to commit himself definitely."

"Why, what did he say?"

"He didn't say anything at all."

"Did you ask him?"

"I said, 'Sir, I wish to marry your daughter. Have I your consent?' And he turned, and looked at me a minute. Then he began to grow red in the face, and then he grabbed me and threw me over the banisters, and before I could ask him again he had slammed his door and locked it; but he didn't say anything either way."

Looked at Both Sides.

Two workmen were digging up the street in front of the home of ex-Police Inspector Steers, so that the water pipes might be repaired, says the New York Times. One morning Mr. Steers accosted one of the men with:

"I say, Pat, don't you wish you were getting $5 a day for that work?"

"No, Inshpector, I do not. Think av the money I'd be losin' whin I'd be takin' me day off!"

MRS. SADIE E. KOCH.

"I suffered for months with troubles peculiar to women which gradually broke down my health and my very life. I was nearly insane with pain at times, and no human skill I consulted in Milwaukee could bring me relief.

"My attention was called to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; the first bottle brought relief, and the second bottle an absolute cure. I could not believe it myself, and felt sure it was only temporary, but blessed fact, I have now been well for a year, enjoy the best of health, and cannot in words express my gratitude. Instant Relief from Rheumatism and Neuralgia.

Here is a case: Mr. T. Shepherd of Whitburn, Sunderland, Ohio, says: "My wife suffered severely from rheumatism, and neuralgia. She could not get one moment's rest and was nearly crazed with pain. Obtained instant relief and a permanent cure by using the contents of one bottle of St. Jacobs Oil. There is no other remedy in the world that will do this. The instantaneous effect which St. Jacobs Oil produces is a part of its half a century record." St. Jacobs Oil is sold in 25 cts. and 50 cts. sizes by all druggists. The words "Acts like Magic," "Conquers Pain," which have been used in connection with St. Jacobs Oil for more than 50 years are wonderfully and truly descriptive.

Mrs. Benham—"Half the world doesn't know how the other half lives." Benham—"Then half the world must be unmarried men." Mrs. Benham—"What makes you think so." Benham—"If they were married men their wives would find out and tell them."

Sir Augustus Lackcash (to tailor)—"My son tells me that you have allowed him to run a bill for three years. I have, therefore, come—" "Oh, pray, Sir Augustus, there is really no hurry." Sir Augustus Lackcash—"I know that, and, therefore, I have come to tell you that in future I want to get my clothes from you, too."

"I shall never permit myself to become a household drudge," said the young woman; "I shall endeavor to improve my mind." "That is a good idea," answered Miss Cayenne; "but don't let your literary pursuits monopolize you. Remember, there are times when currant jelly appeals to a man a gret deal more than current fiction."

"These teachers," growls the first man, "have no mercy on the young minds entrusted to their care." "What have they done now?" asks the second man. "Why," my boy came home yesterday in a state of collapse because his teacher insists upon his telling her how many times the Philippine war was ended in 1901."

In Bed Three Months.

Oolitic, Ind., Sept. 15.—Mr. W. A. Terry of this place suffered for months with a very severe case of Kidney Trouble.

He was so very bad that he was almost confined to his bed for three months.

He tried many medicines but he could not get any relief till he commenced to use a remedy introduced here some time ago as a cure for Kidney Trouble, the name of which is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Terry says that the second day after commencing to use this remedy he could notice a very marked improvement in his condition and in a short time he was able to go about again.

He is naturally filled with gratitude to Dodd's Kidney Pills for the immense amount of good they have done him and says:

"I would recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to every sufferer from kidney or bladder trouble, for from experience I am sure they are the best medicine to be had for all diseases of this nature."

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, 1902.

A. U. Swan, assistant secretary of the executive council, has completed the certification of telephone and telegraph companies for the present year to the state, and for the first time is being kept of the footings line and by counties, so that it is possible to secure the total of the assessment. It is found that the total valuation for telephone and telegraph lines for the year was $1,542,82[illegible].

State Labor Commissioner E. D. Brigham, who has returned from Keokuk and Fort Madison, where he was engaged in inspection last week, says he found a general disposition among owners to comply with the factory laws of the state governing the management of these institutions. The only instance of serious omission which Mr. Brigham found was the lack of fire escapes, but wherever owners were found to be at fault in this failure they expressed a willingness to comply with the law. Sanitary improvements were recommended, and owners were advised to arrange all child employes' schedules so as to be assured that the compulsory education laws of the state would be enforced to the letter.

Recent events more than passing interest have attracted the eyes of the nation to the state, and "Des Moines" is frequently heard in connection, and the names very frequently heard in connection with interesting state affairs. Fact Iowa is an important factor in insurance legislation, local point, so to speak, and Des Moines is particular is she an important factor in more than one way in her Life Insurance legislation. This is eminently true of Des Moines, the "Hartford of the West," whose progressive companies are forging rapidly to the front, the remarkable being the National Life Trust Co., now doing business in twenty states. The phenomenal business done by this aggressive company is exciting the wonder of the insurance world. The agency force has been augmented by the addition of a large number of successful life men in the field, and their presence is already felt in a good increase of business.

Special inquiry in cheap northwest lands, demand for money from farmers with which to stock, and from merchants which to discount bills for stock being received, is cutting deposits of Iowa banks at a terrible rate. The statement of the Des Moines Clearing House association, of which all but three Des Moines banks, the State Savings, Valley and Iowa State, are members, shows that compared with a year ago deposits in local clearing houses have fallen off $3,249,457. The three clearing house statements with comparisons are as follows:

|---|---|
| 1902 | $17,619,451.36 |
| 1901 | 18,170,189.62 |
| Aug. 11, 1902 | 16,901,935.16 |
| Saber 8, 1902 | 15,664,278.43 |

The last call for reports from Iowa state and savings banks, made June 18, showed that since the preceding call of May 5, deposits had decreased in the state $1,423,913.45. The July call of national banks in the state showed a corresponding decrease in deposits.

The Western Union Telegraph company has commenced the use of girls in its Des Moines office for messenger service. Five girls have been employed, furnished with messenger's books and started on the work of delivering messages. These were secured in response to an advertisement offering employment to ten girls over the age of sixteen years. It is the intention to add at least five more girls to the force. The decision to employ girl messengers in Des Moines is the result of an experiment made with them in Chicago at the time of the strike of the messenger boys. It was found that they did the work in the Chicago field so admirably that it has been decided to try them at all points where trouble has been experienced in securing boy messengers.

Harry Lloyd was arrested on a charge of assault with intent to commit great bodily injury on the 2-year-old baby of I. N. Thompson of Dallas Center. Mrs. Lloyd was not arrested, but an information was prepared by the humane officer in which she is charged with assault and battery on the child. The baby, which is able to stand, but hardly able to talk, was found by the father at the Lloyd home covered with bruises. The child's eyes were blackened, the left cheek was black and blue, the left ear was rapidly turning black, the right cheek was marked with black and blue streaks, the left side of the head was covered by small bruises, which had bled at one time; the scalp seemed puffed out, the left leg had been cut below the knee, the front of the legs were covered with black and blue marks and the back was a solid black and blue except in streaks which were black. Some blows had brought blood, apparently, for there were scabs, one being clear across the back. Lloyd's bonds were fixed at $800 and he was unable to give them. He was lodged in the county jail. The case is before Judge Silvera. Mrs. Lloyd has four children, one of whom is not at home, and one of whom, a baby, is sick. The humane officer decided not to place her under arrest before her arraignment, and then she will be permitted to return home until her trial. Mrs. Mrs. Lloyd is a half-sister of Mrs. Thompson, who recently deserted her husband.

"Our political situation," complains the first citizen, "is scandalous. I believe there is a nigger in the wood-pile somewhere." "That may very well be," answers the second citizen, "no doubt the colored gentleman is waiting for a job whitewashing as soon as an investigation is had."

"And you really think that the political boss of your party is a greater man than Henry Clay!" "Well," answered the candidate, "I won't exactly say he's greater. But he has a great deal more influence with the people with whom I am doing business at present.

A very poor sort of man may be wealthy if he has the money.

"Well, did she buy the book?" "No," relied the clerk; "she said she didn't like the cover design."

"Is the manager up to date?" "Up to date! Why he's just introduced a game of ping-pong in the balcony scene in 'Rome and Juliet'!"

Angry mother—"Now, Bobby, don't let me speak to you again!" Bobby (helplessly)—"How can I prevent you, mamma?"

Mrs. Slumkin—"The Werdey baby is the picture of her father." Mr. Slumkin—"I suppose that when the child is a little older she will be the phonograph of her mother."

The chief burden of a woman's life is her neighbors.

THE HOMESTEAD CASE.

Commissioner Is Directed to Proceed With the Sale.

Des Moines, Sept. 11.—A supplemental and final decree was filed yesterday in the famous Homestead case entitled Samuel F. Stewart vs. James M. Pierce et al., and growing out of controversies which arose in the management of the Homestead paper. The original decree in the case, ordering the sale of the Homestead, which had been turned over by the court to a commissioner, was filed with the clerk of the supreme court on the last day of the May term of court. The supplemental decree, signed by Judge Ladd, and acompanied by the stipulation agreed upon and filed by the attorneys in the suit, was filed yesterday forenoon with the clerk.

It directs that the commissioner in charge of the Homestead property shall proceed with the sale at once, providing that after the sale the business of the company shall be kept going under the commissioner until the sale and deed are approved and the property can be properly turned over to the purchaser, and also providing pending confirmation of the sale the purchaser shall have the right to possession of the property jointly with the commissioner upon payment of the bid he has made.

CARNS TO BAD LANDS.

It Is Thought He Applied for Refreshments at Sioux City Home.

Sioux City, Sept. 15.—A stranger who applied at the home of Jacob I. Lewis in Cole addition for refreshments about is now thought to have been Ed Carns and a new condition has presented itself in the pursuit of the murderer of Sheriff Strain. The man had his right hand bandaged and explained that it had been hurt in a threshing machine. His description tallies with that of Carns, except that he wore a coat and Carns was without one. However, he might easily have obtained one from his friends on the reservation. He also carried a gun. After he had gone Mr. Lewis looked up the description of Carns and became convinced that the murderer had just left him. He thought Carns is making for the Black Lands in South Dakota. The posse have been unable to find any trace of him from the time he was seen at the Lewis house.

BIG FIRE AT ACKLEY

Several Buildings Were Completely Destroyed.

Ackley, Sept. 12.—A fire which broke out at 2 o'clock a. m. in the pool and billiard hall owned by Robloff, destroyed several buildings and did damage amounting to $30,000 before the flames were conquered.

The fire was discovered at an early hour. It had gained such headway that the volunteer fire department had hard work to get it under control. The origin is unknown. Two of the buildings destroyed were empty. The total loss will exceed $30,000, with insurance about half that sum. The principal losers were Lamm's harness shop, Chinese laundry, Andrew Anderson's store, Saucer's marble shop and Robloff's billiard hall.

DR. COFFEE EXPLAINS

His Method of Restoring Sight to the Blind.

He tells how people afflicted with cataracts, glaucoma, optic nerve disease, and blindness from any cause may have their sight restored at home. He has published the third edition of his eighty page book on the "Eye and Its Diseases," that he will send to all who write him.

In a letter to this paper, Dr. Coffee, the noted oculist of Des Moines, who is creating such a sensation by the wonderful cures of blindness from cataracts, and other eye diseases, states that he has just published the third edition of his book on "The Eye and Its Diseases." He will send this book free to every reader of this paper who will write to him. This book shows the eye with all its different diseases. Its colored photographs show diseased and blind eyes look. It explains how Dr. Coffee originated the wonderful Absorption Treatment, how people afflicted with cataracts and all forms of eye diseases can cure themselves of these afflictions at home at a very small expense. It gives the names and addresses of hundreds of people who have been restored to sight by his remedies.

Write Dr. Coffee a postal card today for this book, and mention this paper. Address, Dr. W. O. Coffee, 330 Good Block, Des Moines, Iowa.

PUT $1,200 IN A BOOT.

Then His Wife Sold the Boot to a Junk Dealer.

Waterloo, Sept. 15—Mayor Martin received word from Traer yesterday to keep an eye on all the junk men of the city and try and locate a pair of rubber boots belonging to a Bohemian farmer near Traer. The farmer, unknown to anyone else, had deposited $1,200 in cash in the boot and the wife sold them to a junk dealer who was traveling through the country. When the husband learned of the sale, he was frantic and is now endeavoring to find that junk dealer with those precious boots. Where the junkman lives is not known and the Bohemian has a slim show for his money it is feared.

NEW COURT HUSE DEDICATED.

Senator Dolliver and Others Make Addresses at Fort Dodge Exercises.

Fort Dodge, Sept. 13.—The new Webster county court house was dedicated yesterday in the presence of a vast concourse of people, who filled every foot of standing room in the building. The feature of dedicatory exercises was an address by United States Senator J. P. Dolliver, who spoke eloquently. Senator T. D. Healy and Hon. R. Wright, both leading members of the Fort Dodge bar, also made addresses. The new court house has not yet been accepted, but is practically complete. It is considered one of the finest structures of its kind in the state.

JASPER PIONEER IS KILLED.

A. Hand, Prominent Farmer Near Newton, Is After Runaway.

Newton, Sept. 11.—Arthur Hand, an old and respected resident of this county and Clear Creek township, was killed in a runaway accident. Mr. Hand was doing some hauling when a storm came up and a flash of lightning frightened his team, causing them to run away, throwing him from the wagon, sustaining internal injuries, from which he died a short time afterward. The deceased had lived in Jasper county since 1854.

Iowa Second in Literacy.

Washington, Sept. 15.—Iowa is second among the states in point of literacy, taking a place close to the leader, Nebraska, according to the figures of the last census. The statistics show also a creditable increase in the efficiency of the schools of the country.

PRESBYTERIAN PRAISES SYSTEMIC CATARRH.

Already known to the Medical Profession

First Presbyterian of Greensboro, Ga., and Its Pastor Praise Peruna.

THE day was when men of prominence hesitated to give their testimonials to proprietary medicines for publication. This remains to-day of most propietary medicines. But Peruna has become so widely famous, its merits are known to many people of high and low stations that one hesitates to see his name publicly recommending Peruna.

The highest men in the nation have given Peruna a strong endorsement. Men representing all professions and stations are equally represented.

A dignified representative of the Presbyterian church in the person of Rev. E. G. Smith does not hesitate to state publicly that he has used Peruna in his family and found it to be what other remedies failed. In this statement the Rev. Smith is supported by all elders in his church.

Rev. E. G. Smith, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Greensboro, Ga., writes:

"Having used Peruna in my family for some time it gives me pure pleasure to testify to its true worth.

"My little boy seven years old had been suffering for some time with catarrh of the lower bowel. Other remedies had failed, but a few bottles of Peruna the trouble almost entirely disappeared. This is a special malady I consider it a high specific.

"As a tonic for weak people it has few or no equals."
Rev. E. G. Smith.

Mr. M. J. Rossman, a prominent merchant of Greensboro, Ga., and in the Presbyterian church of that place, has used Peruna, and writes a letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., Colnmbus, Ohio, writes as follows:

"For a long time I was troubled with catarrh of the kidneys and used many remedies, all of which gave me relief. Peruna was recommended to me by several friends, and after using a few bottles I am pleased to say that I have looked for relief was found and am now enjoying better health than I have for years, and can heartily recommend Peruna to all similarly afflicted as certainly a grand medicine."
Rossman.

Catarrh is essentially the same disease ever located. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

DOINGS IN AND NEAR ELL CE

Dished up to Suit all Classes by Special Correspondent.

Messrs. Ufford and Smith visited at the home of Fred Ufford last week.

Hod. Lawhorn, Del. Slaight, Frank Patterson, Brunnie Post and the Misses Post and Kuskie represented Ell Center at the county fair last week.

J. P. Groves was stepping high Sunday, while passing the treats. At first we supposed he was running for office but later learned it was on account of a sweet little baby boy coming to live with them last Sunday.

Miss Lena Zwald was renewing acquaintances here last Sunday.

The social at Pleasant Mound was well attended and a goodly sum was realized.

Fred Ufford and wife visited at Mr. Smith's near Meservey Sunday.

(Too late for last week.)

A. Kelly was called here on ousiness Friday.

Ira Robbins and Miss Anna Marshall were callers at C. Kuskie's Sunday.

The heavy frosts of last week nipped corn cutting in the bud, which was a serious loss as all the farmers were so busily engaged in threshing they had no time to cut corn.

Bert Crawford was a caller here last Friday on business.

Mr. McKee, the new mail carrier, was around last week looking over the route which he expects to travel over about Oct. 1.

This week will wind up shock threshing if the weather is favorable. The man who commenced to stack his grain as soon as he finished cutting is to be envied.

Henry Swarz left for Minnesota and North Dakota to take a look Thursday.

For over a week the weather has been good and threshing machines were running at full blast.

Mr. Fitkin, of Garner, was looking after his real estate Tuesday of this week.

The Center school enjoyed a half holiday Monday afternoon on account of the annual meeting of the school board.

Messrs. Post and Patterson and the Misses Post and Kuskie attended church at Klemme Sunday evening.

HENDERSON NOT A CANDIDATE

Announces His Withdrawal From the Third District Contest.

FEELS IS UNJUSTLY TREATED

Finding That His Views in Respect to Treatment of Trusts Are Not in Accord With Many of Party in Iowa, He Feels It His Duty to Decline.

Dubuque, Sept. 17.—Speaker Henderson this day announced his withdrawal from the congressional race in this district, finding that his views in respect to the treatment of trusts by reducing the tariff in whole or in part, are not in accordance with the views of many of his party in Iowa, has this day declined to accept the nomination for congress and has withdrawn from the race."

The announcement was brought in late because it was only decided on at a late hour. Prominent republicans of this city labored with the speaker all day to have him forego his resolution, but without avail.

Last evening many of his democratic friends interviewed him for the same purpose, but Mr. Henderson had made up his mind and nothing could change his purpose. It was not fear of defeat, he said, that influenced him. There was no question of his election by a big majority, but the colonel felt that he had not been treated fairly by the republicans of his district; that insinuations and accusations had been made against him that were not just.

In an interview last evening he had very little to say.

Speaker Henderson has led a strenuous life in the past few years, and he is going to have a chance for a rest which he says he will fully enjoy.

As to what the party will do to nominate his successor is not yet determined. No doubt another convention will be called, but whether the old delegates will meet or another set be required is not at present known. It is needless to say that the republicans of this city, and no doubt of the district, deeply regret this action on the part of Colonel Henderson, and fear it will be taken up by the democrats with a false interpretation placed upon it.

Speaker Henderson announced his withdrawal after a conference of several hours' duration with Chairman asser, of the congressional committ- and friends.

Speaker Henderson had been contemplating this action for two weeks, t had intimated nothing of it to his ends until yesterday. At yesterday's nference his friends implored him t to take the action, but to no avail. said he had made up his mind, and argument could cause him to ange his decision.

B m grateful for the devotion that the er been accorded me and to the of my death I will hold in a a ful heart the memory of that de d. I will give, later on, in some l, my views and convictions on t conditions and on public questions and will state my reasons why the republican party and its policies should continue in the confidence of the voters of the United States, and why the doctrines of the democracy should find no lodgment in the faith and teachings of the republican party. Very truly yours,

"D. B. Henderson."

Dubuque, Sept. 17.—The announcement that Speaker Henderson had withdrawn from the congressional race in this district came upon the people of this city something like a Mont Pelee eruption. At first it was treated incredulously and regarded as a fake, but just before the Evening Globe-Journal went to press the following announcement was brought to that paper by the speaker's secretary, Lee McNeele:

"Mr. Speaker Henderson, finding that his views in respect to the treatment of trusts by reducing the tariff in whole or in part are not in accordance with the views of many of his party in Iowa, has this day declined to accept the nomination for congress and has withdrawn from the race."

The announcement was brought in late because it was only decided on at a late hour. Prominent republicans of this city labored with the speaker all day to have him forego his resolution, but without avail.

Last evening many of his democratic friends interviewed him for the same purpose, but Mr. Henderson had made up his mind and nothing could change his purpose. It was not fear of defeat, he said, that influenced him. There was no question of his election by a big majority, but the colonel felt that he had not been treated fairly by the republicans of his district; that insinuations and accusations had been made against him that were not just.

In an interview last evening he had very little to say.

Speaker Henderson has led a strenuous life in the past few years, and he is going to have a chance for a rest which he says he will fully enjoy.

Speaker Henderson announced his withdrawal after a conference of several hours' duration with Chairman Casser, of the congressional committee and friends.

Speaker Henderson had been contemplating this action for two weeks, and had intimated nothing of it to his friends until yesterday. At yesterday's conference his friends implored him not to take the action, but to no avail. He said he had made up his mind, and no argument could cause him to change his decision.

INSANE PATIENTS PAROLED.

One Hundred Released by Board of Control.

Des Moines, Sept. 17.—The state board of control has since July 26 paroled sixty-one insane patients, extended the parole to thirty others, discharged seven patients improved and one unimproved. This makes a total of ninety-nine patients that have been sent out from the four hospitals of the state during the past six weeks, to say nothing of the number of those discharged as cured, a record of which the board has not at hand. These figures were given out by the board yesterday to illustrate the favor with which the members look upon the parole system and the liberality with which they exercise this power.

There are 165 insane patients out on parole in the state altogether. Each patient who is paroled is given ninety days in which to demonstrate his fitness for mingling at large among the public. If the report made is satisfactory the parole is then extendered. There are about 3,200 patients altogether in the insane hospitals, or were on September 1, and the number is fast increasing, despite the fact that the ranks are kept thinned as much as possible by the parole system.

Yesterday the board received the first report on the new hospital for inebriates at Mount Pleasant. The report covers the month of August from the first to the last day of the month. On August 1 there were fifteen patients there. During the month thirty-six were received and two died, making a total of forty-eight men and one woman on the last day of the month. This makes the average number incarcerated during the month about one per day. At this rate it will not take long to fill up the ward set apart in the Mount Pleasant hospital for these patients.

John W. Mackey once invited Robert G. Ingersoll to visit the Comstock mines. As the cage descended to the furnace heat at the bottom of the shaft of one of the mines, Mr. Ingersoll said, gasping for air: "Privately, I always believed there was a hell somewhere, but I never dreamed it could be so hot."

The German emperor has a habit of pulling his ear when he is deep in thought. "Why do you do that?" one of his royal nephews is said to have asked on one occasion. "Because I am annoyed," was the answer. "And when you are very, very much annoyed, what do you do?" "I pull somebody else's ear."

One day at a rehearsal, W. S. Gilbert observed a girl crying, and asked her the cause of it. Between her sobs, she declared she had been insulted by one of the costumers, who had said to her: "You are no better than you ought to be." Gilbert immediately looked very sympathetic, and said: "Well, you are not, are you, my dear?" To which she replied, promptly: "Why, of course not, Mr. Gilbert." "Ah, that's all right," he said, and she went away perfectly comforted.

Just one question: "There is nothing the matter with you," persisted the Christian Scientist, "absolutely nothing. Can I not convince you?" Let me ask you a question?" replied the sick man. "Suppose a man has nothing the matter with him, and he dies of it, what didn't he have the matter with him?"

NERVOUS PROSTRATION IS SYSTEMIC CATARRH.

[Pe-ru-na is the only Systemic Catarrh Remedy known to the Medical Profession]

MRS. IDA L. GREGORY
A LEADING CLUBWOMAN OF DENVER, COLO.

Mrs. Ida L. Gregory, President of the Poets and Authors Club of Colorado, President of Colorado Art Club, Director of School of Industry and Design, Vice President of Sherman Art League, is One of the Leading Club Women of Colorado.

In a recent letter from 2 Grant avenue, Denver, Colo., this prominent lady says:

"Some years ago my husband suffered from nervous prostration and advising with a friendly druggist he brought home a bottle of Peruna. His health was restored from its use, his appetite was increased and restful sleep came to him. I therefore heartily endorse Peruna, as an honest remedy worthy the good things which are said of it."—Ida L. Gregory.

Nervous prostration is so frequently associated with systemic catarrh that some doctors do not distinguish between the two. In systemic catarrh the disease has pervaded the whole system and there is a constant loss of vital fluids from the mucous membranes.

A great many people are doctoring for nervous prostration who would be immediately cured by a course of Peruna. Peruna makes clean, healthy mucous membranes. By this preservation of the fluids the weakening drain of their discharge is prevented.

The medical profession is just beginning to awaken to the fact that chronic catarrh, especially systemic catarrh, will soon produce a condition so nearly resembling nervous prostration that it is very difficult to tell one from the other.

Peruna cures these cases without fail.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

The patient slept for several hours, and when he awoke as evening began to draw near he was much improved. But he recovered slowly, and so did the prisoner. The latter's wound, however, was more severe than Paul's, and for a time his case seemed doubtful. The doctor impressed with the hope that some information would be obtained from the wounded man, used his skill to the utmost to bring about a speedy recovery.

When Paul was able to walk about he insisted on going to his shanty to investigate it, though he was so weak he had to sit down on a sluice box to rest before he approached the door. After he had rested sufficiently he entered, unlocking the door, and

Laura.

He reached the fork and began to climb the great dead limb of a tree which touched the coveted ledge. At that moment he heard a crackling at the root of the tree and became conscious of a descending motion in the limbs to which he clung.

He knew he was falling, and that with the vast mass he must descend into the valley beneath. He left himself rushing downward through the air; he closed his eyes; there came a horrid crash on his ears, and he knew no more.

When Paul regained consciousness he was lying on a pile of skins and furs in a cavern.

A man clothed wholly in bear and seal skins stood over him, gazing at him with a pair of strange gray eyes. His hair was long, falling to his shoulders, and his beard, which was almost white, came to his waist. He had a half-savage and half-civilized appearance.

Paul gazed into the strange, wild face and asked:

"Who are you?"

The stranger, without taking his eyes off him, asked:

"Who are you?"

"I am a miner from the Klondike who was robbed. I was in pursuit of the robbers when the accident befell me. You found me?"

"Yes."

Paul at first supposed that some of his limbs were broken or dislocated, and dared not move, but after a few moments he discovered that he had suffered no greater injury than a severe shock. He had fallen into a deep snowdrift, which had broken the fall and no doubt saved his life.

"Won't you tell me who you are?" asked Paul after a few minutes' gazing into the face of the mysterious stranger. The man turned away for a moment as if he wished to avoid the answer and then slowly turning back answered:

"I am a hermit; will that suffice?"

"Do you live here?" Paul asked.

"Yes."

"How long have you lived in this mountain?"

Then came a longer silence than usual, when the hermit of the cave answered:

"What difference can that make to you? I found you in a perishing condition and brought you here and saved your life. Is that not enough without telling all the secrets of my life?" He turned slowly about and went to a small fire that smoldered on the stones some distance away, and began to toast some slices of moose steak. Paul closed his eyes and tried to reason that he could be in no immediate danger. If the man had intended to kill him, he would no doubt have done so while he was unconscious. He also reasoned he might have some design in saving his life.

HE LOVED HIS HORSES.

Owner Wept When Compelled to Part With Them.

An incident which illustrates the strong attachment that forms between a man and a good team occurred at a public sale four miles south of town Wednesday. It was noticed that the owner immediately withdrew from the crowd upon the bringing forth of a fine span of blacks, but returned later when called upon to describe the team. Among other things, their age, etc., he stated that he had raised them from colthood; that they were true, kind and faithful. Here he could say no more, and crossing his arms on the one nearest him, he sobbed like a child. The intelligent animal, evidently realizing that something was wrong, turned his head and gently pushed his nose against his old master's face. Such scenes are not witnessed every day in this hard old world, and a glance at the crowd of farmers disclosed scores of moist eyes and the autioneer's voice grew husky as he proceeded with the sale of the old friends. No man need be ashamed of such weakness, if such it may be termed. It is one of the finest qualities attributable to mankind.—Jefferson Bee.

A Successful Angler.

"He was a beauty, plump three pounds, and as handsome a fish as ever came out of Long Island."

"Where did you find him."

"In my own brook."

"I thought as much. In these days one does not catch three-pound trout in Long Island waters unless he owns a stream or knows somebody else who does, and will let him in for an hour or two. It is a condition of things which has made an entirely new definition of the successful angler."

"Yes? What do you call a successful angler?"

"A successful angler is one who successfully fishes for an invitation to go fishing in a preserved stream."

"Do you call yourself successful?"

"That is for you to say."

"Well, come down next Wednesday. I guess there is another three-pounder where I got that one."—Forest and Stream.

Maintained His Dignity.

Woe be to the English sheriff who fails to maintain a proper state. Once, in the west of England, a young sheriff met a certain judge at the station. The sheriff, a county squire, was dressed in a neat shooting suit, with gaiters and a cloth cap. "Mr. Justice Dash, I believe," said he politely. "Yes, sir; and who are you?" "I am the sheriff of Blankshire." The little judge eyed him from top to toe, from cap to gaiters. Then he rasped out: "Do you think I am a rabbit?" The squire stood astounded. He was still more astounded when the irate representative of the law observed: "You are fined £100. Escort me to my carriage. Then go, clothe yourself in proper attire. How dare you, sir!"—New Penny Magazine.

Sowing Wild Oats.

"Sence them city boarders got to comin' here our Johnny has been goin' to the bad," said Mrs. Hayseede to Mrs. Clovertopp.

"You don't say!"

"Yes, indeed! He's got to stayin' out late at night. Why, last Sat'day night he went off down town and never came home until half after 9. I've got a mind to ask the preacher to talk to him on the error o' his way."

M. de Blowitz, in the Paris Matin, tells an amusing story of how a subscriber to the "Encylopaedia Britannica" used that work. He was a professional writer of begging letters, and in them he represented himself to be now one sort of a person, and then another, "getting up" from the pages of his encyclopaedia the necessary historical knowledge to give his letters plausibility. Thus, he explained, that having written a letter in which he was a potter who had been chemically poisoned and unfitted for work, "he used the encyclopaedia for details of his pottery trade, of which he himself was entirely ignorant. The one word, 'kaolin,' which he used in his letters, and the explanation of the use of the material, made every one believe in the genuineness of his appeal, and brought him a perfect harvest of bank notes and postal money orders."

Had Crazy Spells.

West Pembroke, Me., Sept. 22.—The thirteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. A. L. Smith suffered with a peculiar affliction which her mother describes as follows:

"It is two years now since she was first taken with crazy spells.

"They kept on coming at intervals and I could get nothing to do her any good.

"The doctors gave me no encouragement. They all said they could not help her.

"The crazy spell would last about nine days, then she would be well about nine days, but would eat very little and was very yellow. Even the whites of her eyes were yellow.

"I heard that Dodd's Kidney Pills were a great remedy for young girls and decided to try them.

"After taking one box she was completely restored and she has not had one bad spell since. Of course we continued to use the pills and she used altogether five boxes last fall.

"In March I thought I saw symptoms of the spells again and I got six boxes of which she has taken four, and is in splendid health.

"Her case was certainly a remarkable one and we are very thankful to Dodd's Kidney Pills for the great good they have done my daughter."

HENDERSON NOT A CANDIDATE

Announces His Withdrawal From the Third District Contest.

FEELS IS UNJUSTLY TREATED

Finding That His Views in Respect to Treatment of Trusts Are Not in Accord With Many of Party in Iowa, He Feels It His Duty to Decline.

Dubuque, Sept. 17.—Speaker Henderson, finding that his views in respect to the treatment of trusts by reducing the tariff in whole or in part, are not in accord with the views of many of his party in Iowa, yesterday declined to accept the nomination for congress, and has withdrawn from the race. The following letter was addressed to C. E. Albrook, chairman of the notification committee, Eldora, Ia., by Mr. Henderson:

"My Dear Sir: I have never answered the kind notice communicated by you and your asociates advising me of my nomination for the eleventh time by acclamation as the republican candidate for congress for the Third congressional district of Iowa. Reported conditions in the public mind in my district upon public policies, induced me to make the delay. Since my return to the district I have made a careful study as to the sentiment in the district and state, and I believe there is no little sentiment, and a growing sentiment, among republicans, that I do not truly represent their views on the tariff question. Believing this condition to exist and knowing that I do not agree with many of my people that trusts, to which I am and have been opposed, can be cured, or the people benefited by free trade, in whole or in part, I must decline to accept the nomination so generously and enthusiastically made. I have devoted twenty of the best years of my life to the service of my people and my country and I have fought for what I believed to be the best for the farmer, the laborer and the business interests of this district and state.

"I am grateful for the devotion that has ever been accorded me and to the hour of my death I will hold in a grateful heart the memory of that devotion. I will give, later on, in some detail, my views and convictions on our conditions and on public questions and will state my reasons why the republican party and its policies should continue in the confidence of the voters of the United States, and why the doctrines of the democracy should find no lodgment in the faith and teachings of the republican party. Very truly yours,

"D. B. Henderson."

Dubuque, Sept. 17.—The announcement that Speaker Henderson had withdrawn from the congressional race in this district came upon the people of this city something like a Mont Pelee eruption. At first it was treated incredulously and regarded as a fake, but just before the Evening Globe-Journal went to press the following announcement was brought to that paper by the speaker's secretary, Lee McNeele:

"Mr. Speaker Henderson, finding that his views in respect to the treatment of trusts by reducing the tariff in whole or in part are not in accordance with the views of many of his party in Iowa, has this day declined to accept the nomination for congress and has withdrawn from the race."

The announcement was brought in late because it was only decided on at a late hour. Prominent republicans of this city labored with the speaker all day to have him forego his resolution, but without avail.

Last evening many of his democratic friends interviewed him for the same purpose, but Mr. Henderson had made up his mind and nothing could change his purpose. It was not fear of defeat, he said, that influenced him. There was no question of his election by a big majority, but the colonel felt that he had not been treated fairly by the republicans of his district; that insinuations and accusations had been made against him that were not just.

In an interview last evening he had very little to say.

Speaker Henderson has led a strenuous life in the past few years, and he is going to have a chance for a rest which he says he will fully enjoy.

As to what the party will do to nominate his successor is not yet determined. No doubt another convention will be called, but whether the old delegates will meet or another set be required is not at present known. It is needless to say that the republicans of this city, and no doubt of the district, deeply regret this action on the part of Colonel Henderson, and fear it will be taken up by the democrats with a false interpretation placed upon it.

Speaker Henderson announced his withdrawal after a conference of several hours' duration with Chairman Glasser, of the congressional committee and friends.

Speaker Henderson had been contemplating this action for two weeks, but had intimated nothing of it to his friends until yesterday. At yesterday's conference his friends implored him not to take the action, but to no avail. He said he had made up his mind, and no argument could cause him to change his decision.

INSANE PATIENTS PAROLED.

One Hundred Released by Board of Control.

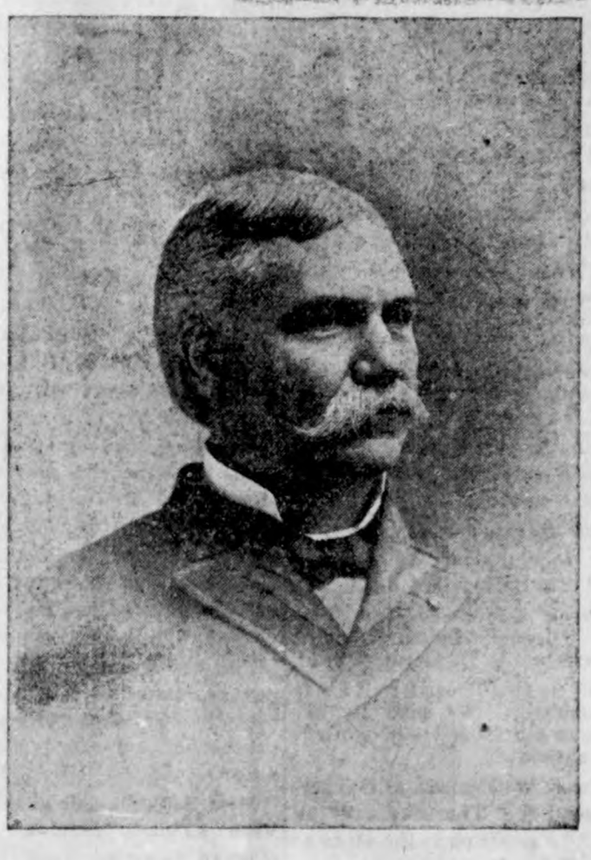
Des Moines, Sept. 17.—The state board of control has since July 26 paroled sixty-one insane patients, extended the parole to thirty others, discharged seven patients improved and one unimproved. This makes a total of ninety-nine patients that have been sent out from the four hospitals of the state during the past six weeks, to say nothing of the number of those discharged as cured, a record of which the board has not at hand. These figures were given out by the board yesterday to illustrate the favor with which the members look upon the parole system and the liberality with which they exercise this power.

There are 165 insane patients out on parole in the state altogether. Each patient who is paroled is given ninety days in which to demonstrate his fitness for mingling at large among the public. If the report made is satisfactory the parole is then extendered. There are about 3,200 patients altogether in the insane hospitals, or were on September 1, and the number is fast increasing, despite the fact that the ranks are kept thinned as much as possible by the parole system.

Yesterday the board received the first report on the new hospital for inebriates at Mount Pleasant. The report covers the month of August from the first to the last day of the month. On August 1 there were fifteen patients there. During the month thirty-six were received and two died, making a total of forty-eight men and one woman on the last day of the month. This makes the average number incarcerated during the month about one per day. At this rate it will not take long to fill up the ward set apart in the Mount Pleasant hospital for these patients.



SPEAKER DAVID B. HENDERSON.

John W. Mackey once invited Robert G. Ingersoll to visit the Comstock mines. As the cage descended to the furnace heat at the bottom of the shaft of one of the mines, Mr. Ingersoll said, gasping for air: "Privately, I always believed there was a hell somewhere, but I never dreamed it could be so hot."

The German emperor has a habit of pulling his ear when he is deep in thought. "Why do you do that?" one of his royal nephews is said to have asked on one occasion. "Because I am annoyed," was the answer. "And when you are very, very much annoyed, what do you do?" "I pull somebody else's ear."

One day at a rehearsal, W. S. Gilbert observed a girl crying, and asked her the cause of it. Between her sobs, she declared she had been insulted by one of the costumers, who had said to her: "You are no better than you ought to be." Gilbert immediately looked very sympathetic, and said: "Well, you are not, are you, my dear?" To which she replied, promptly: "Why, of course not, Mr. Gilbert." "Ah, that's all right," he said, and she went away perfectly comforted.

Just one question: "There is nothing the matter with you," persisted the Christian Scientist, "absolutely nothing. Can I not convince you?" Let me ask you a question?" replied the sick man. "Suppose a man has nothing the matter with him, and he dies of it, what didn't he have the matter with him?"

NERVOUS PROSTRATION IS SYSTEMIC CATARRH.

[Pe-ru-na is the only Systemic Catarrh Remedy known to the Medical Profession]

MRS. IDA L. GREGORY
A LEADING CLUBWOMAN OF DENVER, COLO.

Mrs. Ida L. Gregory, President of the Poets and Authors Club of Colorado, President of Colorado Art Club, Director of School of Industry and Design, Vice President of Sherman Art League, is One of the Leading Club Women of Colorado.

In a recent letter from 3 Grant avenue, Denver, Colo., this prominent lady says:

"Some years ago my husband suffered from nervous prostration and advising with a friendly druggist he brought home a bottle of Peruna. His health was restored from its use, his appetite was increased and restful sleep came to him. I therefore heartily endorse Peruna, as an honest remedy worthy the good things which are said of it."—Ida L. Gregory.

Nervous prostration is so frequently associated with systemic catarrh that some doctors do not distinguish between the two. In systemic catarrh the disease has pervaded the whole system and there is a constant loss of vital fluids from the mucous membranes.

A great many people are doctoring for nervous prostration who would be immediately cured by a course of Peruna. Peruna makes clean, healthy mucous membranes. By this preservation of the fluids the weakening drain of their discharge is prevented.

The medical profession is just beginning to awaken to the fact that chronic catarrh, especially systemic catarrh, will soon produce a condition so nearly resembling nervous prostration that it is very difficult to tell one from the other.

Peruna cures these cases without fail.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Beware of the Knife

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. J. L. Harr.

A FINE DISTINCTION.

Drug Clerk Has Not Got It Quite Clear Yet.

A young downtown drug clerk who had heard the story of the colored woman who had asked for flesh-colored court plaster and was given black by the observant dealer, stored the incident away in his mental dust box, and decided to use it at the first opportunity. He had not long to wait, for a few nights ago a comely colored girl stepped into the store where he was employed. "Ah wants some co't plaster," she said.

"What color?" inquired the clerk, with affected nonchalance.

"Flesh cullah, sah."

Trembling in his shoes, and keeping within easy reach of a heavy pestle, the clerk handed the woman a box of black court plaster, and he was surprised at the time that the situation afforded so little humor. The woman opened the box with a deliberation that was ominous, but she was unruffled when she noted the color of the contents.

"Ah guess you mus' 'a' misunderstood mah ordah. Ah asked foh flesh cullah, an' yo' done give me skin cullah."

The drug clerk is still a little dazed from the encounter, and he has firmly resolved to subject every joke to rigid laboratory test hereafter before using.—Pittsburgh Daily News.

To Our Patrons.

Having sold the Klemme Times, I take this opportunity of speaking my last little piece to the good people of Klemme and vicinity. During the year that we have lived and labored among you, we have tried faithfully to give our readers a good paper, and whether we have succeeded or not, our readers can best judge. One thing we know. The people of Klemme and vicinity have treated us royally and we appreciate it.

Our successor, J. E Tierney, comes well recommended, and no doubt will give the readers of this paper a live, up-to-date newspaper. He has our best wishes and good will.

We thank you all for your favors and courtesies and wish you all happiness and prosperity. Sincerely Yours,

ALLEN C. FLINT.

Having purchased the Klemme Times, of Allen C. Flint, we on Wednesday assumed charge of the paper. We have entered upon our work with the intention of giving the people as good a paper as is possible for us to get out, and to this end we solicit your hearty co-operation. We are here for ourselves not for any outside syndicate, and the paper is not for the particular benefit of any set of men, but to herald good news of all when the occasion presents itself, and a means whereby we may gain a livlihood. Our constant endeavor shall be to tell all the good things we know about you and if, perchance, we hear something about you that is not exactly right, something that is to do no one any good, but work harm to someone, it shall not gain publicity. The columns of the Times will at all times be open to anything that is to the best interests of Klemme, and the "best for Klemme" shall be our guiding star. We are a stranger in your city, and we ask your confidence, and as time rolls on we hope to merit this confidence.

Mr Flint has not fully decided what he will do, but we wish him abundant success wherever he may go. In our dealings with him we have found him to be a perfect gentleman.

Hoping to meet you all in a business and social way, I am

Very truly yours

J. E. TIERNEY.

CARVING BY MACHINERY.

Labor-Saving Device Now Applied in the Realm of Art.

Carving in wood and stone work are now to a large extent turned out by machinery—a method which permits of a number of copies being made both rapidly and accurately of any given model. A series of vertical steel drills, placed at regular intervals on a cross bar, are driven at a speed of 2,000 or 3,000 revolutions per minute. Below this is a table which can be raised or lowered at will, and on this the blocks of wood or stone to be carved are placed. The drills can move in every direction, following simultaneously all the movements of a short iron rod, which is manipulated by the workman. The latter has a model of the pattern or figure desired in front of him, and by running the end of the rod over its contours the drills trace identical lines on the blocks of material placed below them. A workman soon acquires sufficient dexterity to enable him to turn out faithful copies of his model, though, as can be imagined, says the New York Evening Telegram, the results have little in common with the productions of the sculptor.

In Porto Rico.

Oranges and bananas reach a delicious perfection in Porto Rico, and frosts are unknown. The cultivation of various crops has increased enormously since 1896, averaging fully 50 per cent. all around. The cultivation of cane has increased 25 per cent.; of coffee, 25 per cent., and of tobacco, 300 per cent.

JUDGE BIRDSALL IS NOMINATED

Succeeds Henderson as Republican Nominee in the Third District.

ENDORSES STATE PLATFORM

The Convention Endorses Iowa Platform and Denies That the Dingley Tariff Breeds and Shelters Trusts—Republicans Pleased With Nomination.

Hampton, Sept. 26.—The republicans of the Third congressional district nominated Judge B. P. Birdsall of Clarion, Wright county, on the third ballot yesterday to fill the place left vacant on that ticket by the recent withdrawal of Speaker Henderson. Resolutions were unanimously adopted indorsing the Iowa platform. In an address preceding the adoption of the resolutions, Judge Birdsall declared he favored the Iowa platform and would stand squarely upon it.

The nomination of Judge Birdsall is generally satisfactory to the republicans who were assembled here. It is considered devoid of factional significance and republicans feel that there can be no doubt of the election of the nominee over Horace Boies by a large majority. Preparations will be made at once for a most energetic campaign.

The names of four candidates were presented to the convention. They were C. E. Ransier of Independence, M. F. Edwards of Butler county, Burton E. Sweet of Waverly and Judge Birdsall. C. E. Albrook of Eldora, following a caucus of the Hardin county delegates, withdrew at 11 o'clock in the morning and at the same time it was decided Hardin's strength would go to Birdsall, in the same judicial district. This turned the tide in Birdsall's favor. Sweet's strength, which until then had been formidable, began to decline, and Birdsall and Ransier loomed up as the leading candidates. It had been expected Black Hawk's vote would go to Ransier, but a caucus developed otherwise and before the convention was held it was plain Birdsall was the winner. Butler's vote was assured him after one or two ballots and it was known Sweet's following preferred Birdsall to Ransier.

Resolutions were adopted as follows:

"We, the representatives of the republican party of the Third congressional district of Iowa, heartily indorse the platform of principles adopted by the late republican state convention at Des Moines. We deny that the Dingley tariff breeds and shelters trusts. We interpret the tariff plank in the Des Moines platform of 1902 to be nearly a reiteration of and to mean no more than the St. Louis plank of 1896, which recited:

"'We are not pledged to any particular schedules. The question of rates is a practical question to be governed by the conditions of the times and of production. The ruling and uncompromising principle is the protection and development of American labor and industry.'

"We cordially recognize and earnestly commend the patriotic fervor of President Roosevelt, and the wisdom of both the foreign and domestic policies of his administration which are adding constantly to the high reputation of the nation abroad and the prosperity of the people at home.

"We most earnestly regret the declination of the renomination which the republicans of this district for the eleventh time unanimously tendered the Hon. D. B. Henderson. No official has been more anxious to keep in touch with and faithfully represent the well considered judgment of his constituents than has Colonel Henderson during all the long years of his congressional career. We have faith in his patriotism and in his personal and political integrity. We are conscious of his great mental power and ability. We realize his superb leadership and commanding influence in governmental affairs and believe that his withdrawal means a great loss to the people."

Judge Benjamin P. Birdsall, who has been nominated by the republicans of the Third congressional district as their candidate for congress, in the place of Speaker D. B. Henderson, who withdrew from the ticket, was born in Weyauwega, Waupaca county, Wisconsin, October 26, 1858, and is therefore in his forty-fourth year. His father was in the lumber business in Wisconsin. The family moved to Iowa in 1870, to Alden, Hardin county. There the father lived on a farm. Young Benjamin had attended the public schools in Wisconsin, and on coming to Iowa went to the district school for a time. He went to the State University at Iowa City in 1874, and finished a course in the academic department in 1877. He then read law with C. M. Nagle of Alden. He was admitted to the bar in 1787 at Hampton. He practiced for a time in partnership with M. J. Furry at Alden. In 1884 he moved to Clarion, Wright county, where he has since lived. He and Mr. Nagle were partners there for about ten years. He was elected to the bench of the Eleventh judicial district in 1893. He remained on the bench until 1900, when he resigned, in part on account of ill health. He then resumed the practice of law, in which he is now engaged at Clarion with his son.

MOTHER AND CHILD PERISH.

Mrs. Moon and Her Little Daughter Victims of Oil Can.

Nashua, Sept. 27.—Mrs. Hiram Moon and little daughter were fatally burned yesterday morning. Mrs. Moon got up at 6 o'clock to start the kitchen fire for the preparing of breakfast. In kindling the fire she used a gallon can of oil, and, more fire remaining in the stove than she supposed, an explosion occurred. The mother and little one, who was sitting in a high chair near by the stove, were terribly burned. The father, who was nearby, hastened into the house and put the fire out. The mother was burned principally about the face and chest, while the babe was burned under charred all over its body.

NOT GUILTY OF EMBEZZLEMENT.

Manager Thompson of Whittemore Elevator Company Is Released.

Algona, Sept. 26.—Manager Thompson of the Farmers' Co-Operative Elevator company at Whittemore, who was on trial here for seven days for alleged embezzlement, was discharged by Judge Bailie. There seemed to be no evidence of fraud, though the directors of the company claimed that the $14,000 shortage or loss in the past two years was due to Thompson's crookedness, yet they failed to show any wrongful acts.

GREAT DEMAND FOR FEEDERS.

Soft Corn Leads to Large Purchasers of Cattle at Stock Yards.

Des Moines, Sept. 26.—Present indications are that an unprecedented number of cattle will be fed in Iowa this year. This is due to the fact frosts have injured the corn and that there will be an extraordinary amount of soft and unmarketable corn that will be suitable only for feeding purposes.

Farmers who heretofore have sold the bulk of their crop are buying cattle and reports received by their city correspondents from country banks are to the effect there is an unprecedented demand for money with which to buy stock cattle and feeders. Reports gathered through the railroads as to the destination and meaning of unusually heavy shipments of cattle into the state are that they are being taken into the country by farmers for feeding soft corn.

Farmers are putting all the money they can get hold of into light cattle and the markets through which the bulk of the supplies are secured are commencing to show the effects of the extraordinary demand. At Sioux City, a market from which northwestern Iowa and South Dakota cattle feeders draw a large portion of their stock cattle, has been having a record breaking run during the past few days. Monday, a day on which receipts are generally light, 320 carloads of cattle containing over 8,000 head, of whom all but about 500 were feeding stuff, were received and the demand was such that the run was well sold out at the close and the prices ruled firm during the day. On the same day South Omaha handled over 6,200 stockers and feeders, and Chicago upwards of 20,000. The runs at Kansas City and St. Louis, depending upon Missouri for their markets, were very much lighter, due to the fact the corn crop in those states was not materially injured by frosts and the usual amount will be marketable. But the runs of Monday were only an index to what has been going on at the markets named for the last week and of what the inquiry for cars and to commission merchants indicate will be going on for some days to come. Stock cattle from Kansas, Indian Territory, southern Nebraska and Missouri are being hurried to the markets in the corn belt and all records for receipts, even the extraordinary high marks reached in 1898, have been broken.

Thousands of the cattle sold have been consigned to small stations in Iowa and South Dakota, and especially in the districts where the damage to corn was heaviest.

TIPTON SALOONS ARE CLOSED

In Accordance With the Recent Ruling of Judge Remley.

Tipton, Sept. 29.—Judge Remley has announced his finding in the matter of the statements of general consent filed with the county auditor December 6 and 7, 1899, as follows:

"The court finds that counting the names upon the petition herein in accordance with the decision of the supreme court herein there are not names of voters who voted at the next preceding election sufficient to make said petition legal and valid under the law. The action of the board of supervision in declaring the same sufficient is set aside and annulled and the judgment for costs against the defendant herein by the district court having been renewed by the supreme court, the clerk is directed to cancel the same upon the record. Judgment is entered herein against H. R. Porter, L. S. McConkie and F. D. McConkie for all costs. The motion of R. M. Ellyson, sheriff is sustained and judgment is entered on the bond for costs given by the plaintiff, against the sureties named therein and signed thereto for the amount of said bond for $300."

As soon as the finding was announced the three Tipton saloons promptly closed their doors and others throughout the county did the same. The saloon men made no contest in court as the supreme court's ruling that all names on the petition had to correspond exactly with the same names as they appeared on the poll books gave them no chance. There is no present indication of any purpose to circulate another petition although that course will doubtless be taken sooner or later.

CONFESSED TO MURDER.

Young Mother Gave Her Child a Fatal Dose of Carbolic Acid.

Dubuque, Sept. 27.—The most terrible crime known for years in Dubuque was committed yesterday morning. A young woman giving the name of Dilia Liddy came to the Paris hotel, where she put up. She had with her a babe three weeks old. About 3 o'clock yesterday morning she came down stairs with the babe and a satchel. Half an hour after she returned with the satchel, but without the babe. Asked what had become of it, she gave an evasive reply. Suspicion was aroused and investigation was made and the body of the infant was found, its face terribly burned with carbolic acid. On being taken to the police matron's quarters she admitted having killed the child by pouring the poison down its throat. She is unmarried, but refuses to name the father of the babe. Her people reside in Elkader.

Smith Held Without Bail.

Avoca, Sept. 23.—Lewis Smith, charged with the murder of Charles Edwards, has been held to the grand jury without bail. It is charged that Smith shot and instantly killed Charles Edwards in a quarrel over the division of some money. Both are colored and lived at Omaha.

The hardware store of George W. Healy & Sons at Dubuque was entered by burglars and $800 worth of fine cutlery, revolvers, etc., taken. No clue.

Ogden Reporter: Born, to Mr. and Mrs. John Bruhn of Amaqua, this morning, a boy. It is the fourteenth.

ARMY POST IS SAFE.

Government Makes Contract With Water Company.

Des Moines, Sept. 29.—It has developed that the reports that have been put in circulation during the past few months to the effect that Des Moines will lose the army post unless City Auditor Lucas consents to issue the warrants for the proposed loan of $50,000 to the water company at 2 per cent for ten years, and City Treasurer Gross to pay them, are unwarranted. The water company has for a long time been under contract to extend its mains to the army post, a contract which must be fulfilled whether or not the city loan was made.

The following letter received by Treasurer Gross from Washington in response to an inquiry made by him of the war department August 25, is explanatory of the situation:

"War Department, Quartermaster General's Office, Washington, Sept. 24, 1902.—H. F. Gross, City Treasurer, Des Moines, Ia.—Sir: Referring to your letter of August 25, addressed to the honorable secretary of war, you are advised that this department entered into a contract with the Des Moines Water Works company for the extension of its mains to the post of Fort Des Moines, to furnish that post with a supply of water.

"H. S. Patton,

"Deputy Quartermaster General, U. S. A., Acting Quartermaster General."

The contract referred to was entered into April 5, 1902. By its terms the Des Moines Water Works company is required to build a twelve-inch water main to the edge of the army post tract and to furnish direct water pressure upon this line of pipe sufficient to supply all demands of the post and afford fire protection. It is further required of the Des Moines Water Works company that this main shall be constructed and water supplied through it during the building season of 1902.

In consideration of the performance of its part of the contract by the water company, the government agrees to take water at rate of 10 cents per thousand gallons from the water company, and further agrees that it will not use less than $300 worth of water in any one month, or at the rate of 100,000 gallons per day, and that all water shall be metered and that the government shall pay in addition to the $300 each month 10 cents per thousand gallons of water used in excess of 3,000,000 gallons a month. It also provides that the government shall have the privilege of renewing this contract upon the same terms and conditions for a period of ten years, or until the franchise of the Des Moines Water Works company expires.

DENTIST AND WIFE ARRESTED.

Council Bluffs Parties Confess They Were Counterfeiters.

Council Bluffs, Sept. 29.—George L. Eads, a dentist, residing here, is in the city jail here and his wife is in the city jail at South Omaha, Neb., and both are charged with counterfeiting.

Mrs. Eads went to South Omaha and made a purchase of a few cents at one store, tendering in payment a $5 gold piece. She went to another store and there tendered another piece of the same denomination. The clerk detected that the coin was not good, and called the manager of the store into consultation, with the result that she was placed under arrest, charged with passing counterfeit money.

At the city jail she was searched by the matron and her pocket book was found to contain three other coins of the same denomination and mintage. She was pressed for an explanation and readily confessed. She stated that her husband was a dentist in this city, that he made the money and forced her to pass it. This information was communicated to the police of this city, and they soon had Eads in the toils. He was arrested at his home, his office was also in the same building, and was taken to the city jail, and with him his two-year-old child.

When confronted with the fact of his wife's arrest and her confession he made a partial confession to having been engaged in the business. He said he presumed he was in a tight place and that he would have to spend at least ten years in the penitentiary. The hardest thing for him seemed when the police took his child from him to deliver it to its mother in South Omaha. He broke down and cried like a child and said:

"I presume that the next time I see that little innocent and am at liberty to go as a free man she will be a woman and hate me for this crime."

He readily gave his consent for the police to search his home without going through the formality of getting out a search warrant. Chief Tibbets, Detective Callaghan and Secret Service Officer Webb went to the residence and in the search found a two-bushel basket full of molds that had been used a few times and then broken into a thousand pieces.

Eads is very much downcast about his predicament. He stated that he had been in Council Bluffs about two years, that he came here from Cedar Rapids, and that his widowed mother lives there. The case is considered such a strong one by the police and the secret service officers that it seems certain that both husband and wife are sure of a long sentence.

FORGER PLEADS GUILTY.

Fled to the West, but Returned Thinking He Was Safe.

West Union, Sept. 25.—Prominent among the criminal cases on the docket for the term of the district court held here by Judge Hobson during the past two weeks was that of the state vs. L. J. Barnes on two indictments for forgery, one a note of $3,000 held by the bank at Arlington and the other a note for $2,000 held by the Aetna State bank at Oelwein. These indictments were seven years old, and it is not probable had Barnes remained in the west that an effort would have been made to bring him back for trial. But he concluded a few weeks ago that the clouds had all rolled by and that he might safely return to the old home. When the case against him was called he pleaded guilty. He has not yet been sentenced.

LINNIE HAGUEWOOD REPORT.

She Is in School in Gary and Is Reported as Doing Well.

Des Moines, Sept. 26.—The annual report which State Printer Murpay will make in regard to the special fund for the education of Linnie Haguewood, the deaf and blind Iowa girl, is encouraging. She has spent the past summer with her parents in Iowa, but is now at the school for the blind at Gary under the care of Miss Donald, who has been her teacher from the first. Miss Haguewood is now studying history and language and is capable of writing good essays. She has become an adept in sewing. There is a balance on hand of $280 in the special fund and Mr. Murphy has a private fund of $650 to draw on.

MINOR OPERATION ON PRESIDENT

Bone of the Leg Is Found by Surgeons to Be Slightly Affected.

THE CASE IS NOT SERIOUS

Thorough Drainage Has Been Established—Recovery Within a Short Time Is Now Predicted By the Surgeons Who Performed the Operation.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Secretary Cortelyou issued the following statement yesterday:

"Dr. Newton M. Shaffer of New York joined the president's physicians in consultation this morning at 10 o'clock.

"The increase in local symptoms and a rise in temperature rendered it necessary to make an incision into the small cavity, exposing the bone, which was found to be slightly affected. Thorough drainage is now established and the physicians feel confident that recovery will be uninterrupted.

"The operation was performed by Surgeon General Rixey, assisted by Dr. Lung and in consultation with Surgeon General O'Reilly and Drs. Shaffer, Urie and Still.

(Signed) "George B. Cortelyou,

"Secretary to the President."

Another operation was performed yesterday on the abcess of the left leg of President Roosevelt. In the former operation a simple needle was used to relieve the trouble, but yesterday the surgeons with a knife made an incision into the small cavity, exposing the bone, which was found to be slightly affected.

The president's case has been progressing satisfactorily, but it is believed by the physicians that the further operation made yesterday will hasten his complete recovery.

While none of the doctors is willing to be quoted they give the most positive assurances that there is not the least cause for alarm, and say that, on the contrary, there is every indication of a speedy recovery; that the area of bone affected is very slight and will not result in any impairment of the president's limb, and that there is no evidence whatever of any matter that would produce blood poison. They confidently expect that the president will be on his feet within a reasonable time and with his robust constitution to assist recovery, soon will be himself again.

WILL NOT INTERFERE.

Hay's Roumanian Protest Right Theoretically, a Newspaper Says.

Cologne, Sept. 26.—The Koelnische Zeitung, frequently inspired from Berlin, refers to Secretary Hay's Roumanian note as follows:

"However pitiable the position of the Jews in Roumania may be, individual states must ask themselves whether an affair which concerns foreign subjects justifies them in imposing their jurisdiction upon those subjects. Great Britain and the United States must make it clear how they conceive the whole business is to be managed. Germany, by itself, is in no way concerned in the question. The fact that the treaty of Berlin was signed in Berlin does not impose the obligation of defending it upon Germany any more than upon the other signatories. It follows that we by no means feel called upon to play the leading role, the more so as we are under no illusion as to the difficulty of the enterprise.

"Roumania would have done better to frame her Jewish legislation otherwise than she has. The measures taken by Roumania are hopeless. When she recognizes this fact she will perhaps modify her legislation, insomuch as it is very much to her interest that the Jewish question disappear from the order of the day."

BEEF PACKERS KNOCKED OUT.

Roosevelt's Speech Frightens the Promoters.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—The combination of the great packing houses of the country which has been under consideration and in process of actual formation for the last six months, has been abandoned, at least for the present, says the Tribune. The decision not to contemplate the combination is due in a large degree to the attitude of the national administration toward trusts as outlined by President Roosevelt in his recent speeches and to the possibility that in the event of a consolidation congress might remove the tariff on cattle.

It was learned last night that a final meeting of the heads of the firms known as the Big Four packing houses in Chicago had been held, at which it was agreed to end all negotiations at once.

This was followed by an order issued from the office of Swift & Co. that the firm's employes should immediately discontinue the inventory of property and stock which had been ordered and started for the purpose of tabulating a report of the financial condition of the company, which was to have been used as a basis of the division of shares in the combine.

MOROS ARE KILLED.

Success of American Expedition Under Captain Delmnick.

Manila, Sept. 29.—Three companies of infantry, commanded by Captain Eli A. Delmnick of the Tenth infantry, left Camp Vicars, island of Mindanao, Thursday to reconnoiter the Moro forts and recover stolen arms. They encountered only slight opposition. The column captured and destroyed the Butig forts. A few Moros were killed. The American troops had no casualties. A fanatical Moro armed with a bolo charged the column alone.

Brigadier General S. S. Sumner is preparing to send a second expedition against the Maciu sultans, who still reject the overtures for peace negotiations. The sultans have a strong force in position and stout opposition is expected.

Many friendly Moros arrived at Camp Vicars to visit General Sumner. They promised to continue peaceful.

Sultan Yields to the Czar.

Constantinople, Sept. 23.—The decision of the sultan to permit four Russian torpedo boats, which are in reality torpedo boat destroyers, to pass the Dardenelles is regarded here to be a violation of the international convention, and action in the matter is expected from the other signatory powers.

A blind man in Milwaukee, W. J. Ryan, has invented a writing frame with wire lines, to enable sightless people to write symmetrically.

SHAW TO BUY BONDS.

Makes Another Effort to Relieve Money Market.

Washington, Sept. 27.—The secretary of the treasury has issued the following circular:

"By virtue of the authority contained in section 3694 of the revised statutes of the United States, notice is hereby given that this department will purchase any of the United States 5 per cent bonds of the loan of 1904 if presented for that purpose on or before October 15 next and will pay for them at the rate of 105 flat. Bonds may be presented at this department, division of loans and currency, or at the office of the assistant treasurer of the United States at New York.

(Signed) "L. M. Shaw, Secretary."

New York, Sept. 27.—J. P. Morgan & Co., have notified the shareholders of the various companies and corporations for which they act as fiscal agents that they would anticipate October interest and coupon payments next Monday, two days in advance of the required time. These payments, it is estimatetd, will approximate $14,000,000. The action is taken to relieve existing financial conditions.

The United States Steel Corporation announced that it would mail checks tomorrow for the quarterly dividend on its common stock due September 30, and that the checks would be payable September 29. The sum of the quarterly dividend is $5,083,025, and that sum will be released to the money market.

Berlin, Sept. 27.—The New York money market is watched here with the closest attention.

The Frankfurter Zeitung, after reviewing the American money situation, says:

"The stock exchange, of course, cannot wholly escape the influence of the money market. Nevertheless it is significant that the volume of transactions in New York continues to be enormous in spite of the stringency of the money market and that there is such active business notwithstanding dear money.

"There exists no doubt that sound business in the United States does not need to pay the high rates now prevailing; only for unsound and frothy business does the money calamity exist.

"It is not the large demands for moving harvests or the needs of regular business that give a characteristic mark to the present stringency, but dangerous overspeculation and overcapitalization. We do not forget for one moment that America has grown very strong in the past few years, and is still developing; nevertheless we cannot ignore that alongside the sound growth serious excresences appear, which contain the germ of dangerous revulsion."

CUBANS MUST BE PATIENT.

Troops Will Be Withdrawn When Treaty Is Signed.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Though recognizing in the request of the Cuban government for the withdrawal of the remaining American troops in Cuba a very natural desire to remove all traces of foreign occupation, the indications are that the authorities here will order the withdrawal only upon the completion of the permanent treaty contemplated in the Platt amendment. Both that amendment and the Cuban constitution provide that a permanent treaty shall be signed between the United States and Cuba whereby each government shall assume certain distinct obligations. Cuba for its part is not to make any foreign treaties impairing her independence; is not to assume excessive indebtedness; is to recognize the right of intervention of the United States to protect lives and property and independence; is to validate all the acts of military occupation; is to continue the sanitary measures inaugurated; is to sell or lease to the United States lands for coaling or naval stations, and is to adjust the title of the isle of Pines in a subsequent treaty. For its part the United States is to maintain the independence of Cuba and protect individual life, property and liberty. Now there is no assurance, at the present moment, that the Cuban government has a sufficient distinctively Cuban army with which to undertake to care for these things itself. Moreover it is regarded as essential that such provisions in the projected treaty as those touching coaling stations and the ownership of the isle of Pines be expressly arranged for in a treaty that shall be absolutely binding upon both parties; and only when these things are done will the troops withdraw.

CABLE READY IN 80 DAYS.

Positive Statement Made by M'Kay's Agents.

San Francisco, Sept. 26.—"Within eighty days messages will pass over the Pacific cable between San Francisco and Honolulu." This positive statement was made by Richard V. Dey, the local representative of Clarence H. Mackay, son of the late John W. Mackay.

"The steamer Silverton, with the cable on board, is due at this port in sixty days. There will be no delay here for the vessel; she will steam out to the ocean beach and in a few hours the cable will be brought ashore and safely anchored and fastened at the station. Once the American end of the line is made secure, the steamer will sail for Honolulu. Fourteen days are allowed for this trip, so that the other end of the cable may be carried ashore at the Hawaiian capital and dispatches passed over it early in December. The remainder of the cable will be laid as expeditiously as possible. It will touch at Guam and end at Manila. The cost of the project is about $12,500,000."

GENERAL ALGER TO SENATE.

Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 29.—Governor Bliss tendered the United States senatorship, made vacant by the death of Hon. James McMillan, to General Russell A. Alger of Detroit, former secretary of war in McKinley's cabinet.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 29.—Dr. J. B. Kennedy, manager of Dexter M. Ferry's campaign for the United States senate, has announced that Ferry has withdrawn from the contest. This decision on the part of Ferry was the result of a conference of party leaders. Alger's election to the senate is now considered practically assurred.

Mines in Bad Shape.

Washington, Sept. 26.—Captain G. W. Baird of the navy, who is superintendent of the state, war and navy departments building, has been obliged to purchase soft coal for use in the building. Captain Baird has caused an investigation to be made of the situation in the anthracite region, and says that the largest mines are from one-half to seven-eights full of water, and that it will take three months to pump them out and have them in full operation after starting, so that the demand for coal can be met.

A HARD STRUGGLE.

When you have a bad back, a ba... that's lame, weak or aching it's a hard struggle sometimes to find relief and cure, but it's a harder struggle when the dangers beset you... urinary disorders, too frequent urination retention of the urine with... the subsequent pains, annoyances and suffering. There are many medicines that relieve these conditions, but you want a remedy—a cure. Read this statement; it tells of a cure that lasted:

Veteran Josiah Heller, place of residence 706 South Walnut St., Urbana, Ill., says: "In the fall of 1899 I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Cunningham's drug store in Champaign and after taking the remedy conscientiously I made a public statement of the results. I told how Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me of kidney trouble, disposed of my lame back and the pains across my loins, between the shoulder blades, etc. During the interval which has elapsed I have had occasion at times to resort to Doan's Kidney Pills when I noticed warnings of another attack, and in each and every occasion the result obtained was just as satisfactory as when the pills were first brought to my notice. At this time I just as emphatically indorse the preparation as I did several years ago."

"Gracious!" exclaimed Farmer Kraft's wife, "you don't mean to say you bought a gold brick in town?" "Yep. Cost me seventeen cents," replied Farmer Kraft, "but I'm telling everybody it cost fifteen hundred dollars. You see, if folks hear of me spendin' that much fur a gold brick I'll be able to get all kinds o' credit."

The front-door bell rang furiously. A head adorned with shaggy and unmanageable whiskers was thrust out of the chamber window, and a voice befitted the beard inquired, "Who is it?" "Oh, is this Mr. Higgins?" came a shrill voice from the shade of the doorway below. "Yes." "Please come to No. 41 High street just as quick as you can, and bring your instruments." "I ain't no doctor—I'm a carpenter. Dr. Higgins lives two doors below," and the window was closed down with a slam, when "Please, ma," said the little voice, "it's you we want. # The Klondyke Gold Mystery.

By JOHN R. MUSICK,

Author of "Mysterious Mr. Howard," "The Dark Stranger," "Charlie Allendale's Double," Etc.

Copyright, 1897, by ROBERT BONNER'S SONS. All rights reserved.

CHAPTER III.—(Continued.)

He closed his eyes and in a few moments was unconscious. When he awoke he found the strange hermit at his side bending over him and gazing eagerly into his face. He turned slowly away and went back to the fire.

A moment later he brought him some meat and said:

"You had better eat; you are weak."

This was quite a long sentence for the hermit, and he paused after speaking to rest. Paul took the broiled steak and ate sparingly. It was very juicy and nutritious, and he began to feel stronger in a few moments after he had finished. The hermit meanwhile had resumed his seat on a large stone in front of the fire.

There was now another expression on his face. It was an expression of sadness. The more Paul studied the features of this strange man the more mysterious they seemed. He lay for a long time looking at him and asking himself a thousand questions. Then he grew weary of gazing and thinking and closed his eyes. Consciousness had almost slipped away when a movement in the cavern caused him to again open his eyes. The hermit was preparing to leave.

He took up the rude lamp, in which burned some kind of oil, and went to the opposite side of the cavern. He set the lamp on a flat stone, and putting his hand into a sort of crevice in the rocky wall pulled forth something. It was in a roll. He unrolled it and gazed at it intently.

From where he lay Paul saw that the object when unrolled was part of a tanned hide of some sort of an animal.

"I hope he will leave it," thought Paul. "If he does I will examine it. There is writing on it, and it may contain some clew to this Klondyke mystery that so nearly drives me mad."

All the movements of the hermit were slow and deliberate. He went carefully toward the entrance of the cavern. Long Paul lay on the couch listening for the slight tread of the moccasined feet, but he came not back.

"He has gone!" said Paul.

He rose to a sitting position and gazed about the cavern.

After a few moments he rose to his feet. With a wildly beating heart he began his tour of exploration. The oil lamp had been left burning on a square stone, and he picked it up and went along the great natural corridor for some distance until he came upon a great chamber with lofty ceilings.

He began to search for the crevice in the rock where he had seen the man place the skin on which was the writing. Paul found the roll and drew it out.

It proved to be a piece of walrus hide covered all over with strange pictures and hieroglyphics such as the Indian picture writers use. It was almost round, and he could find no beginning nor end to it.

The report of a gun near the mouth of the cavern caused him to thrust the walrus hide into the crack and hasten into the deeper recesses of the cavern.

CHAPTER IV.

Meeting a Friend With Bad News.

It is necessary at this point in our story to return to Clarence Berry's party, which we left on the top of the Chilkoot Pass in a raging storm. All through that terrible night Clarence Berry lay thinking of his young wife, whom he had packed away as comfortable as possible in that terrible height in the frigid zone. Day dawned bright and clear and he arose early and called to his wife:

"Ethel, Ethel, are you alive?"

There came no answer until he had pulled away some of the packages that formed her apartment; then he heard her voice answering:

"I am all right, Clarence."

"Thank God!" ejaculated the husband. "I feared you had perished during that terrible storm."

Dick and "Hemstitch," the Esquimaux, were self-constituted cooks, and prepared a breakfast of a pot of boiled beans and a little coffee, which froze on the slightest provocation.

When breakfast was over two sleds were loaded with supplies, and without dogs or any one to draw them, started down the mountain. Two weeks were consumed in reaching Lake Linderman. Here they were detained another week, completing a boat with which they could make their way down the river.

One night, after a day of arduous toil, they camped at the foot of a mountain protected from the north wind by a steep precipice. The dogs had been unharnessed, fed and lay sleeping about the sleds. The tired Indians, having had supper, were stretched before the fire. Ethel, attired in furs, sat on a sled which had been drawn up before the blazing logs. Her proud husband declared she looked like an angelic Esquimaux queen.

Dick reclined on the skin of a musk-ox telling a story in which there was blended Bowery slang and western dialect. Suddenly one of the dogs started up and gave vent to a low growl, cutting the story short. The guide gave a sharp whistle and seized his rifle. The others at once laid their hands on their guns and stood on the defensive.

A few moments later a large object could be seen in the distance slowly advancing toward them. Owing to the dim, uncertain light all at first were of the opinion it was a bear, and one or two cocked their guns and stepped out a short distance from the light to get a better shot at the animal. The guide suddenly called:

"Hold! It's a man!"

"'Course it is," growled a voice in the distance. "What did ye think it was—a walrus?"

A man clothed in furs, holding a rifle in his hand, came forward and advanced toward the fire.

Ethel rose trembling with fright at the appearance of this strange apparition, and clung to the arm of her husband.

"Who is he?" she whispered. "Where did that terrible man come from?"

Though the question was not intended for the ears of this strange man, he heard them, and in a voice like the deep tones of far-off thunder he answered:

"I am from the Klondyke, where you seem to be going; a place where gold can be raked up by the handful."

"Who are you? What is your name?" Berry asked, advancing toward the Klondyker and extending his hand toward him.

"I am called Glum Ralston," he answered.

"What are you doing here?"

"Hunting for a friend."

By this time Clarence Berry had clasped his hand and brought him near the camp fire, where he bade him be seated and tell his troubles.

"I hain't much at spinning yarns," the ex-sailor answered. "My friend was robbed on the Klondyke a few months ago, an' at the same time laid up for repairs——"

Ethel grasped her husband's hand and mentally ejaculated, "It was Paul."

She listened with the keenest interest to the story of Glum Ralston, and tears gathered in her eyes. She knew the missing companion was none other than Paul Miller, whose fate would perhaps never be known.

"Oh, heaven, poor Laura! how shall we break this terrible news to her, Clarence?" she sobbed.

The young husband made no answer, and Glum Ralston, lighting his pipe, proceeded to smoke in silence.

CHAPTER V.

THE WALRUS HIDE.

Paul Miller ran two or three hundred paces into the cavern until it grew so dark he had to grope his way and he came to a halt.

From around a projecting stone he turned his gaze back to the chamber which was lighted by the lamp.

He saw the hermit come at a run toward the inner chamber, three men pursuing him. They were so close on him that he halted by the side of the couch and turned at bay. A third man at this moment appeared on the scene and seized his arms from behind and hurled him to the cavern floor.

Paul Miller had all along watched the exciting contest. He started toward the chamber, where they were tying the hermits's hands with strips of walrus skin, and was almost near enough to call out when he suddenly halted and gave them a stare.

"They are the robbers themselves!" he gasped in a whisper. "What in heaven does this mean!" He quickly slunk away behind some masses of rock, broken from the side of the cavern.

Completely concealed from the actors in this singular drama, Paul was enabled to observe all that went on. There seemed to be only violence enough on the part of the captors to effect the capture of the hermit. When this was effected they began pleading with him to do something, or make some revelation. After a few words, the captive became silent and sullen. His captors plied him with many questions and he refused to answer any of them. At last, leaving him in charge of one man, the other two began to search the cavern. When they came near Paul he crouched in the smallest possible space and scarce dared to breathe.

One of the two searchers was the very man whom he had chased up the mountain side.

As they passed one of them mentioned a name which caused him to start so violently as to almost discover himself to them. It was Lackland.

Lackland was the wealthy banker and speculator of his own town, who had been a rival for the heart and hand of Laura Bush. What did these mysterious men of the Klondyke know about him, or what had he to do with them?

Almost maddened by despair Paul fell upon his knees and furiously beat his breast with his hands while the captors led the prisoner away.

They had taken up the oil lamp and carried it with them, and Paul was soon in total darkness. In his fit of desperation he rose and followed them. At the entrance of the cavern he halted and gazed off after the captors and prisoner. A thousand tumultuous emotions swayed his heart, and again in despair he beat his breast with his hands.

"Oh, cruel, cruel fate! Why did I not know he was my friend and defend him!"

He gazed helplessly at the little party until they had disappeared from his view and then threw himself upon the floor of the cavern in despair. But his better judgment came to his relief and starting up he seized the lamp and started back toward the fire to light it. It seemed an age before the faint glow from the dying embers told him where the fire was. He at last reached the spot, and with a pine stick raked the living coals together. Laying on two or three smaller sticks he blew them into a blaze and lighted the lamp.

After a short rest he was prepared to travel, but he remembered the walrus hide, with its mysterious hieroglyphics, and determined to take it with him. He was unable to make out anything from the hide, and rolling it up thrust it in one of his capacious pockets, and taking some of the provisions left in the cavern, went out and buckled on his snow shoes to leave the place forever. He tramped until night and then spreading a blanket on the snow slept soundly. A snow fell during the night, and when he awoke he shook off the white gown of nature and ate some of the roasted moose meat he had brought with him.

For over a week he wandered about in the wilderness, subsisting on fish he caught in the river and a deer which he shot, but not seeing a human being. Paul had no compass to steer his course, and was often lost among the mountains.

One day he came upon a fresh trail in the snow as if a party with Indian porters, dogs and sledges had made their way over the snow toward Forty Mile Camp.

He sat down at the side of the path to rest and think. A slight crunching of snow but a short distance from him caused him to look up, and he saw a man coming on snow shoes, a rifle on his shoulder. A single glance at those familiar features, and he cried:

"Glum—Glum Ralston!"

The solitary traveler paused, started back in surprise, clutching his gun for an instant as if he would use it; then dropping it on the snow, gave vent to a whoop that would have done credit to a wild Indian, and bounding forward had Paul about the neck, crying:

"Crack-lash alive, by th' trident o' Neptune."

"Where have you been?" asked Paul.

"Cruisin' about lookin' for you," he answered. "Where you been?"

Paul told the story of his adventures, concluding with his escape from the cave.

"I have found the mystery about me thickening all the time, and this walrus hide covered with strange pictures and hieroglyphics is the chief of all mysteries."

Glum Ralston took the walrus hide, unrolled it, and gazing at it with wildly dilating eyes which indicated his strange interest, demanded:

"Where did you get it?"

"From the hermit."

"Th' hermit—the hermit—the man that owns this hide—the man who saved you, is my old captain!" cried the excited prospector with a shout. "Where is he? where is he! It's my old captain—I'll go home to Kate yet. Where is he? where is he? where is he?" he shouted almost fiercely, while Paul was too much dumbfounded to utter a word.

"Be calm, Glum, and explain what you mean!" cried Paul.

Holding up the piece of walrus hide, Glum said:

"I've seen this before."

"Where?"

"On board the 'Eleanor.'"

"Who had it there?"

"The red-skin as had the stran' o' gold nuggets about his neck."

Paul's interest in the walrus hide increased. The old man continued in a gleeful tone:

"Oh, he lives, he lives! I will find him, tell him I've been true to him all these years and take 'im home."

Suddenly he became more composed, and, turning his eyes on Paul, asked: "Where is he?"

"I don't know."

"What! you have seen him and let him escape?"

"I could not help myself; they came and dragged him away."

OBJECT LESSON FOR WIFE.

Cincinnati Man's Device to Show Her Value of Money.

The following story is told of a certain wealthy financier of Cincinnati reputed to be penurious. His wife intended going to a fashionable summer resort, and desired to equip herself with proper wearing apparel. When she told her husband that she needed about $1,000 he nearly fainted. She pleaded for the money and said that she needed every cent of it in order to make a respectable showing against other rich women. He at first could not see it that way. His wife maintained that it would be no trouble to write out a check for the $1,000 but he demurred and finally told her he would think it over.

The next morning shortly before noon a man knocked at the front door of the banker's residence and asked for the wife. She appeared, whereupon the man said: "Mr. —— sent me up here with the $1,000 you wanted." It is needless to say that her face brightened up, and she was so glad that she almost hugged the man who bore this good news.

"Well," she said, "where is the money? Give it to me."

"You'll have to get someone to help me. I brought it up on a dray," he answered.

It turned out that the banker had sent up 1,000 silver dollars carefully packed in a box. He afterward claimed that he did this to impress his wife with an idea as to how much $1,000 is. Had he sent a check it would in a few hours have looked like thirty cents to her.

Biggest Cigar in the World.

Paymaster General Bates of the army possesses the largest cigar in the world. It is sixty-three inches long, and as large around as a man's arm at the thickest section.

Its composition includes twenty-two classes of Philippine tobacco. The huge cigar is the gift of Major W. H. Comegys, of the pay department, who sent it to the paymaster general with this note:

"I send you the largest cigar you have ever seen—at least, the largest I have ever seen. It is made of a number of the finest brands of tobacco grown on the islands. This was manufactured at San Fernando do Union, in Union Province, P. I. The case is also a curiosity. It may be called a family cigar, as all smoke it, and the grandmother is supposed to finish it or the cigar to finish the grandmother."—Washington Correspondence St. Louis Republic.

Beautiful Mummy Blue.

Hamlet reflected curiously upon the fact that the body of a great ruler might yet come to be used to "stop a hole to keep the wind away," but modern ingenuity has discovered more useful, if not more honorable, uses for the bodies of departed emperors. Manufacturers of artists' colors now often use mummies in making their colors, and it is almost certain that a small percentage of some ancient Egyptian rulers went to compose some of the colors used by various R. A.'s in painting their portraits for this year's Academy. Mummies were usually preserved in bitumen or the best pitch, and this blended with the bone of the mummy gives a peculiarly beautiful tint, especially in brown or dark blue. The export of mummies is now forbidden, but one will last a manufacturer for years. The colors so made are principally used by portrait painters.—London Tatler.

If a man is able to make a bluff at crying a woman will forgive him anything.

HUNDREDS DIE IN A CYCLONE

Everything in a Path 124 Miles Long Was Destroyed.

COAST OF SICILY DEVASTATED

Property Damage Is Estimated at Millions of Lire—One Hundred Bodies Were Found at Modica and Four Hundred Are Thought to Be Dead.

London, Sept. 27.—A dispatch from Rome announces that a severe cyclone has swept over Catania, a city on the east coast of Sicily. Catania is flooded and many houses, including the villa Bellini, have been damaged. The railroads have suffered seriously. The cyclone also wrought havoc at Modica, a town of Sicily, where several persons were killed. Mount Etna shows further signs of activity, and the volcano of Stromboli is still active.

A dispatch from Syracuse, Sicily, direct, says that the stream flowing through Modica, swollen by the recent terrific storm, suddenly overflowed, inundating the town and that several houses collapsed and a number of families perished. The country in the vicinity of Modica is flooded and the prefect, with a force of troops, has started for the place in order to render assistance to the sufferers.

Syracuse, Sicily, Sept. 27.—For twenty-four hours before the cyclone burst, a violent storm raged on the eastern coast of Sicily. The path of the cyclone was 124 miles long, and everything in the line of the storm was destroyed. The sea swept inland for several kilometres, doing great damage, while there were violent submarine agitations between Sicily and the mainland. Along the railroad from Catania to Palermo the force of the cyclone was such that rails were torn up and hurled to a great distance.

It is reported from Modica, 32 miles west-southwest from Syracuse, that a hundred bodies have already been found, but that the number of the dead bodies swept away by the torrent is unknown.

The newspaper, Fractissa, expresses the belief that some 400 people have been killed.

The torrent destroyed everything on the ground floors in houses in the lower portions of Modica. Bridges and roads have disappeared and damage amounting to many million lire has been done. (A lire is worth about 20 cents.)

The survivors of the catastrophe have taken refuge in the hills. A relief committee and searching parties have been organized at Modica. The disaster is supposed to have been due to a marine water spout. The German steamer Caprera was wrecked at Catania after a terrible struggle in the waves.

A large portion of the low lying part of Modica has been destroyed. The number of victims is still unknown, but eighty corpses have been discovered in a single church. At Soicli 12 persons were killed. Tascaro was destroyed. Enormous damage was done at Palazzolo, Acreide, Farla and Geratana.

NEGRO BURNED TO DEATH.

Punishment Meted Out to a Mississippi Murderer.

Corinth, Miss., Sept. 29.—Writhing in the flames of burning fagots, piled high by hundreds of citizens, Tom Clark, alias Will Gibson, a young negro,, was burned at the stake here at a late hour yesterday after having confessed to one of the most atrocious crimes in the history of north Mississippi, the assault and murder of Mrs. Carey Whitfield, on August 19 last.

Before the torch was applied Clark stated that he deserved his fate. Last August Mrs. Whitfield, the wife of a well known citizen, was found dead in her home. Investigation showed that the woman had been assaulted and her head practically severed from her body, a razor having been used in the bloody work.

Several suspects were arrested, but in each case an alibi was proven. A committee of twelve citizens were named to continue the search for the murderer and these men have been very active in their work. On Monday last it became known that Tom Clark, a negro living near here, had had trouble with his wife and the latter threatened to disclose the secret of a crime.

Officers apprehended the woman and she told enough to warrant the belief that Clark had murdered Mrs. Whitfield.

Clark was brought before the committee of twelve in Corinth and finally confessed to the murder and also told of other crimes that he had committed. He said that several years ago he killed two men on an excursion train in Mississippi. He told of an outrage perpetrated by himself upon a negro woman.

Clark said he had covered up his tracks in a way to deceive the officers of the law.

TOWER FOR GERMAN MISSION.

Transferred from the Russian Mission to that of Berlin.

Berlin, Sept. 26.—President Roosevelt has chosen Charlemagne Tower, ambassador to Russia, to succeed Mr. White as ambassador to Germany. Notifications of this decision and that Mr. White's letter of recall had been issued by the state department have reached the foreign office here.

The appointment of Mr. Tower had been expected here for several weeks. As he was passing through Berlin six weeks ago he gave a hint to one or two of his friends that he might be transferred to this court. Mr. White will probably not have his farewell audience with the emperor November 7, his birthday, as had been previously arranged, because his majesty leaves November 5 for England. The retiring ambassador, therefore, is not likely to present his letters of recall until about the middle of November.

Washington, Sept. 26.—The appointment of Charlemagne Tower as ambassador to Germany to succeed Mr. White is confirmed here.

Mr. Tower's acceptance of the German mission will create a vacancy in the ambassadorship in Russia, which is now held by him. It is regarded as quite likely that he will in turn be succeeded by Hon. Bellamy Storer, present ambassador to the court of Madrid. It is intimated further that the vacancy in the Spanish mission may be filled by the appointment of Henry White, present secretary of the embassy in Great Britain.

SHE CRIED WHEN SHE PUT HER CLOTHES ON.

This is what Miss Jessie Stephenson of 30 Hartington Road, Aberdeen, says when writing to the Proprietors of St. Jacobs Oil, the remedy which cured her:

"I was very bad with rheumatism. I could not put my clothes on without crying out. I always had to have assistance to dress myself. I obtained a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil, and after its contents were used I was much better. I used the contents of two more bottles, and now I am able to do my work as usual. I would recommend anyone troubled with rheumatism to use St. Jacobs Oil."

Miss Stephenson's present condition is a very great contrast to what it was before she used St. Jacobs Oil; then she was practically helpless, suffered the greatest agony—but now she is free from pain, and able to do her work. Surely such evidence as this is most convincing that St. Jacobs Oil "Conquers Pain."

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

FOR IRRITATIONS OF THE SKIN, RASHES, Heat Perspiration, Lameness, and Soreness incidental to Canoeing, Riding, Cycling, Tennis, or any Athletics, no other application so soothing, cooling, and refreshing as a bath with CUTICURA SOAP, followed by gentle anointings with CUTICURA, the Great Skin Cure.
Millions of Women use CUTICURA SOAP for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes and chafings, in the form of baths for annoying irritations and inflammations of women, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odours. Nothing can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others.

The Kirkland flats, a building which had just been completed at Mason City, at a cost of $100,000, was completely destroyed by fire one day last week.

Henry Pietzke left on Tuesday afternoon's train for Clear Lake, S. D. If the country suits him he contemplates buying a good slice of terra firma in that locality.

In the last issue of the Algona Upper Des Moines Republican considerable space was devoted to an historical sketch of Louis Kossuth, the Hungarian after which the county was named. It was very interesting reading matter, and showed much enterprise on the part of the publishers.

We returned to our work on Tuesday morning, and hereafter the TIMES office will be opened six days out of the week. We went to Crystal Lake on Friday and packed our household goods and there they will have to remain unless some kind hearted individual vacates a dwelling house. Then if some matrimonial candidate does not beat us to it, we will have a house to live in.

Schroeder—Bartz.

On Wednesday the marriage of Chas. Schroeder and Miss Lena Bartz was solemnized, Rev. Mullemire officiating. This happy event took place at the home of the bride's parents a short distance east of town, and took place in the presence of a large number of invited guests. After the ceremony, delicious refreshments were served, and a wedding party was given which lasted well into Wednesday night.

Both the young people are well known here, they are well spoken of and are very popular with their associates. The groom is a steady, industrious, young man, and will make for the young lady whose heart he has won, a splendid home. The bride has grown to womanhood in our midst, and is much admired for her true womanhood. The young people will be at home on their farm about six miles northeast of town after October 15, 1902.

The TIMES extends congratulations to the happy young people, and trusts that their walk will be strewn with roses as they journey down life's pathway together.

Democratic Caucus.

There will be a democratic caucus in W. R. Bloom's office on Saturday evening, October 11, 1902, at eight o'clock, for the purpose of placing in nomination township officers. All believers in democratic principles are urged to be present.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Oct. 6, 1902.

The state executive council voted to purchase the portrait of Senator James Harlan, now in the historical building. It has been the property of Mrs. N. C. Deering of Osage. The last general assembly authorized the council to purchase a portrait to cost not to exceed $1,000.

Judge B. P. Birdsall of Clarion, candidate for congress in the Third district, visited in the city, accompanied by George Wright of Eagle Grove, the newly elected chairman of the congressional committee of the district. Judge Birdsall came to Des Moines from Dubuque, where he and Mr. Wright had been investigating the situation. On arriving here, Judge Birdsall and Mr. Wright held a conference with Governor Cummins and State Chairman R. H. Spence. The campaign in the Third district was discussed and various matters connected with the plans for it were considered. Judge Birdsall and Mr. Wright were in the city primarily to arrange for speakers in the district. Governor Cummins expects to do hard work there. He will speak at Dubuque and Waterloo, and probably several other points. The dates have not been made public.

Eleven institutions for the training of teachers have been accredited under the provisions of the new law and by authority of the state board of educational examiners. State Superintendent Barrett has announced the following as the colleges and other institutions that had been found up to the required standard: Buena Vista college, Storm Lake; Cornell College academy, Mt. Vernon; Denison Normal college, Denison; Ellsworth college, Iowa Falls; Epworth seminary, Epworth; Highland Park college, Des Moines; LeMars Normal college, LeMars; Tobin college, Ft. Dodge; Upper Iowa university, Fayette; Western normal, Shenandoah; Lenox college, Hopkinton. Prof. H. H. Freer of Cornel college at Mt. Vernon has made the inspection on behalf of the board. Faculty, course of study, buildings and equipment have been found to be satisfactory or will soon be made so and the schools named have been approved and accredited. Correspondence has been had with three or four other schools looking toward inspection. They will, at their own request, be inspected later. A number of high schools have also signified their desire to undertake the training of teachers under the new law, that their graduates may have the privilege of writing for two year state certificates.

The state of Iowa has a claim against a man named Thornton of Missouri, for $2,500. Auditor of State Merriam has taken the matter up under section 89 of the code that requires the auditor "to settle the accounts of all public debtors for debts due the state treasury, and to require such persons or their legal representatives, who have not accounted, to settle their alleged accounts." The alleged debtor in this case is John J. Thornton, an insane patient at Independence hospital, who has been at the institution since June 10, 1887, and on whose support the state has expended $2,500. Thornton has an estate at St. Louis and Auditor of State Merriam has made a demand on the administrator for payment. In a letter prepared for the administrator, Mr. Merriam calls attention to the Iowa law. It is understood the estate of Thornton is ample to meet the amount and the question is whether there is anything in the Missouri law to prevent Iowa from recovering. Mr. Merriam said the question of recovery for support of patients has never to his knowledge come up in the same form before this time.

The state of Iowa has over a million dollars in general revenue in her treasury, as shown by figures given out after the governor and state auditor checked over the state's financial condition. The figures just given out are the result of the settlement made between the state auditor and state treasurer every quarter. According to these figures the general revenue on hand is $1,056,127. A year ago at this time there was but $831,514.24 on hand in general revenue. There has been redeemed in warrants for the past quarter, or in other words, paid out in general revenue, the sum of $749,544.24. The balances shown by the books in the auditor's office at the close of business September 30, 1902, are as follows:

|---|---|
| General revenue | $1,056,127.00 |
| Agricultural college endowment fund | 673,275.89 |
| Special Iowa State college revenue | 26,756.35 |
| Agricultural college additional endowment | 25,000.00 |
| Special university revenue | 15,979.96 |
| Agricultural college interest | 1,802.96 |
| Swamp land indemnity fund | 652.80 |
| Total | $1,799,594.87 |

The auditor found cash on hand and in banks, $1,148,744.87, and agricultural college mortgage bonds amounting to $670,850, making a total on hand of $1,799,594.87.

Through a clerical error the latest certificate sent out from the executive council to the various county auditors of the state gave the general state levy for 1902 as 5 mills, when in fact it is but 3½ mills. The certificate was purely an oversight and new certificates were obtained and sent out, leaving the county auditors in suspense as to the mistake only about twelve hours.

The tragedian's face relaxed into an expression of joy.

When a glacier dislodges itself and sails away over the Arctic seas, it never travels alone. In the wake of every large one floats a line of smaller companions. The Eskimos call this phenomenon "the duck and ducklings," and any one who has watched the progress of the elder duck followed by her brood will appreciate the aptitude of the name.

To reduce her weight, a San Francisco lady fasted forty-five days. She succeeded to a greater extent than she intended, for just as she became gracefully slim death transformed her into an angel.

In his "Reniscences," Frederick Goodall tells a story of Washington as an art connoisseur. He paid Wilkie six hundred guineas for his "Chelsea Pensioners," and laboriously counted out the amount in cash. When the artist suggested that it would be less trouble to write a check, the great duke replied that he would not let his bankers know "what a d—n fool I have been to spend six hundred guineas for a picture."

What Has Been Going on During the Past Week.

DIPSOMANIACS ARE NUMEROUS

Department at Mt. Pleasant Is Filled to Overflowing, and It May Be Necessary to Provide Departments at Other Institutions.

Des Moines, Oct. 3.—The board of control is seriously considering the question of establishing a second department for inebriates in another one of the state hospitals. At the present rate of increase of inebriates, the department at the Mt. Pleasant hospital will soon be filled. Judge Robinson said yesterday, if the number of patients committed to the inebriate department continued to grow as it has been, that it would be necessary to establish departments in all the hospitals and that all of them would be filled by the time the legislature meets a year from next winter.

The board has received the report for Mt. Pleasant for September. September 30 there were eighty-five patients being treated there under the new dipsomaniac law. The department for inebriates was opened the middle of July. In July ten patients were received, in August, thirty-six, and in September forty-four, a total of ninety. Discharges, deaths and escapes have cut down the total to eighty-five. An examination of the reports on the insane population at Mt. Pleasant shows that in the whole month of July twenty-seven patients were admitted, in August, nine, and in September sixteen. In September ten insane patients were admitted to Cherokee. The reports on Independence and Clarinda hospitals have not been received, but the board is convinced the number is as large as the total number of insane admitted to the four state hospitals. What to do with the inebriates become a quandary and the board is at a loss to know to what lengths the new law is going to compel it to go in the way of providing room for the dipsomaniacs.

Des Moines, Oct. 4.—The state board of control yesterday issued an order establishing a second hospital for inebriates in Iowa. The new hospital is to be located at Cherokee and will receive commitments after October 10 from the territory embraced by the Cherokee and Independence insane hospital districts of the state. These two districts comprise practically the north half of the state, which leaves the entire southern half to be accommodated by the ward for inebriates at Mount Pleasant state hospital.

HENDERSHOTT'S LIGHT VERDICT

Jury Finds Man who Killed Cell Mate Guilty of Manslaughter.

Burlington, Oct. 6.—The jury in the case of John Hendershott found the defendant "guilty of manslaughter." It was believed the accused man would get a life sentence, if not one of death. The sentence under a manslaughter verdict is at most eight years in the penitentiary. The first ballot showed but one vote for murder in the first degree and two for manslaughter, the rest being for murder in the second degree. After an all-night session, composed chiefly of arguments, the twelve men finally came to an agreement on manslaughter.

Hendershott was a prisoner in the county jail. The fellow prisoners, to pass away the time, organized what they called a "kangaroo" court in which they tried each other for petty offenses against imaginary prison rules, etc. Hendershott was accused of playing cards during divine service one Sunday and was sentenced to a half dozen lashes.

"Dr." Trent, another prisoner, was appointed to execute the sentence. He did so with a harness strap which had a buckle on it. Hendershott was sullen during that day and in the evening while Trent and several other prisoners were playing cards he slipped up behind him and cut his throat with a razor he had stolen from his cell. He was considered to be fiendish and cold-blooded, but the plea of the defense was that Hendershott had been driven into temporary insanity by the abuse and threats of Trent. The "kangaroo" court has been abolished from the county jail.

HENDERSHOTT TELLS STORY.

Claims Was in Fear of Man Killed in Burlington Jail.

Burlington, Oct. 2.—The most interesting part of the proceedings of the Hendershott murder trial was the appearance of the prisoner on the stand to testify in his own behalf. He told the story of the crime as he remembered it. He is an intelligent fellow and made a good witness. He claimed Dr. Trent was brutal to the other prisoners and that he was in fear of him. He said Trent had been talking of a scheme to murder the jailor. He feared him because he had mesmeric powers. On the day of the murder Trent carried out the sentence of the "Kangaroo court" in an unusually rough manner, striking him on his breast with a harness strap with a buckle on it. He felt dizzy and weak. He procured a razor and when an opportunity came he cut Trent's throat. He declares he did not want to kill Trent, but was impelled to do so by a morbid fear of him. Photographs were introduced to show Hendershott before the murder and afterwards. The first picture shows him as an intelligent looking young man, the other as a half crazed person.

PATENTS ARE MISSING.

Dubuque Property Holders Have No Titles to Their Real Estate.

Dubuque, Oct. 4.—There are a number of property owners in Dubuque who have no patents for their land. They are, therefore, without a clear title and unless they write to the government land office at Des Moines trouble may be experienced in the future. Notice was received a few days ago from Washington to the effect that there were no original patents for Dubuque town lots. County Recorder McGovern entered into correspondence with the United States land office in Des Moines and a letter was received stating that the patents were on file there and that they would be delivered to the present owners on surrender of the receiver's duplicate receipt. In case the latter was lost a separate affidavit must be made for the tract embraced in each entry by the present owner, stating that he is the present owner, that the receipt has been lost and that the affidavit is made for the purpose of receiving the patent.

CHILDREN ARE IGNORING LAW.

Residents of Des Moines Business Districts Out of School.

Des Moines, Oct. 3.—Out of more than 800 children of school age in the business districts in Des Moines, 215 are out of school and indirectly violating the compulsory education law.

J. C. Byram, the newly appointed truant officer, will make an effort to see every one of this number within the next thirty days and notify them to attend school. Their parents will also be notified and unless the provisions of the new statutes are adhered to proceedings will be commenced. When this is done it is expected a suit will be brought to test the validity of the enactment, first in the district and finally in the supreme court of Iowa.

Officer Byram is meeting with the same difficulty as that which confronted the census enumerators though his work is simplified by reason of the names and addresses the enumerators obtained of children required to attend school, turned over to him. Owners of factories, while they do not refuse the officer access to the employes, will furnish no information relative to the boys and girls, their names, ages, etc.

As soon as the officer has notified such children and their parents he will submit his report to the secretary of the school board. The names will then be placed in the hands of various principals whose duties it will be to report from time to time attendance, etc. If at the beginning of the last twelve weeks of the term they are not in attendance wholesale arrests will follow. The law provides that children under the age of 14 and over 5 shall attend school at least twelve weeks in the year. For that reason there is no way of getting at some of the violators until the beginning of this term.

CHARLES HOLADA ON STAND.

Accuses Mrs. Gallaugher of Plotting Murder.

Iowa City, Oct. 2.—Charles Holada yesterday testified that Mrs. Gallaugher plotted with him to kill her husband after the unlawful relations between Holada and the woman began and had continued for several months. They planned, Holada said, to poison him with cyanide potassium, the woman to administer the dose. Other plans, witness testified, were to kill him in the woods with an ax and leave him as though a tree had fallen on his body; to hit him in the head with an ax in the barn or throw him under the horses, or perhaps Holada should shoot him while out hunting birds as if by accident. Holada swore that the plans were made by the woman except the one as to the killing in the barn. Holada testified that the woman quarreled with her husband because of the latter's discovery of her night meeting with Holada in the barn three days before the meeting.

Iowa City, Oct. 3.—In the cross examination Holada was forced to reluctantly admit that when he came to the Gallaugher home, a stranger, and was taken into the home of the benefactor whom he so grievously wronged, he was a fugitive from justice, having fled from Ainsworth, Washington county, under an assumed name, in order to escape prosecution on a charge of seduction, though he was already a married man. But he persisted that he was not to blame for the relations between himself and Mrs. Gallaugher, and that she fairly forced her affections upon him. Mrs. Gallaugher was seen to curl her lip in scorn, at this statement. Holada admitted he was in Gallaugher's yard the night of the murder, but denied that he entered the house. He claimed to have fled an hour before the crime. One witness testified that he saw Mrs. Gallaugher and Holada together on the farm two days preceding the murder. Mrs. Gallaugher had denied before the coroner's jury that she had met Holada that day. The state has rested its case. The general belief here is that the woman will escape and that Holada has doomed himself by his admissions.

MRS. GALLAUGHER IS ACQUITTED

Long Trial on Charge of Murdering Her Husband Is Ended.

Iowa City, Oct. 6.—Mrs. Ella Gallaugher, charged jointly with Charles Holada with the murder of her husband, James Gallaugher, was acquitted after a long trial.

Mr. Holbert in his argument for the defense, talked for three solid hours. He stated that he asked no sympathy from the jury because the defendant was a woman. He proceeded to relate in detail the efforts Mrs. Gallaugher had made to uncover everything pertaining to the crime, and endeavored to convince the jury that his client was a chaste and virtuous woman, who was endeavoring to protect herself against the man who would sacrifice her to save himself. Holbert said in part:

"I have never lost my faith in the innocence of my client. If her story is true, she is innocent. It is a case of Holada vs. Gallaugher instead of a case, Iowa vs. Gallaugher. Which story will you believe. You wouldn't hang a yellow cur on the evidence given by Holada. Would you say it is proven beyond a doubt the woman is an adultress by Holada's statement? The time and place will come when I will answer to Holada's charge of a damaging conversation with him, but not in this case. I now leave the fate of Ella Gallaugher in your hands, asking not for sympathy, but justice. I see two pictures your verdict may bring, one a broken, dejected woman, incarcerated forever in a prison; the other a woman restored to her home. She confidently awaits your verdict of the two sweetest words imaginable to her, 'Not guilty.'"

DAYLIGHT ROBBERY.

Sioux City Saloon in Stock Yards District Touched for $1,000.

Sioux City, Oct. 3.—The saloon of Andy Looney in the stock yards district was daringly robbed in broad daylight about noon yesterday and $1,000 was taken from the till. The money had been placed in the drawer to cash checks for the employes of the Armour Packing company. The robbers during the preceding night had sawed a hole through the side of the building leading directly to the money drawer. They had covered it with an Elk's fair banner and had piled beer kegs in such a way as to obstruct the view from the street, not twenty feet away. Shortly before noon somebody reached a hand through the opening, cut out the bottom of the drawer, took the money and made a successful get-away. Philip Zitek, a porter who sleeps in the place at night, is being held for investigation. No other arrests have been made.

Death of Mrs. Gear.

Burlington, Oct. 6.—Mrs. John H. Gear, widow of the late Senator Gear, died here Saturday night after a lingering illness. She was born in Middlebury, Vt., where she lived until she came to Burlington. She was married to John H. Gear in December, 1852.

BIRDSALL'S ACCEPTANCE.

Republican Policy Defined by Judge Birdsall.

Clarion, Oct. 2.—Judge B. P. Birdsall, republican nominee for congress, today sent to the chairman of the committee of acceptance, his letter of acceptance of the nomination. In this he elaborates somewhat on the platform. He declares that the republican party of Iowa is now on trial before the nation sitting as an impartial jury and the battle is to be waged chiefly in the Third district. He says it is useless to imagine, futile to hope, that any one man can be greater than his party and accomplish great results in opposition to its principles and policies. After declaring that the republican party is firmly committed to the principles of protection to American labor and throughout its history has been a friend and champion, he adds:

"The republican party of Iowa does not propose to abate one jot or tittle of its faith in the essential principles or politics of protection. It does believe that the question of rates is a practical one to be governed by the conditions of time and production and that nothing sacred attaches to a mere table or rates, which should be readjusted to meet the change in conditions as they arise.

"Monopolies are born, not of the protective policy of the republican party, but of the greed and selfishness of men.

"Trusts exist in countries where trade is absoutely free, as well as in this country, where the policy of protection prevails, as witness in Britain, where hundreds of combinations with millions of capital are in existence. But monopolies, wherever found, are a common enemy of all. The republican party believes in the greatest good to the greatest number, and will not permit the policy of protection to become a shield for the greed and avarice of man, whether in the form of trusts, individuals, joint stock or corporate existence, nor a shelter beneath which designing corporations shall be able to oppress the people of this country.

"Iowa republicanism is born of our young and energetic civilization that brooks not self-pollution, that finds its prototype in our illustrious president and in our distinguished governor. Honestly interpreted there is no heresy in the Iowa idea, but, on the contrary, it is the assertion of conscious manhood, of the determination that the republican party shall be maintained and continued as it has been heretofore, the champion of all the people in every avenue of life. With every line of the platform of the republican party of Iowa, in this respect, as in all others, I am in full and happy accord.

"I accept the nomination you have tendered me with the firm confidence that the republicans of this district will maintain these principles as essential not only to our preservation as a party, but to that young and energetic civilization of which we are an integral part."

THREE RAILROADS INDICTED.

Charge of Conspiracy Brought Against Lines Reaching Waterloo.

Waterloo, Oct. 2.—Indictments were found by the grand jury yesterday against the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, the Chicago Great Western and the Illinois Central railroads on the charge of conspiracy.

The cases are brought to test the new demurrage rules which the companies have jointly had in force in Iowa since August 1, and it is claimed that under the state law which forbids corporations to combine for the purpose of fixing the price of commodities the railways can be held liable. On August 1 the railways put in force in Waterloo, as elsewhere in the state, a rule by which shippers were to charged $1 per day for each day in excess of forty-eight hours that a loaded car was held from the company.

Much complaint has been heard from the heaviest shippers as to the injustice of the ruling and the matter was brought to the attention of the grand jury last week on complaint of & Merrill, lumber and coal dealers of Cedar Falls. A charge of $5 for the holding of a car beyond the forty-eight hours' limit was made against this firm. The system of charging for cars detained is patterned after the Illinois car service rules. The question is one of wide interest and the decision will have effect not only in Iowa, but in other states where the demurrage system is in force.

A MILLION DOLLAR TAX.

Immense Sum May Have to be Paid to Pottawattamie County.

Council Bluffs, Oct. 6.—Nearly $1,000,000 may have to be paid into the Pottawattamie county treasury by the Portland Gold Mining company if the effort now being made to assess that corporation proves successful. Some time ago the Portland officials were notified to appear before County Treasurer William Arnd and show cause why their company should not be listed for taxation for the last five years on a stock valuation of $9,000,000. With a levy similar to last year's, the tax on this valuation would amount to about $191,000 a year, or $955,000 for the five years. This is equal to about three-fourths of the taxes paid by the entire county. Pottawatamie county is already practically out of debt and such a windfall would make it the richest county in the state, and would almost wipe away the municipal obligations of Council Bluffs.

SHOT DEAD BY OFFICER.

J. W. Johnson Killed by Marshal Thomas Smith.

Albia, Oct. 6.—J. W. Johnson, a young farmer living near town, was fatally shot by Marshal Thomas Smith Saturday night. Johnson was walking along the street in company with his father. He had been drinking, and Marshal Smith attempted to arrest him. Johnson resisted. After a brief struggle Johnson broke away from the officer and the latter fired two shots. One took effect just over the heart. Johnson died almost instantly.

Football Player Badly Injured.

Sioux City, Oct. 6.—Orville Laylor, left half of the Sioux City high school team, was seriously and possibly fatally injured in a game here between the Sioux City and Onawa high school teams. Laylor played a hard game and was repeatedly bruised. He was seriously ruptured and the full extent of his injuries cannot yet be determined.

Coffin Home Dedication.

Fort Dodge, Oct. 6.—The Coffin home for released convicts, known by the name of "Hope Hall," will be dedicated on October 24. Mrs. Maude Ballington Booth will be present at that time and will make the dedicatory address. The wardens of all the state penitentiaries will be invited to be present.

San Francisco is a thirsty city. It has one saloon for every twenty-two grown male inhabitants.

PRESIDENT'S EFFORTS FAIL

Conference at the White House Ends Without Agreement.

OPERATORS CONCEDE NOTHING

President Mitchell of the Mine Workers Says the Miners Are Willing to Abide by the Decision of an Arbitration Committee.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The second step in the president's efforts to effect a settlement between the anthracite coal magnates and the miners was taken yesterday. At 11:10 o'clock, ten minutes after the hour fixed for the conference, every person who had been invited to participate, with the exception of President Oliphant of the Delaware & Hudson, who sent as his personal representative David Wilcox, vice president and general counsel of the road, and President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania road, was present in the second-story front room of the temporary executive mansion, where the president since his return from Indianapolis has been living. The president during the conference was seated in a large invalid chair, his left leg extended at full length, resting upon a cushion. The president greeted most cordially each of his guests as they appeared and when all were assembled he stated to them in a brief preliminary way his object in calling them together.

The president, fully realizing the importance of the communication that he had to make, said he had prepared a carefully worded paper on the pending controversy. He then said:

"I wish to call your attention to the fact that there are three parties affected by the situation in the anthracite trade—the operators, the miners and the general public. I speak for neither the operators nor the miners, but for the public. The question at issue which led to the situation affects immediately the parties concerned, the operators and the miners; but the situation itself vitally affects the public. As long as there seemed to be a reasonable hope that these matters could be adjusted between the parties it did not seem proper for me to intervene in any way. I disclaim any right or duty to intervene in this way upon legal grounds or upon any official relation that I bear to the situation; but the urgency and the terrible nature of the catastrophe impending over a large portion of our people in the shape of a winter fuel famine impels me, after much anxious thought, to believe that my duty requires me to use whatever influence I possibly can to bring to an end a situation which has become literally intolerable. I wish to emphasize the character of the situation and to say that its character is such that I am constrained urgently to insist that each one of you realize the heavy burden of responsibility upon him. We are upon the threshhold of winter, with an already existing coal famine, the future terrors of which we can hardly appreciate. The evil possibilities are so far-reaching and appalling that it seems to me that you are not only justified in sinking for the time being, but required to sink for the time being, any tenacity as to your respective claims in the matter at issue between you. It is my judgment that the situation imperatively requires that you meet upon the commonplace necessities of the public. With all the earnestness there is in me I ask that there be an immediate resumption of operation in the coal mines in some such way as will, without a day's unnecessary delay, meet the needs of the people. I do not invite a discussion of your respective claims and positions. I appeal to your patriotism, to the spirit that sinks personal considerations and makes individual sacrifices for the general good."

At the afternoon conference, President Baer of the operators, read his statement, which is in substance as follows:

"To the President of the United States: We understand your anxiety as forcibly expressed in the statement you read to us this morning to bring about an immediate resumption of operations in the coal mines in some such way as will, without a day's unnecessary delay, meet the crying needs of the people. We infer that you desire us to consider the offer of Mr. Mitchell verbally made this morning, expressing and speaking for the United Mine Workers, to go back to work, if you would appoint a commission to determine the questions at issue.

"You distinctly say that you 'do not invite a discussion of your respective claims and positions.' But we assume that a statement of what is going on in the coal regions will not be irrelevant. We represent the owners of coal mines in Pennsylvania. There are from fifteen to twenty thousand men at work mining and preparing coal. They are abused, assaulted, injured and maltreated by the United Mine Workers. They can only work under the protection of armed guards. Thousands of other workmen are deterred from working by the intimidations, violence and crimes inaugurated by the United Mine Workers, over whom John Mitchell, whom you invited to meet you, is chief.

"I need not picture the daily crimes committed by the members of this organization. The 'domestic tranquility' which every constitution declares is the chief object of government does not exist in the coal regions. There is a terrible reign of lawlessness and crime there. Only the lives and property of the members of the secret oath-bound order which declared that the locals should 'have full power to suspend operations at collieries' until the non-union men joined their order, are safe. Every effort is made to prevent the mining of coal, and when mined, Mr. Mitchell's men dynamite bridges and tracks, mob trainmen, and by all manner of violence try to prevent its shipment to relieve the public.

"The constitution of Pennsylvania guarantees protection to life and property. In express terms it declares the right of acquiring, possessing, and defending property 'to be inalienable.' When riot and anarchy is too great to be appeased by the civil power, the governor of Pennsylvania is bound to call out the state troops to suppress it. He must fearlessly use the whole power of the state to protect life and property and to establish peace—not an armed peace, but the peace of the law which protects every man at work and going to and from work. Gradually the power of the law is asserting itself. Unless encouraged by false hopes, order will soon be restored and then we can mine coal to meet the public wants. If the power of Pennsylvania is insufficient to re-establish the reign of law, the constitution of the United States requires the president, when requested by the legislature and the governor 'to suppress domestic violance.' You see, there is a lawful way to secure coal for the public.

"The duty of the hour is not to waste time negotiating with the fomenters of this anarchy and insolent defiance of law, but to do as was done in the war of the rebellion, restore the majesty of law, the only guardian of a free people, and to re-establish order and peace at any cost.

"The government is a contemptible failure if it can only protect the lives and property, and secure the comfort of the people by compromising with the violators of law and instigators of violence and crime.

"Just now it is more important to teach ignorant men, dwelling among us, misled and used as tools by citizens of other states, that at whatever cost and inconvenience to the public Pennsylvania will use the power of government to protect not only the man who wants to work, but his wife and children while he is at work, and to punish every man who by instigation or by overt act attempts to deprive any man of his liberty to work.

"We will add to our offer 'to continue the wages existing at the time of the strike and to take up at each colliery and adjust any grievance,' this further condition—if the employers and employes at any particular colliery cannot reach a satisfactory adjustment of any alleged grievance it shall be referred to the judges of the court of common pleas of the district in which the colliery is situated for final determination

(Signed) "George F. Baer."

The following is the text of the statement made to the president by the official representative of the miners' union:

"Mr. President: At the conference this morning we, the accredited representatives of the anthracite coal mine workers, were much impressed with the views you expressed and the dangers to the welfare of our country from a prolongation of the coal strike that you so clearly pointed out. Conscious of the responsibility resting upon us, conscious of our duty to society, conscious of our obligations to the one hundred and fifty thousand mine workers whom we have the honor to represent, we have after most careful consideration, and with the hope of relieving the situation and averting the sufferings and hardships which would inevitably follow in the wake of a coal famine, decide to propose a resumption of coal mining upon the lines hereinafter suggested:

"Before doing so, Mr. President, we desire to say that we are not prompted to suggest this course because of any doubts of the justice of our claims In deferring to your wishes we are prompted by no fear on our part of our ability to continue to contest to a successful issue, thanks to the generous assistance rendered us by our fellow workers in this and other lands; to a justice-loving American public whose sympathies are always on the side of right, we are able to continue the struggle indefinitely. But, confident of our ability to demonstrate to any impartial tribunal, the equity of our demands for higher wages and improved environments, we propose that the issues culminating in this strike shall be referred to you and a tribunal of your own selection, and agree to accept your award upon all or any of the questions involved. If you will accept this responsibility and the representatives of the coal operators will signify their willingness to have your decision incorporated in an agreement, for not less than one year or more than five years, as may be mutually determined between themselves and the anthracite coal mine workers, and will pay the scale of wages which you and your tribunal appointed by you shall award, we will immediately call a convention and recommend a resumption of work, upon the understanding that the wages which shall be fixed are to go into effect from the day upon which work is resumed."

Then followed statements of the other operators—Mr. Thomas, president of the Erie railroad; John Markle, the independent operator; W. H Truesdale, president of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad; David Wilcox, vice president of the Delaware and Hudson railroad, and Mr. Fowler, president of the New York, Ontario and Western road. They all agreed with Mr. Baer and were willing to make no concessions to the miners

The president then asked Mr. Mitchell if he had anything further to say. Mr. Mitchell said:

"The charge made by the gentlemen that twenty murders have been committed in the anthracite coal regions during the present strike is untrue. If they will name the men, and will show that they have committed the murders, I will resign my position. That is a fair proposition. Mr. President, that is a fair example of how our organization and our people are maligned. The truth of the matter is, as far as I know, there have been seven deaths, unfortunately. No one regrets them more than I do. Three of them were committed by the coal and iron police, and no one else has been charged with them. God knows the miners do not escape being charged with everything done there. They speak about burnings. There was a reward offered for burnings. I can bring affidavits of a hundred people if necessary that the lightning caused one burning that they charged to the United Mine Workers. Mr. President, I have admitted on more than one occasion that there has been some lawlessness, but will say that a large portion of such lawlessness has been provoked by criminals who have been brought into the anthracite regions to recruit the coal and iron police. I want to say, Mr. President, that I feel very keenly the attacks made upon me and my people, but I came here with the intention of doing nothing and saying nothing that would affect reconciliation."

The president then asked the representatives of the anthracite companies whether they would accept Mr. Mitchell's proposition. They answered "No.". In response to a further question from the president they stated that they would have no dealings whatever with Mr. Mitchell looking toward a settlement of the question at issue and that they had no other proposition to make, save what was contained in the statement of Mr. Baer, which in effect was that if any man chose to resume work and had a difficulty with his employer both should leave the settlement of the question to the judge of the court of common pleas of the district in which the mine was located.

At about 5 o'clock the conference was brought to a close, without agreement.

SHOWING THE WAY.

Most of our readers know all about the aches and pains of a bad back; very few people are free from kidneys, as the kidneys are the most over-worked organs of the body and "go wrong" at times no matter how well the general health may be. The trouble is so few understand the indications of kidney trouble. You are nervous, tired out and weary, have stitches, twinges and twitches, backache pains, but lay it to other causes; finally the annoyance and suffering attendant with urinary disorders, retention of the urine, too frequent urination makes you realize the seriousness of it. At any stage you should take a remedy that will not only relieve but cure you. Read the following and profit by the lesson it teaches:

C. J. McMurray, a resident of Freeport, Ill., address 47 Iroquois St., says: "I have greater faith in Doan's Kidney Pills to-day than I had in the fall of 1897, when I first took the remedy and it cured me of an acute pain across the back and imperfect action of the kidneys. Since I made a public statement of these facts and recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to my friends and acquaintances, thoroughly believing as I did both from observation and experience that they would do just as they were represented to do. I am still pleased to indorse my statement given to the public shortly after I first began to use the remedy."

A FREE TRIAL of this great Kidney medicine, which cured Mr. McMurray, will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

A Supervisor's Story.

Lockport, N. Y., Oct. 6th.—George P. Penfold, Supervisor for the first ward of the city of Lockport, has written the following letter for publication to the newspapers:

"It gives me great pleasure to recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills as a cure for Kidney Trouble.

"My kidneys troubled me more or less for years and treatment by physicians only gave me partial and temporary relief.

"An old friend, knowing my trouble, advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills telling me at the same time how much they had helped him.

"I used altogether six boxes and found a permanent cure.

"This was two years ago and I have not since been troubled in any way with pains in the back or any of the many other distressing difficulties arising from diseased kidneys."

The Klondyke Gold Mystery.

By JOHN R. MUSICK,

Author of "Mysterious Mr. Howard," "The Dark Stranger," "Charlie Allendale's Double," Etc.

Copyright, 1897, by ROBERT BONNER'S SONS. All rights reserved.

CHAPTER V.—(Continued.)

"Who,"

"The very men who robbed me."

The reaction which came over the old man was terrible to witness. He recalized that after all he might lose his beloved captain, whose life was still in danger, for he was once more a prisoner.

"Well, well, all may yet be lost!" he sighed. "Crack-lash, let's go and hunt him. Now that we know he is alive, we got something to hunt for, and we'll hunt him. Come, Crack-lash!"

After considerable persuasion Paul induced him to wait until next morning; so they built a camp fire and prepared to pass the night.

Next morning they were early astir. They had packed their knapsacks and were about ready to start, when Paul suggested:

"Perhaps the walrus hide will tell something about this mystery. Let us take a look at it."

He unrolled the walrus hide, and the ex-sailor, who had long studied the picture writing of the Alaskan Indians, bent over it and began to slowly and carefully decipher the pictures.

The old man had to put all his knowledge of picture writing to the severest test to read. He made out that the captain had discovered rich gold diggings, but the walrus hide could give them no hint as to the whereabouts of the three men and their prisoner.

Paul suddenly rolled up the walrus hide and stuffing it in his knapsack, said:

"That piece of hide is a key to millions, I have no doubt, and in all probability the scoundrels were trying to make him give it to them."

"Let's go, Crack-lash. Let's go, fur I itch to git my fingers about the throats of the cusses."

They hastily packed up, broke camp and were soon on their way up the mountain, engaged in a dangerous search, the result of which they knew to be doubtful.

CHAPTER VI.
Berry's Success.

We will for the present take leave of Paul Ralston and return to Berry's party on their way to the Klondyke.

They arrived first at Forty-Mile camp, but here found nothing to do.

Clarence staked out a claim and went to digging. It was a slow process and the reward was poor. He took out a little gold, but not nearly enough to pay him for the hardships. Then came reports of the wonderful finds in the Klondyke district.

"Now is your time, Clarence," said Ethel. "Go at once and make all you can, while there are so few in the country."

"What shall I do with you?" he asked.

"Leave me behind."

"Ethel, I cannot think of doing that," he declared.

"You must, Clarence. I will follow as soon as possible, but hasten on now and stake out a claim for us. Stake out two, one for you and one for me. I feel that this is the turning point in our careers."

And so it proved.

It was the saddest day of his life when Clarence Berry bade adieu to his young wife and started alone for the distant mining camp. The parting of the husband and wife, as the reader may imagine, was affectionate, but there were no tears. Ethel restrained them and smiled cheerfully as long as she was in sight, to run into her shanty and have a little cry the moment she could see him no more.

The river, which must be crossed before she could reach the Klondyke, was already beginning to show signs of floating ice, and she knew it would only be a short time before it would be completely frozen over. So she worked with a will and got everything packed and started on the little steamer "Arctic" for the new land of gold. Her husband and his party joined her on the way up the river.

It was late in the season when this devoted, daring couple struck gold of any consequence. Then it came in a torrent. All through the winter Clarence Berry was piling up wealth. His wife was at the mines every day, and as the great chunks of frozen earth were dumped on the ground her fair fingers were busily at work picking out the nuggets. During the season she picked out ten thousand dollars' worth of golden pebbles with her fingers.

Though absorbed in gold digging, she never forgot Paul, who with Glum Ralston had not been heard from since those two persons left in search for the bold men who had robbed the youth.

One night as they sat about their cheerful fire, there came a rap at the door of their shanty, and they found Dick Ronold asking admission.

"Come in, Dick. What brings you out such a night and in such a storm?" asked Clarence.

"Didn't I hear ye say somethin' once about knowin' the feller called Cracklash Paul, who used to live back there in Fresno?"

"Yes, Paul Miller," cried Ethel eagerly. "We know him. What of him?"

"You know they've got one of the fellows tight an' fast who tried to help do up Paul. Well, the feller's cocoa since that night's been a little rancid. I was set to guard him last night, and his mental train for a minute or two seemed on the track. Then I remembered seein' him in 'Frisco. His name is Belcher and he's one of the men that the feller from Fresno called Lackland hired the room in Frisco to talk with."

At the sound of Lackland's name Ethel was on her feet, gasping:

"Lackland! Lackland! Clarence, he is Paul's rival and enemy! I am determined to see this prisoner called Belcher."

"When do you intend to call on him?"

"To-morrow."

"I will go with you," said Clarence.

Ethel Berry, with her husband, entered the prison and gazed at the pale yet fierce face of the prisoner, and cried:

"I know him, Clarence; I know him! I saw him in Fresno in consultation with Theodore Lackland. They have planned the murder of poor Paul."

With a fierce oath the prisoner leaped at his fair accuser, but the strong young husband seized him by the throat and hurled him to the opposite side of the room.

* * * * *

Two men, worn, tired and haggard, surrounded by mountains of ice and great sleeping glaciers, had halted in a valley where a few stunted pines reared their heads above the eternal snow.

"Let us rest, Crack-lash," said the older of the two travelers. "I give in, shipmate. Your wind's better'n mine, for you see my old hulk is gittin' waterlogged o' late years, an' can't make as good headway as it used to, you know."

The travelers were Paul Miller and his quondam sailor companion, Glum Ralston.

Paul Miller gathered some dry pines and made a fire on the mossy banks of a stream which ran close under the cliff. The dry wood sparkled and snapped, and the blaze threw out a ruddy light. The pot boiled and he put on beans to cook with a little meat, and soon had an excellent supper.

"Ah, mate, that is good," said the ex-sailor, as he tasted the coffee. "We're running rather short of feed, though, and if we don't come upon a moose or reindeer soon I'm afraid we'll suffer."

"Never fear, Glum, some kind of game will come our way."

Wrapped in his blanket, he sat at the root of a tree still talking to Paul, who was half asleep, when they were startled by a snort. In an instant both laid their hands on their rifles. A pair of fiery eyes gleamed at them and Paul, whose vision was keener than his older companion, saw a small animal about four and a half feet in height, which in the dim, uncertain light appeared to be a connecting link between the ox and sheep.

Glum Ralston lifted his gun to his face and fired. There instantly followed a bellowing roar and a rush of feet. The fire was scattered in every direction and the old sailor, who was rising to his feet, was struck a blow which sent him sprawling on the ground.

Paul dropped his gun, and snatching a pistol, fired a shot into the thick hide of the furious beast, just behind the shoulder blade. It made one spasmodic leap forward and fell dead, the bullet having penetrated its heart.

The old sailor was staggering to his feet, shaking himself to see if he had any broken bones.

"Are you hurt? Are you hurt?" cried Paul, anxiously.

"N-no, I think not. It was a fall broadside though, and how the horns missed ripping me from stem to stern is a mystery."

Paul threw on some fresh sticks of pine and the fire blazed up, revealing the beast he had slain lying but a few paces away. Its long brown and black hair gave it the appearance of a bear. The old sailor walked up to it and said, philosophically:

"Its flesh is good for food, and will keep us alive a good long time."

Two days after they had killed the musk-ox they came again upon a dim trail, and again began to take heart. The trail led them through an unknown pass toward the seashore.

"Crack-lash, they're goin' seaward," said the ex-sailor. "I can smell salt water already, and I feel better for it."

Three days later, as they were climbing over a hilltop, they saw two men several hundred rods in advance and gave chase.

They were within long rifle range when the two fugitives discovered them and began to run.

The two men darted into a ravine and they saw them no more. Glum Ralston was of the opinion the men they chased were two seal hunters, who had wandered into the woods in search of moose or deer.

They continued toward the coast, following a faint trail. At last they came upon one of those bays that extend inland, and saw great, floating icebergs glistening in the light of the sun. Suddenly the old man stopped and pointing to some tracks in the snow cried:

"Look, Crack-lash. There's big game."

"What do you make it out to be, Glum?" Paul asked.

"Nothin' more nor less than a polar bear."

Paul had heard much of these fierce beasts, but never seen one. The near proximity of this one roused his sporting blood, and in an excited manner he asked:

"Can't we find him? He seems to be a monster, Glum, and I must have a shot at him."

Paul hurried in the trail of the bear, and dreamed not of danger.

Suddenly there came from beneath his feet a loud cracking sound like the report of a battery of artillery fired in unison, and the great ice floe on which he stood began to tremble and rock.

Dumb with amazement he stood and trembled with some unknown dread. It was several seconds before Paul comprehended his danger, and then it was too late. The ice floe with its glittering spires had parted from the shore and was drifting out to sea. Already it was too far for him to reach the land on which his companion stood wringing his hands in despair.

A terrible death seemed staring him in the face, when a new danger arose. On his ears there burst a fierce growl, and looking up on an elevated portion of the ice floe rapidly drifting with him toward the sea, he beheld a monster polar bear glaring at him with the fiery eyes of rage and hate.

"God have mercy on my soul!" the youth groaned, and prepared to meet his fate with the courage of a hero.

CHAPTER VII.
Glum Ralston's Return.

After the frantic effort on the part of Belcher to seize Ethel Berry for discovering him to have been in Lackland's employ, the wounded man grew sullen. The miners were anxious to hang him and to have it over with, but cooler heads prevailed. "It will never do," said Clarence Berry, "to destroy the only hope we have of recovering Paul's gold and solving this mystery, which deepens with every new development. Besides, we have had no lynching yet in the Klondyke, and let us not have any if we can avoid it."

One evening after the simple repast was over, Clarence and Ethel sat discussing the probable fate of Paul, who was never out of Ethel's mind.

"Poor Paul, he must be dead," she said, her eyes filling with tears. "I must write to Laura; I must tell her his awful fate."

After a few moments' silence he heaved a sigh and said:

"It will be very bad news."

"She must know it some time, Clarence."

"That is true, and perhaps the knowledge of his fate, awful as it is, will not equal the suspense."

"I will write to-morrow. When can the letter get through?"

"Not before spring—you need not hurry," he answered, with a sad smile.

Suddenly the door was caused to quake by the thump from a giant fist, and, opening it, they found their nightly visitor, Dick, but he was not alone this time, Gid Myers was at his side. The faces of the two men wore looks of anxiety.

"What is the matter?" asked Clarence.

"We want yer gun, Clarence," said Long Dick, as soon as he could regain his breath. "I want to tell ye on the dead that there's either some man, a bear or old Nick up on the hill."

Fearing their excited imagination had conjured up a monster from a wandering polar bear, though those animals were seldom seen in that part of the country, Clarence took down his Winchester rifle and accompanied his companions to the foot of the hill, where the mysterious creature had been seen. A tall, gaunt object with a warm bearskin coat hanging loosely about his shoulders was coming slowly down the hill. The approaching stranger had his gun strapped on his back. A hatchet was in the belt at his side with his pistols, and he was leaning heavily on a long, stout stick. He came slowly, as if very weary.

Curiosity gave way to pity, and they hurried up to meet him.

CREED MADE NO DIFFERENCE.

Somnambulist Had to Stay in the Lockup Just the Same.

One night not long since a watchman at Kittanering, N. Y., found one of the most respectable citizens of the town roaming the streets in his night robe. The officer very promptly placed the man under arrest and directed his steps toward the city bastile. A rather rude jolt at a street crossing woke the citizen up. He at once became aware that he was being piloted by the policeman and a few moments of observation convinced him he was not going toward home. Then he spoke.

"What are you doing with me, Tom?" inquired the man.

"Oh, I've got you for walking around the streets in your chemise," said the officer. "That's against the law, you know."

"You're not going to lock me up," said the citizen in astonishment. "Why, don't you know I am a somnambulist?"

"I don't care what church you belong to," retorted Tom, "you're out on the street in clothes not fit to be seen, it's my duty to arrest you, and in you go."

And in he went until friends brought street clothing and got him out in the morning.

KITTEN BLOCKED SIDEWALK.

Everybody Dodged the Dirty Feline Until a Banker Appeared.

At noon to-day, when Park Row, Manhattan, was crowded with hungry mortals, looking for their favorite eating place, a half-starved black and white kitten made its appearance on the sidewalk. It might have wandered out of some cellar or some tattered newsboy dropped it, hoping to see some fun. The ball of dirty fur landed directly in front of a clerk. He made a frantic effort to avoid stepping on the kitten and was successful. A young woman following stepped to one side. The crowd followed her lead. Then, at the rate of a hundred or so a minute, people were turning aside lest they injure the kitten. Any one of the number could easily have raised the little mass of bones on his or her toe and tossed it into the gutter. The kitten held full possession of the sidewalk for fully five minutes. Then a banker, whose time is worth several dollars a minute, caught up the little feline, worthless from almost everybody's point of view, and carried it a distance of twenty feet and tenderly deposited it in an alley. And yet somebody the other day accused New Yorkers of lacking tenderness of heart.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PE-RU-NA NECESSARY TO THE HOME.

A Letter from Congressman White, of North Carolina.

PE-RU-NA IS A HOUSEHOLD SAFEGUARD.

No Family Should Be Without It.

PERUNA is a great family medicine. The women praise it as well as the men; it is just the thing for the many little catarrhal ailments of childhood.

The following testimonials from thankful men and women tell in direct, sincere language what their success has been in the use of Peruna in their families:

Louis J. Scherrinsky, 103 Locust street, Atlantic, Iowa, writes:

"I will tell you briefly what Peruna has done for me. I took a severe cold which gave me a hard cough. All doctors' medicines failed to cure it. I took one bottle of Peruna and was well.

"Then my two children had bad coughs accompanied by gagging. My wife had stomach trouble for years. She took Peruna and now she is well.

"I cannot express my thanks in words, but I recommend your remedy at every opportunity, for I can conscientiously say that there is no medicine like Peruna. Nearly everyone in this town knew about the sickness of myself and family, and they have seen with astonishment what Peruna has done for us. Many followed our example, and the result was health. Thanking you heartily, I am."—L. J. Sherrinsky.

Mrs. Nannie Wallace, Tulare, Cal., President of the Western Baptist Missionary Society, writes:

"I consider Peruna an indispensable article in my medicine chest. It is twenty medicines in one, and has so far cured every sickness that has been in my home for five years. I consider it of special value to weakly women, as it builds up the general health, drives out disease and keeps you in the best of health."—Mrs. Nannie Wallace.

Peruna protects the family against coughs, colds, catarrh, bronchitis, catarrh of the stomach, liver and kidneys. It is just as sure to cure a case of catarrh of the bowels as it is a case of catarrh of the head.

HON. GEORGE H. WHITE.

Congressman George Henry White, of Tarboro, N. C., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman in regard to the merits of the great catarrh cure, Peruna:

House of Representatives,
Washington, Feb. 4, 1899.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—"I am more than satisfied with Peruna, and find it so be an excellent remedy for the grip and catarrh. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it as an excellent remedy."

Very respectfully,
George H. White.

Peruna is an internal, scientific, systemic remedy for catarrh. It is no palliative or temporary remedy; it is thorough in its work, and in cleansing the diseased mucous membranes cures the catarrh.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

FALLING HAIR

Prevented by shampoos of CUTICURA SOAP, and light dressings of CUTICURA, purest of emollient Skin Cures. This treatment at once stops falling hair, removes crusts, scales, and dandruff, soothes irritated, itching surfaces, stimulates the hair follicles, supplies the roots with energy and nourishment, and makes the hair grow upon a sweet, healthy scalp when all else fails.

Millions of Women

Use CUTICURA SOAP, assisted by CUTICURA OINTMENT, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women.

CUTICURA SOAP, to cleanse the skin; CUTICURA OINTMENT, to heal the skin, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT PILLS, to cool the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, and scaly skin, scalp, and blood humours, rashes, itchings, and irritations, with loss of hair, when all else fails.

Sold throughout the world. British Depot: 27-28, Charterhouse Sq., London. French Depot: 5 Rue de la Paix, Paris. POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. CORP., Sole Props., Boston.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT PILLS (Chocolate Coated) are a new, tasteless, odourless, economical substitute for the celebrated liquid CUTICURA RESOLVENT, as well as for all other blood purifiers and humour cures. In pocket vials, 60 doses.

Wm. Lawrence left on Tuesday for Washington to look at the country If it pleases him he and his family will take up their residence there.

Patsy Burke has disposed of his blacksmith business at Goodell, and has purchased a shop in Garner. He is an A No. 1 blacksmith and will surely succeed in his new home.

Wesley Merten, of Garner, was here on Monday. While here he erected a tombstone over the remains of Myron Haskins little boy who died about three months ago.

John Hartfelter returned on Tuesday afternoon from South Dakota with two car load of cattle for feeding. He is a very successful feeder. and will in all probability do well with this bunch.

George Nissen attended conference at Clear Lake on Sunday. George has not yet received his appointment but in all probability it will be teaching a Sunday school class with a membership of one.

Gates & Ell have finished plastering the new bank building, and on Tuesday loaded their work tools and shipped them to Ventura where they have a contract of plastering a new bank building and a store.

Attorney Hughes, of Garner, was attending to legal matters here on Thursday last. Mr. Hughes is a candidate for county attorney on the democratic ticket, and seems to be quite hopeful of the people's decision on election day.

Judge Birdsall, of Clarion, was nominated by the republican congressional convention which was held at Des Moines last week, to succeed Congressman Henderson who resigned. All our exchanges are profuse in their praise of the judge.

The Kanawha Record will hereafter be conducted under the firm name of Ellsworth & Africa. The Record is one of the best papers in the county, and under the new management will no doubt hold to its former high standard. Success to the new firm.

Rev. Hans Nissen came in from Clear Lake for an over Sunday visit with his mother. He had been attending conference at Clear Lake. No charge has as yet been assigned to him, but he is deserving and will undoubtedly receive a good appointment.

Houses to rent in Klemme are a great deal like hens teeth—very scarce. To our knowledge there is not a house in town that can be had at any price. This speaks well for the town, however, but to have to live under a shade tree in the winter time will be at least disagreeable.

G. G. Pritchard and wife, of Alden, Representative J. S. Pritchard and wife, of Belmond, and O. Willis and wife, of Los Angeles, Cal., were guests at the Bloom home on Sunday. Mr. Bloom worked for the latter gentleman in Montana 20 years ago, and had not seen him since that time. hence this sort of a reunion was the occasion of much happiness.

Our genial bank cashier, H. A. Sweigard, goes to Klemme on the 15th of this month to take charge of the new First National bank. Mr. Sweigard has had good success here, has done his work well and faithfully, and a large number of people regret to see him leave, but at the same time wish him success in his new home.—Goodell Globe.

In Mr. Sweigard and his estimable wife Klemme gains two splendid citizens, and she will gladly welcome them.

On Monday Allen Flint moved his household goods to Garner where he will make his future home. He has purchased an interest in the Model Bakery, and will undoubtedly succeed. His pleasant, agreeable demeanor will win for him many friends and customers. We do not know what the firm name will be as he has for a partner Mr. Sage. Garner has gained a splendid citizen in Mr. Flint. and he and his estimable family will be much missed from our little city. May he succeed.

John Josten, who has been under the weather for some time past, we are glad to say is improving.

Louis Kaste and wife, of Hallock, Minn., visited several days the fore part of the week with relatives here.

Both the young people in the Mrs. Bauck home are under the weather. Under the care of Doctor Zinn they are getting along nicely, however.

Dave Ross is having a large barn erected on his farm about three and one-half miles southeast. The barn is to be 56x56. John Zook is the contractor employed.

T. F. Finch, representing the Iowa and Minnesota Land Co., was in town on Wednesday. Mr. Finch has his land office at Litchfield, Minn., and is doing a flourishing business.

Carl Krouse who has had quite a tussle with typhoid malaria is improving nicely and hopes soon to be entirely over the attack. The Krouse family have had more than their share of sickness this fall and summer. It will be remembered that their daughter died of this disease about seven weeks ago.

Called Home

On Sunday morning word was passed from lip to lip about our little city that Fred Buck, son of F. Buck Sr., who resides three and one-half miles east of town, had died early that morning. The deceased was about 19 years old, and we understand was born and raised in this community. For some time past hopes of his recovery was almost despaired of, yet while there is life there is hope, and his relatives eagerly grasped at the last frail straw hoping that a change for the better might occur but it came not. Everything that medical skill and tender nursing could do was done for him, but his time to enter that better land had come.

The interment was made in the German Reform cemetery, and the funeral service was conducted by Rev. Mullemeyer.

The bereaved parents have our profound sympathy in their hour of deep sorrow.

Klemme the Business Center.

On last Thursday afternoon W. R. Bloom took in at his elevator 87 loads of grain, while Mr. Lau of the north elevator, did nearly as well. Farmers within 2 miles of Britt, Garner, Meservey and Goodell haul their grain here because they can get more for it than at any of the surrounding towns, and when they receive their check they can go to our stores and get bargains that are not to be had in neighboring towns. Our merchants all carry large stocks of goods and their shelves fairly creak with bargains. With our grain men paying several cents more per bushel for grain than any other buyers in the county, and rushed to death to care for the incoming grain, with our bank in a flourishing condition and its business steadily increasing, and with our merchants rushing about to wait upon their customers, Klemme presents a sight in the line of business that is unsurpassed in northwest Iowa. This condition of affairs is not uncommon in Klemme it is an everyday occurrance.

Ell Center

Special Correspondent.
(Missed last week)

John and Guy Braund were callers here on Sunday.

Will Burman, of Aredade, visited his brother last week.

Dr. Spooner made a professional call here Saturday evening.

Maude Braund received a nice gold watch for her birthday present.

Hod Lawhorn and wife attended the dance at Chas. Hall's on Saturday evening.

The rural mail carriers started on their routes last Wednesday, and the farmers are delighted with the results.

Miss Rose Glanville, of North Dakota is visiting her parents and other relatives. She is well pleased with her new home.

The Harvest Home picnic Friday was well attended considering the busy season of the year and everything passed off smoothly. The ball game between the single and married men was hotly contested, and was won by the married men. Bert Crawford umpired the game to the satisfaction of all. In the evening a social hop was held at Hod Lawhorn's which was a very pleasant affair.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Oct. 13, 1902.

Professor D. A. Kent of Jewell Junction, deputy state dairy commissioner, has resigned, to take effect November 1. Professor Kent resigns because he is about to embark into the Canadian land business with his brother, who has been successful in it. Dairy Commissioner Wright has not yet selected his successor, and will not do so until the first of the coming month. Professor Kent was formerly a member of the faculty at Ames.

Attorney General Mullan has rendered an opinion on an interesting ballot question. George W. Dyer of Nevada was appointed by Governor Cummins some months ago to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Judge Kenyon of Fort Dodge. W. D. Evans of Hampton was nominated as his successor. This was displeasing to Judge Dyer and his friends, and they took steps to put his name on the ballot by petition. The question then arose with the secretary of state whether Dyer's name could go on under a party head. Attorney General Mullan holds that Evans' name should go on the ballot under the regular party head, but that Dyer's name should be permitted to go on under the head of republican by petition.

The state house restaurant has been closed. It was decided by the executive council to allow Secretary Martin the use of the room for documents. There is serious need of more room for this purpose, as the document department will have about 44,000 volumes to look after this month. These include the new edition of the code, supplement, and reports of various kinds as well as the journals of botb houses, which will soon be out.

The supreme court in an opinion rendered by Judge McClain affirmed the decision of the Washington county court convicting Hubbell O. Soper of conspiracy. Soper was charged with conspiracy to obtain signatures to deeds by making false representations as to sale of patent rights on a washing machine. The case was one that attracted much attention by reason of the large number of prominent people caught by Sopher's scheme.

Representatives of the Dubuque Telephone company were before the council asking for a reduction in the company's assessment. The council refused, holding there was no warrant in the law for such a procedure.

The Newton and Northwestern Railroad company, the purpose of which is to build a road from Newton to Rockwell City to open the coal fields, has filed articles with the secretary of state. The principal office is at Boone. The company has a capital of two and a half million of dollars. Its directory board consists of Hamilton Browne, president; S. T. Meservey, vice president; J. J. Wright, treasurer; W. A. Kelly, secretary; and Samuel McClure. The articles recite that it is the purpose of the company to build a line of standard gauge road from Newton northwest to Fraser in Boone county, thence to Gowrie and Rockwell City, and from there to Sioux City. It is said the line from Fraser to Gowrie would be the same as the line already built by Browne.

Dr. J. F. Kennedy of the state board of health has received reports showing there are two cases of leprosy in the state. A young Norwegian woman near Humboldt has the disease. The other patient is at Gilmore City. Dr. Kennedy was asked what to do with the patients. He has recommended isolation in their homes or elsewhere, as there is no sort of refuge to which they can be sent in this state. Dr. Kennedy has written for a detailed report on each case.

The fees received in the office of the secretary of state since January 1 have already passed $200,000, or about the same sum as would be raised by a state tax of four-tenths of a mill. This is an unprecedented record. The exact amount of fees received is $201,504.73. The entire receipts for the year 1901 were $54,139.50. The increase is due partly to the large number of articles filed, but more largely to the workings of the new law that removed the $2,000 limit from fees for filing articles of incorporation. The removal of this limit enabled the state to get a big fee when the new Rock Island railroad company filed its articles. Recently the Newton and Northwestern road paid a fee that amounted to $2,517. As the year is but a little more than three-fourths over, it is expected the fees will amount well up towards $225,000 before January 1.

The 3-year-old child of Dewitt Powell of central City, was drowned in a rain barrel, it having fallen in headlong.

A startling feature in the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Mrs. T. F. Burns, the Sioux City society woman supposed to have been drowned in the Sioux but whose body cannot be found, developed a few days ago. T. F. Burns received a letter offering to give information concerning her whereabouts for $10. Mr. Burns was instructed to leave the money on a mail box at 8 o'clock at the corner of Eighth and Pierce streets. The letter was turned over to the police and they watched the place. Promptly at 8 o'clock a man appeared and went to the appointed spot. He was arrested and has acknowledged writing the letter. His name is Earl Laque, an employe of W. H. Burns, brother of T. F. Burns. He refuses to make any statement, but says he will not give any information concerning Mrs. Burns' whereabouts.

A new type of steamship, with four propellers, has been constructed in Hamburg. The vessel is flat-bottomed, with a short keel in the center and two false keels forward, and one propeller is placed between the forward keels, another just before the rudder, and the two others at the stern. It is claimed that such a steamer, 300 feet long, would make the trip from Havre to New York in four days.

A pleasant cure for dyspepsia is announced by Dr. Benjamin E. Andrews, of the University of Nebraska. He enthusiastically declares that in nine case out of ten ice cream will certainly cure dyspepsia and strengthen the stomach.

A professional diver says that one of the strange effects of diving is the invariable bad temper felt while working at the bottom of the sea. As this usually passes away as soon as the surface is reached, it is probably due to the pressure of the air affecting the lungs, and through them the brain. The exhilaration and good temper of the mountain climber is a contrary feeling from an opposite cause.

THE NEWS IN IOWA.

Owen Worthen, who ten months ago was released from Anamosa where he had served a sentence for attempt at rape, has been arrested at the farm of F. Demier, south of Vinton, charged with the crime of rape upon the person of Marietta Spaulding, a lady 80 years old, and crippled almost beyond help with rheumatism. It is charged that he broke into her home about midnight, while her son, who lives with her, was in town, and committed the heinous crime.

Superintendent Odell of the Indian industrial school at Toledo has secured an enrollment and attendance of seventy-five Indian children, the largest number in the history of the institution. The teaching force has been increased. Push-er-to-ne-qua, the chief of the tribe, is soon to use his influence to still further increase the attendance. It seems probable that the efforts of the Indian Rights association in solving a difficult problem will soon be crowned with success.

The Creston Light, Heat and Power company has let the contract for the construction and equipment of an electric line from Creston to Winterset. Lyman H. Waterman has also organized a company for the building of a road to connect Creston with Mount Ayr. An electric line from Creston to Des Moines via Winterset is now practically assured. The Polk interests of Des Moines will build to Winterset and the proposed road from Creston will join it there.

In the district court at Burlington a few days ago Judge Smythe, after giving John Hendersnott some strong advice as to his future conduct, cautioned him that he had only been saved from the gallows by a tender hearted jury, then pronounced the sentence, Hendershott receiving the limit of eight years in the manslaughter case and four years in the grand larceny case, that of stealing a horse from John Hunt, to which charge he had entered a plea of guilty.

The Keokuk police are searching the city and the surrounding country for Mrs. Kate Houston and her four little girls. They are the entire family of William Houston, who went to that city with them from LaCrosse, Wis., to start a feed store. The family rented a house in a good part of the city and seemed happy. Houston reported to the police that his wife had disappeared when he reached his home and had left no trace. The children range from 18 months to 11 years in age and had disappeared with the mother. The husband first communicated with his wife's sister, Mrs. Julia Logue of Mt. Pleasant, but his family was not there. Mrs. Logue says Mrs. Houston recently talked to her about "something happening" to herself, and Mrs. Lague believes that Mrs. Houston committed suicide after killing the children. The husband impresses the police well and they incline to the suicide theory.

Helen, the 18-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Browning, of Corona, California, visitors at Keokuk, was run down by a street car, dragged about sixty feet and instantly killed. Motorman Royal A. Neal was arrested. Browning, the father, formerly resided at Carthage, Ill. Neal is the same motorman who collided with the wagon of Dr. O. W. Rowe last year, seriously injuring him, and who wrecked the surrey of Richard F. Miller, judge of the Keokuk superior court, last May, causing injuries from which Judge Miller died. The motorman made strenuous endeavor to save the girl and wept like a child after the accident. Motorman Neal was exonerated by the coroner's jury.

The court has appointed an administrator for the estates of nine victims of the terrible Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul wreck of August 6, near Rhodes, in which thirteen men lost their lives and forty more were badly injured. Judge Caswell has named Don Barnes of Cedar Rapids administrator and Mr. Barnes has filed a bond of $500 in each case. The papers show that two of the victims are still unknown, and they are listed under the assumed names always used in legal documents where the correct names are not available—Richard Roe and John Doe. The others whose estates are placed in the hands of Mr. Barnes as administrator are John Richardson, John Allen, Patrick Sullivan, Ed Fitzgibbons, Michael Flynn, L. Bingham and Thomas Sullivan.

Judge Burnham of the Tama district court was upheld by the supreme court in his decision against the Glucose Sugar Refining company of Marshalltown, in which judgment was rendered against the company for maintaining a public nuisance. The nuisance complained of was the discharge from the company's sewer emptying into the Iowa river at Marshalltown. The refuse and chemicals polluted the water, fish died in large numbers, a gelatinous substance was deposited on the stones and serious odors arose. The paper mills at Tama were interfered with because of the refuse in the river and the parties operating this plant caused an indictment to be returned against the glucose company. None of the contentions of the glucose company on which the appeal was based was upheld. One of the grounds of appeal was that the case was not triable in Tama county, but the supreme court does not sustain this view.

Ben Porter of Rock Island, wanted for an attempt to murder his wife, cut his throat at Wheatland, and died at the Rock Island hospital.

While working with a table leg over a circular saw at the Fort Dodge Manufacturing company, John Steinbock met with a serious accident. The heavy timber leaped from the saw and struck Steinbock in the pit of the stomach. He was rendered unconscious and when regaining consciousness at the hospital he was in terrible pain. The attending physicians fear serious results from internal injury. Steinbock was hurled eight feet from the effect of the blow.

Mrs. J. S. Bells, of near Storm Lake, had the misfortune to lose three fingers of her right hand. She and her husband were driving out to their farm, about twelve miles west of town; she holding the halter rope of a horse following behind. Near the college, the horse jerked loose and Mr. Bells got out of the buggy and caught it, and as he came near the buggy he found his wife's fingers lying in the road. Her hand was lying in her lap, but she had never missed her fingers. The sufferer is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

The present stringency in the money

John Hansen, living near Alton, while intoxicated demanded money of his wife and when she refused he shot her. The woman may recover. Hansen is under arrest.

James Stewart, one of the men indicted on the charge of breaking and entering the Gutkenecht store at Hudson last July, pleaded guilty in the district court and was sentenced by the court to two years in the penitentiary at Anamosa. Stewart was arrested in a corn crib near Hudson after a mad chase by the Waterloo bloodhounds.

The Sioux City police now advance the startling theory that Mrs. T. F. Burns, the Sioux City society woman and musician who disappeared on the evening of the 3d under circumstances which indicated she had been drowned in the Sioux, was possibly murdered in the woods across the river on the South Dakota side. Mrs. Burns wore valuable jewelry. The work of dragging the Sioux continues and dynamite is being used.

Mrs. William Houston, who disappeared from Keokuk with her four children, has been heard from at Quincy, where she was given transportation by a benevolent society to Galesburg, making her way to Peoria, where she has relatives. It is said the woman complained to the conductor of ill treatment at home. She also claims she had cause for jealousy, or believed she had, which aggravated the family troubles.

The supreme court, following the contention of the collateral inheritance tax law given in a former case, has ruled that there is no exemption when the value of the estate, after payment of debts, is more than $1,000. The case involving this question was that of G. S. Gilbertson, treasurer of state, vs. Wat T. McAuley, executor of the state of Eliza McAuley, deceased, appellant. The appeal was from the court of Judge Wade, whose decision was sustained.

Fred Wheeler, the man who was shot by Miss Mary Cummings at Waterloo, seems in a fair way to recovery. Although shot near the region of the stomach, he has improved steadily under medical care, and it is now believed he will recover. His would-be slayer is out under $3,000 bail. Her preliminary hearing was continued until it was more certain what the termination of the wound would be. She refuses to talk of the matter.

The remains of an unknown man who committed suicide at Cedar Point several weeks ago have been identified as Frank Osborne, a brother of A. E. Osborne, a prominent hardware man at Anamosa. The body has been in the cooler of the state university for two or three weeks, and was but a few days ago identified by Mr. Osborne. Osborne undoubtedly killed himself while insane. He has been an inmate of the Independence asylum since 1894, and but recently left that institution. He was an unmarried man, and 40 years old.

William J. Gavin of Sheldon, attempted to commit suicide at Omaha and is now in the city jail hospital recovering from the effects of a large dose of cocaine. Gavin had been on a prolonged spree and this is the only known cause for his action. He was found in the gutter unconscious, with his clothes soaking and covered with mud. He was taken to the police station, where the stomach pump was vigorously applied. At the end of two hours he began to realize where he was and fought desperately to be allowed to die in peace.

After undergoing the sweating process for three hours C. E. Bruce, an employe of the Strow Cigar company and bowling alley at Fort Dodge, confessed to the police that he took $86 from the cash register and desk and buried it in the alley in the rear of the place and with his own hands placed a gag in his mouth and tied his hands and feet. At 7 o'clock in the morning he was released by boys who opened the bowling alley and reported to the police that two men who had entered the store the night before had bound and gagged him and robbed the place. Suspicion pointed towards Bruce and the confession was obtained. After several hours the money was recovered from where it was buried in the alley. Bruce will not be prosecuted on promise of confession.

The boiler in the Jones laundry at Creston, which is located in the basement of the building, blew up a few days ago. The heavy plate glass in front was broken into fragments and blown across the street, and so fearful was the report that canned goods and other articles in the stores for a block away were jarred from the shelves. The boiler, which was an upright one, blew out sideways, taking the end of the basement with it. It was hurled 100 feet in the air, tearing down over two hundred telephone wires and landed on the roof of Swan Bros' department store. Its weight broke through the roof and it smashed everything before it to the second story and would have gone down through into the basement only for the fact that it struck a heavy partition. The office of Esquire Golden on the second floor was completely wrecked. No one was hurt in the laundry but one young man, who received only a slight cut about the head. It is considered the most miraculous escape ever recorded in the city.

Mrs. Carhart of the Iowa Childrens' Home society of Des Moines has taken charge of Ethel Burgess, the 7-year-old girl who was abandoned by her mother several months ago. The mother became estranged from her husband and finding she could not support the child is said to have placed her on the train and started her out. She was put off at Waterloo and has wandered about begging and getting along the best way she could. The mother lived at LaPorte. The child has been taken to Des Moines and placed in the home, awaiting some one who is willing to adopt her.

President A. B. Stickney and son, General Manager S. C. Stickney of the Chicago Great Western railroad were in Ft. Dodge a few days ago enroute to St. Paul, after a trip over the projected Sioux City line of the Great Western. President Stickney stated that they had been over the ground thoroughly, but declined to make any statement as to when the Great Western proposed to commence work on the new line. He expressed himself satisfied with the progress made on the new Omaha line in spite of bad weather, which has hindered the graders, but declined to commit himself by a statement as to when the line will be completed.

CHAPTER VII.—(Continued.)

"Have you traveled far?" asked Clarence.

"Shipmate, this old hulk is about on her last cruise," said a feeble, husky voice.

"It is Ralston—Glum Ralston!" roared Gid. "Where ye been, Glum? Tell me where ye been!"

"I am sick—starving—dying!" the ex-sailor moaned.

Clarence hurried him to his house, where a warm supper was hastily prepared for him.

"Have you seen Paul Miller or heard from him since you came upon us in the pass?" was one of the first questions propounded by Clarence.

"Yes," he answered. "Last I saw o' him he was on an iceberg sailin' out t' sea, and his only fellow-passenger was a polar bear."

* * * * *

It will be essential at this point to return to Paul Miller, whom we left on an iceberg floating out to sea. The swelling flood and tossing cakes of ice between the drifting floe and shore made it utterly impossible for him to reach land. The sharp growl of the monster above indicated that a crisis was coming, which would determine the rights of ownership to the mountain of ice.

Through all his misfortunes Paul had managed to retain his presence of mind and his rifle. He executed a skillful flank movement, and, scaling a shelf, was several feet above the bear and not over twenty paces away, prepared for an assault. With nerves as steady as if engaging in the most ordinary sport, he leveled his rifle at the side of the monster's head. When sure of his aim he pulled the trigger. There followed a sharp report and the bear dropped on his haunches, his nose in the air.

Paul cocked his rifle and fired a second shot at the beast's head. It fell on the ice and after a few spasmodic kicks lay still. He sent a third into the back of its head, but it was wholly unnecessary, for the other bullets had done the work.

With his knife he removed the skin from the animal, and, climbing as high as he dared, hung it upon one of those spires of ice, in the hope some sealing schooner or whaling ship might see it and send a boat to his relief. When night came he lay down on the snow and ice, and, notwithstanding his perilous situation, actually slept.

He was awakened soon after dawn by the sound of voices near.

"What say ye nou?" one seemed to say to another.

"I say nowt," was the answer. "If he be there find him."

"Sure, man, ye canna say as a bear will peel his own skin from his back."

"Weel, there's a stiffener," returned another voice.

Paul rose and mechanically laid his hand on the rifle at his side. Only a few hours before he was wishing he had not shot the bear, and that it had destroyed him instead of he shooting it, but now that his life might probably be in danger, it grew suddenly very sweet.

He raised his head a trifle higher and listened intently at the voices.

"Push alongside and let a lad go ashore," said another voice.

Then he plainly heard the splashing of paddles in the water. He crept along on hand and knees, holding his rifle in one hand and a cocked revolver in the other.

Then he raised his head just a little and saw a large canoe in which were half a score of dark-skinned Indians. Surprise and curiosity overcame any fear he might entertain of his visitors, and he arose and gazed about on the sea and shore. The glance filled him with wonder and surprise. The shore was lined with green trees, and afar off he saw a mountain towering so high its peak pierced the light blue clouds.

He saw chimneys to houses from which the pale blue smoke was issuing, mingling with the atmosphere. It was a brisk little village with men, women and children in it, but what brought peace to his troubled mind and relieved all fear was the little white church, with its spire, on the hillside.

"There he is! There he is!" cried a young man in the canoe, pointing at Paul. "Ho, my brother, you ride on a strange boat!"

"Who are you?" asked Paul.

"The Metlakahtla," was the answer.

He tried to think where he had heard the name before, but was unable to recollect it. He was asked to come down to their canoe. They tossed a rope to him, which he made fast to one of the great cakes of ice, and slid down to the boat. The tall chief stood up to catch him, and as he dropped into his arms said:

"My brother, you are safe. You have had a very dangerous ride."

"It is not so weel, that boot ye ride upon," put in another Indian, with a strong Scotch accent. The men with the paddles at once propelled the canoe away from the ice floe, and it glided out into the bay, straight for the village of Metlakahtla. The island was given by the United States to a scanty tribe of British American Indians whom an old Scotch missionary had converted from utter savagery into a civilized and God-fearing people.

When the canoe touched the shore Paul saw an elderly white man in the throng. He was dressed in the garb of civilization, and his long, white hair and beard gave him a patriarchal appearance. His face was grave and kind.

"My son, a kind Providence has wonderfully preserved you. We will go to church to return thanks for your great deliverance, and then we will hear your story.

After songs and prayers Paul was taken to the home of the patriarch, where he fared sumptuously, after which he narrated his strange adventures to the good old missionary.

"So you are ther, my son, who has come to dig gold from the earth in the frozen north." Then, taking the arm of the youth, he led him from the house, and, pointing to that great old mountain, which, grim and gray, towered into the skies, and with his eyes wildly dilating, said:

"In mockery, at the grim gateway of Alaska, towers that mountain of gold upon which no white man dares lay his finger.

Paul gazed at him in amazement, and began to wonder if he had not got among a race of madmen.

"How was the gold discovered?" he asked.

"It's not discovered save by the Indians and perhaps one other than yourself. But come in and I will tell you what other white man than yourself knows of the island and the mountain of gold."

When they were seated in the cozy parsonage the old missionary proceeded to tell Paul the story, but they were interrupted by the arrival of some Indians with a prisoner. The story told by Father Duncan we have heard before from the lips of Clum Ralston. No sooner did Father Duncan see the captive than he said:

"It is one of the two sailors who did away with the poor captain."

When Paul saw the prisoner he exclaimed:

"Great Heaven! It is one of the men who captured the old hermit in the cavern!"

CHAPTER VIII.

Laura's Departure.

While the many stirring events were transpiring in Alaska, poor Laura Bush was living a life of doubt, mingled with hope and despair, at Fresno, California. Not a line had she received from Paul since the letter came that he was robbed and wounded. Was he dead or was he still alive, struggling to regain what he had lost?

It began to be whispered over the town that Laura Bush was losing her reason. Theodore Lackland was shocked and grieved at the thought, for in his selfish way he loved her madly. He would have given worlds to possess this matchless beauty, who had wholly captivated his soul.

At this time a most remarkable event transpired—an event that was more a surprise to Laura than any one else. A bachelor uncle living in Wyoming died and left her twelve thousand dollars—all he possessed.

"This will enable me to procure an outfit and go in search of Paul," said Laura to Mrs. Miller. The widow enfolded her in her arms and begged her to abandon such a mad design.

In vain she wept, prayed and plead with her. Laura was so impressed with the conviction that she must go. She had her way. Buying her outfit and securing the service of a faithful, trusty man who had worked for her father, she prepared for the journey.

She had made her last trip to San Francisco and returned late one day, a short time before her departure. On reaching Fresno she started from the depot to walk home. It was so late the sun had set, and the shadows of evening began to creep over the landscape. She heard footsteps at her side and Lackland's voice said:

"Miss Bush, I have heard a rumor that you are going to start for Alaska."

"I shall."

He walked on in silence for a moment, while his pale face wore a pensive, sad expression, and his eyes were upon the ground. His determination to conquer made him selfish and scheming. At last he said:

"Laura, you do not understand me. I am a true friend to you; you may not believe it, but I am. That other time my passion was hot. I was wrong, perhaps, in denouncing the man you loved, but surely you will forgive me."

She answered that she was taught she must forgive in order to be forgiven. As a drowning man clutches at a straw, he grasped at something in her words, and was encouraged to add:

"Laura, if you would let me sympathize with you in this loss, I would freely mingle my tears with yours. Oh, if you would only let me be a brother—more than a brother——"

"Silence, Mr. Lackland," she quickly interrupted. "I will hear no more from you. Here I am at home; good-night."

She darted into the house, quickly closing the door after her and leaving him standing out in the cold, dark street. For a moment he stood gazing upon the door which had closed upon the being he loved, and then turned slowly about, his thin, white lips compressed, and his fingers closed firmly as if he had the lockjaw.

As he boarded the midnight train for San Francisco he murmured, half audibly:

"Something desperate must be done. I shall now play my last trump card."

Meanwhile Laura was completing arrangements for an early departure. Ben Holton, her father's faithful domestic, was the only person she engaged to go with her. A party was forming at Seattle, and thither she went with all her supplies. Mrs. Miller accompanied her that far.

Here they found another brave woman—Kate Willis—ready to brave the dangers of the Klondyke. She was forty years of age, large, strong, and had determined to go to Juneau or Dawson City to start a laundry.

The vessel pushed off, and Mrs. Miller stood on the dock waving her handkerchief at the brave girl until distance mingled her form with the others, and then burst into tears.

Theodore Lackland was a deep schemer, and when he separated from Laura Kean he had by no means abandoned hope of winning her.

While on his way to San Francisco he was continually saying:

"So she is going herself to search for her lover! Is Paul dead—really dead? May it not be only a mistake after all? He is missing, that is sure, but the young fellow has more lives than a cat. I wish to Heaven I knew that he was——" He started, and, shuddering, began to think how degenerated he had grown.

Then he leaned back in his seat and closed his eyes, while the great train, like a flying vulcan, rushed on in the darkness until the city of Oakland was reached. He went aboard the ferry, and was transferred to San Francisco, and, leaping into a carriage, was driven to a certain hotel, where he secured a room.

It was nearly daylight by this time, but notwithstanding he had slept none during the night, he summoned a messenger, wrote a note, and, sealing it, dispatched the boy.

Two hours had passed, and the sun was shining through the window, when there came a light tap at his door, and he opened it.

Before him stood a smooth-shaved man with hair that was once sandy, but so bleached with gray it was a roan. His nose and eyes were prominent, and his face narrow, cheeks red and steel-gray eyes twinkled with something deep and devilish. The newcomer was a peculiarly nervous man who had a strange habit of craning his neck and bowing his head like an eccentric burlesque comedian.

After assuring himself he was not being watched, he closed the door softly and in a voice that was softness itself asked:

"You sent for me," and craned his neck like a choked rooster trying to swallow a morsel too large for its throat.

"Yes, Capt. Fairweather, I want to talk with you. When does another ship sail for Juneau?"

The captain, who was well up in marine intelligence, said:

"There is the 'President' sails from Seattle in three weeks, and the 'Occident' leaves here a few days sooner."

"Will they both arrive about the same time?"

"Yes, the 'Occident' a little ahead of the 'President,' as she is the fastest boat."

"That is just as I want it. Now, captain, you secured men for me before to do some work in the Klondyke——"

Again the captain craned his neck, choked and bowed, then cautiously glanced about the room to see if he was observed before answering:

"They got in trouble there."

"How do you know?"

"Morris wrote that Belcher was shot and in the hands of the miners, who might lynch him," and Capt. Fairweather placed his hands about his neck, as if the very thought gave him pain.

"Has he given away anything?" asked Lackland, with some little uneasiness.

"No. He will die before he does that."

"Very well. Fairweather, have you heard of the fate of this young fellow who is causing so much trouble?"

"No."

"The girl says he lives."

"Bah!"

"Well, the impression is so strong that she has determined to set out for Alaska to find him, and sails in the 'President' for Seattle."

"It will be a fool's journey, I know full well; he can't be alive."

"Well, I have made up my mind to go to Alaska myself."

SIGHTS IN OLD PANAMA.

Ancient City Once as Beautiful as Any in Romance.

Following the English style, dinner is a full-dress and ceremonious affair. After dinner comes the promenade along the esplanade—a charming walk around the old battery overlooking the prison. Our way borders the sea; behind us lies the city, with its Moorish towers, its red-tiled roofs; back of it rises Mount Ancon; to our left is the little Indian hamlet of La Boca, at the mouth of the Rio Grande, and the green hills of the Andes in the distance; along the horizon oceanward stretches the bay. What words can describe it?—a study in color as the rays of the setting sun turn to crimson, green and gold its islands; the stately palmetto trees that fringe its banks, the white beach, and, far away the ancient towers of San Anastasius, sole landmark of the once beautiful city of Old Panama.

The story of this beautiful city, Old Panama, reads like one of the romances from the "Arabian Nights" that so delighted our childhood. Its houses of aromatic wood, hung with costly tapestries, adorned with paintings and sculptures that a king might envy; its 800 magnificent churches, with their services of silver and gold, their frescoes of pearls and precious driveways, chief of which was the king's highway, over which the royal horses bore the treasures to Puerto Bello, and the ships ready to sail from them to Spain. Into the midst of this Asiatic splendor came Morgan and his buccaneers, and this struggle, one of the most memorable on our continent, the first of white against white, led to the destruction of the flower of Spanish chivalry and the capture of Panama. So pass the glories of the world!—Catholic World.

HE WAS TOO CONSCIENTIOUS.

Public-Spirited Sheriff Lost Suitor for His Daughter.

"I am still without a father-in-law," said the drummer, "and I guess a Long Island farmer is more to blame for it than anybody else. I met one of his daughters while I was on my summer vacation and fell in love with her and after six months' correspondence I went down to tackle the old man about it. I drove up to the house with a horse and buggy and went in, but before I could get around the subject nearest my heart he said:

"'As a deputy sheriff of this county I'll have to arrest you, sir."

"'What's up?'" I asked.

"'Driving faster than eight miles an hour.'

"'But I was in a hurry to see your daughter. I want to ask her hand of you.'

"'Wanter marry Sarah, eh?'

"'I do.'

"'Waal, that's kind of you, but I must do my duty as an officer and make six shillings in fees. You'll have to go along.'

"I went along with him," said the drummer, "and was fined $5 and costs, and, though I'm not a thin-skinned man, my feelings were hurt, and I left Sarah to find a better man. She was a nice girl, but her old dad was too conscientious for me."—Ohio State Journal.

JOKERS OF WEST POINT.

Queer Ammunition With Which the Reveille Gun was Charged.

At West Point, among so many young men full of health and animal spirits, it is inevitable that there should be plenty of jokes afoot, even to the extent of pranks consituting breach of discipline. A favorite form of mischief consists in tampering with the gun. Once at least, according to H. Irving Hancock, the reveille gun was loaded with a peculiar kind of ammunition.

When the sentry comes in from guard duty at night he finds coffee and sandwiches in the tent which serves as cadet guardhouse. As it is not easy to gauge his appetite there is generally a liberal supply of the sandwiches.

An officer and a member of the board of visitors were walking one morning before reveille. The officer was dilating upon the wonderful air at West Point. Suddenly the reveille gun was fired and both gentlemen began to sniff.

"Marvelous air," said the visitor. "I should call it peculiar."

"It does seem strange," admitted the officer.

"It smells like—like fried ham!"

"Precisely. But who is cooking it?"

It was too early for breakfast in any of the houses at the officers' quarters, and besides the odor seemed to come from the plain.

"This must be looked into!" muttered the officer. "Suppose we take a walk over the plain."

A fragment of scorched ham was found in the grass, then a piece of badly made toast, then more ham and more toast.

A trail of fried ham and toast extended for an eighth of a mile. Some cadet had loaded the gun with sandwiches, rammed them down under newspaper wadding and awaited the event. No one ever discovered which that frolicsome cadet was.

She Was Persuaded to Try St. Jacobs Oil, and All Pain Disappeared Immediately.

It is undoubtedly a fact beyond dispute that the strongest advertising medium the proprietors have is that of people who recommend others to use St. Jacobs Oil. People who have themselves experienced a happy result which invariably follows the use of this great remedy, show their gratitude by recommending it to those whom they know are similarly afflicted. This is the case of Margaret Lee of 71 Brightfield road, Lee Green, W.

"Having suffered from muscular rheumatism for years, and not receiving any benefit from various remedies I used St. Jacobs Oil; pain and soreness removed at once; no return of rheumatism." St. Jacobs Oil is sold in 25 cts. and 50 cts. sizes by all druggists.

CRUCIAL WEEK IN COAL STRIKE

Claims of Operators to Be Able to Run Will Be Tested.

SOME MEN ARE AT WORK

But Whether Enough Men Are Obtainable With Protection of Troops to Operate the Collieries, Time Alone Can Tell.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 13.—This is the beginning of a week which is generally believed will put to a test the claims of the operators that they will be enabled to start up their collieries if given protection, and the counter claim of the United Mine Workers organization as expressed in Wednesday's resolutions that the strikers will not return to work without concessions, even though the entire military force of the United States should be here to protect them.

With a determination to prove their claim the operators have been for the past week making a supreme effort to secure men. That they have succeeded to some extent is evidenced by announcements made with some positiveness that various collieries will resume operations in the course of a few days.

The Delaware and Hudson company will make a start this morning at the Bellevue.

The Green Ridge Coal company will open up its Green Ridge colliery probably tomorrow or the next day, but assuredly some day this week. Other companies say they are figuring on a resumption at certain collieries, but decline to give their location. Claim is also made on the operators' side that the forces at collieries already working are to be largely inicreased during the week.

COLOMBIA WINS FIGHT.

Revolutionists Said to Have Been Defeated at LaCienaga.

Colon, Colombia, Oct. 12.—Persons who arrived here from Cartagena say that forces of the government have defeated the revolutionists at La Cienaga. There is no further news of the situation at Sant Marta.

It is reported also that the government has driven the revolutionary General Uribe-Uribe from the strategic position he held near Teneriffe on the Magdalena river. General Uribe-Uribe is said to have been compelled to retreat with all his forces toward the interior of the country.

The Magdalena river is now reported to be again open to traffic.

Panama, Oct. 13.—General Julio E. Cordovez, of the government, arrived here from Bogota by way of Barranquilla. He came through with troops and gives an account of conditions on the Magdalena river. He says he left Bogota September 24, and at Magague learned that the revolutionary general, Uribe-Uribe, had possession of the strategical point in the river. Cordovez' forces started for Teneriffe, but soon learned that Uribe-Uribe had retreated to the mountains. General Marcarres has defeated the rebel forces under Castilio.

General Cordovez adds:

"General Fornandez, minister of war, has asked each department of Colombia to contribute two thousand men for the purpose of pacifying the isthmus. A number of those troops are already at Banquilla under General Perdomo. The men from departments of Cundinamara and Cauca are at present at Hondo waiting transportation down the river. Six thousand more men will come from the departments of Antioquia, Tolima and Santander. The interior of the republic is entirely pacified. The people there are at work and are protected by the guarantees offered by President Marroquin in his decree of amnesty."

ANTHRACITE DUTY SMUGGLED.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 11.—Secretary of the Navy Moody, addressing a great republican concourse here last evening, declared that the duty of 67 cents a ton on anthracite coal "was smuggled into the tariff act in a sneaking and cowardly manner," and ought to be repealed at the short session of congress. He declared that the president could not constitutionally send troops into the coal regions without a call from the Pennsylvania authorities. Nor could he seize anthracite lands by the exercise of eminent domain. Concluding his reference to the coal question, Mr. Moody said:

"The president has appealed in vain to the coal operators to co-operate with the miners in effort to bring about an end of the strike. Now when these operators appeal to congress not to take off the duty of 67 cents on anthracite coal, their appeals will likewise be rejected. Let them have their pound of flesh, but they must take it without one ounce of blood."

PRESIDENT URGED TO ACT.

Operators Demand Proceedings Against Miners' Union.

New York, Oct. 11.—David Wilcox, vice president and counsel for the Delaware and Hudson Railroad company and one of those present at the recent conference called by President Roosevelt at Washington, has sent to President Roosevelt a letter demanding that the federal government proceed against the miners' organization in the courts on the ground that it is a conspiracy to prevent interstate commerce.

Mr. Wilcox, it is said on authority, represents all the coal operators in this action.

Brazil Invaded by Bolivian Troops.

Rio Janerio, Oct. 10.—Dispatches from Para say that Bolivian troops have invaded Brazilian territory and attacked several villages. Brazilian merchants have been arrested on the charge of having been concerned in the Acre insurrection. The Journal de Brazil has received a letter from Senor Galvez, ex-president of the so-called Acre republic, saying that the governor of Manaos has arrested him and also an Aregentine citizen, Ireneo Bechini. Both men are imprisoned at Fort Sao Joaquin. Galvez complains of harsh treatment. He says that he went to recover a debt.

Oil Company May Pay Damages.

Nashua, Oct. 10.—S. C. Drake, representative of the Standard Oil company, and Attorney George W. Kassett of Dubuque, were in town this week for the purpose of looking up the particulars in the two explosions caused by the intermixing of kerosene and gasoline which occurred here two weeks ago and in which three lives were lost. Mr. Moon, one of the victims, asks for $15,000 damages, while McKaben, the other, wants $5,000.

Some people have a decided penchant for mischief.

CONFERENCE WAS FRUITLESS.

Operators and Miners Remain Firm After New York Meeting.

New York, Oct. 10.—Replete at its opening with promise of a solution of the long drawn out struggle between the United Mine Workers of America and the operators of the anthracite properties in Pennsylvania yesterday closed without apparent appreciable progress toward an agreement on the issues in controversy.

The most noteworthy of the day's events was a conference at the office of Senator Thomas C. Platt, at which there were present, among others, the two senators from Pennsylvania and the governor of New York and nearly all the heads of the big corporations controlling the anthracite fields. In all seeming, this conference had a contrary effect to that which had been hoped from it, and the operators departed declaring adherence to the policy they have followed from the first of resisting the demands of the miners' union to the bitter end. There were other conferences during the day in which President Mitchell and people of more or less consequence in the industrial world participated, but these, so far as information goes, were barren of result as the principal meeting.

In brief, there had been no change so far as it might have been affected by the gathering in New York of labor leaders, mine operators and public men.

Washington, Oct. 10.—The following was made public at the white house yesterday:

"Office National President United Mine Workers of America, John Mitchell, National President, Second Vice President American Federation of Labor:

"Hotel Hart, Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 8, 1902.

"Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, Washington, D. C.—Dear Sir: Hon. Carroll D. Wright has, no doubt, reported to you the delivery of your message to me last Monday and my statement to him that I should take your suggestion under advisement although I did not look upon it with favor.

"Since that time I have consulted with our district presidents who concur fully in my views.

"We desire to assure you again that we feel keenly the responsibility of our position and the gravity of the situation, and it would give us great pleasure to take any action which would bring this coal strike to an end in a manner that would safeguard the interests of our constituents. In proposing that there be an immediate resumption of coal mining upon the conditions we suggested in the conference at the white house we believed that we had gone more than half way and had met your wishes.

"It is unnecessary in this letter to refer to the malicious assault upon us in the response of the coal operators. We feel confident that you must have been impressed with the fairness of our proposition and the insincerity of those who maligned us.

"Having in mind our experiences with the coal operators in the past we have no reason to feel any degree of confidence in the future, and inasmuch as they have refused to accept the decision of a tribunal selected by you, and inasmuch as there is no law through which you could enforce the findings of the commission you suggested we respectfully decline to advise our people to return to work simply upon the hope that the coal operators might be induced or forced to comply with the recommendations of your commission.

"As stated above, we believe that we went more than half way in our proposal at Washington, and we do not feel that we should be asked to make further sacrifices.

"We appreciate your solicitude for the people of our country who are now and will be subjected to no end of suffering, inconvenienced by a prolongation of the coal strike, and we feel that the onus of this terrible state of affairs should be placed upon the side which has refused to refer to fair and impartial investigation.

"I am respectfully,
(Signed) "John Mitchell,
"President U. M. W. of A."

SULTAN DECLARES WAR.

General Sumner Notified Peace Is Not Desired by Moros.

Manila, Oct. 13.—The sultan of Bacolod, Mindanao, has rejected the friendly overtures of General Sumner, commander of the American forces in Mindanao, in a defiant letter in which he invites war.

The sultan says: "The sultan of Bacalod desires war forthwith. He wishes to maintain the religion of Mohammed. Caese sending letters. What we want is war. We do not desire friendship."

Friendly Moros report that the sultan of Bacolod is fortifying his strongholds. He is in possession of many rifles.

It is expected that an American column will be sent from Camp Vickers to capture and reduce the Bacolod stronghold. It has not been decided when the move is to be made.

Jessie Morrison Free.

Leavenworth, Oct. 10.—Jessie Morson, the alleged slayer of Mrs. Olin Castle, left the Kansas penitentiary shortly before noon yesterday for her home in Eldorado, Kas. Warden Jewett informed her that she could depart at any time. The supreme court order stated that she was to be released on the approval of her $10,000 bond. Word came in from Eldorado that the bond was satisfactory. Miss Morrison thanked Warden Jewett and the prison officials and said that while they had treated her kindly she hoped never to return. She left on a Kansas City electric car and was allowed to take some of her fancy work with her.

EIGHT MEN PUT TO DEATH.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 10.—The steamer Maru is in port from Yokohama and the orient. She brought news that the Chinese commission sent to investigate the murder of the missionaries at Chenchow, Hunan, has returned to Changsha. The church was repaired, eight ringleaders of the disturbance were put to death and five officials dismissed. The governor general of Hunan has ordered the tao tai of Chenchow to go to Hankow and consult with the British consul, but the missionaries are satisfied with the measures taken by the governor general and the tao tai and have addressed a memorial to the British consul.

CEDAR RAPIDS STARCH FACTORY.

Building to Be Erected at Once at a Cost of $200,000.

Cedar Rapids, Oct. 11.—The contract was let yesterday for the erection of a $200,000 starch factory in the southeasterly part of the city, to have a minimum capacity of 2,500 bushels of corn per day. Six three-story buildings are to be erected, and the work of construction will begin tomorrow. The city council has passed an ordinance granting the factory immunity from taxation for a period of ten years. About one hundred men and women will be employed to begin with.

SUFFERED SEVEN YEARS

With Catarrhal Derangements of the Pelvic Organs.

Hundreds of Dollars Spent in Vain---Peruna Cured.

Miss Kate Brown.

Miss Kate Brown, Recording Secretary of the L. C. B. Association of Kansas, in a letter from 605 N. Seventh st., Kansas City, Kansas, says:

"For seven years I have not known what it was to spend a well day. I caught a severe cold which I neglected. It was at the time of menstruation and inflammation set in and prostrated me. Catarrh of the kidneys and bladder followed, my digestive organs gave way, in fact the cold disarranged my whole system.

"I spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and medicine, but derived but little benefit until I began treatment with Peruna. I kept taking it for nearly nine months before I was completely cured, but I kept growing better gradually so that I felt encouraged to continue taking Peruna until my health was restored. I send my thanks and blessings to you for Peruna."—Miss Kate Brown.

A neglected cold is frequently the cause of death.

It is more often, however, the cause of some chronic disease.

There is not an organ in the body but what is liable to become seriously deranged by a neglected cold. Diseases of the kidneys, bladder and digestive organs are all frequently the result of a neglected cold.

Hundreds of dollars are spent on doctors and medicines trying to cure these diseases, but until the true cause of them is discovered, there will be no use in using medicine.

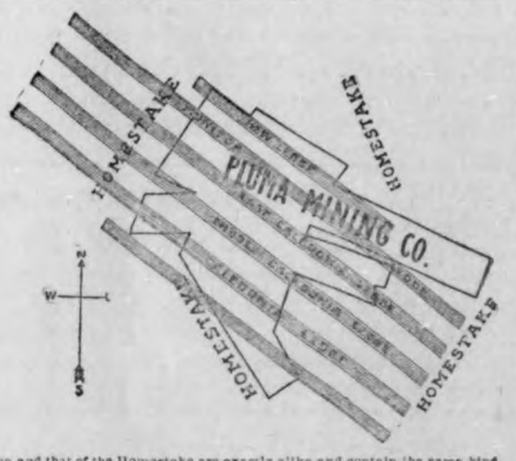
Dyspepsia medicine, diarrhœa medicine and constipation medicine is of no good whatever when catarrh is the cause. The catarrh must be treated. The cause being removed, the derangements will disappear.

Peruna cures catarrh of the digestive organs, the urinary organs or any of the internal organs.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

This Diagram Shows the Pluma Gold Mine as it is, in the Very Heart of the Homestake, the Greatest Known Gold Mine in the Whole World.



The ground of the Pluma and that of the Homestake are exactly alike and contain the same kind of ore---were made at the same time and by the same operation of nature. The mountain is a mass of low grade free milling ore, every ton of which can be handled at a profit of 100 per cent. We already have ore enough in sight to make the stock worth several times par.

The word mine in the usually accepted sense should not be applied to the Pluma or Homestake. They are extraordinary manufacturing plants, with their own unlimited raw material and a most absolute and continuous market for their product---gold---with no risk or uncertainty.

The Pluma was held back by litigation for over twenty years, which is all completely settled now.

We want machinery to begin extracting the gold from our most extensive supply of ore, and so must sell some treasury stock. Our necessity is your great opportunity, and it won't last long before the price doubles. The 25c stock will be all gone before thirty days. Then the price will be 50c. There is no wildcat or fake about the Pluma: it is a genuine great gold mine, without risk. If ever there was one. The most conservative business and professional men in Des Moines, where 125 personnel of the company is known and mining men in Lead and Deadwood where the mine is well known are buying this stock.

At the democratic caucus held on Saturday evening the following township officers were nominated: For clerk, Chris Lau; trustee, Dan Webner; trustee, to fill vacancy, Fred Buck; constable, S. B. Day; constable, to fill vacancy, R. W. Bloom; justice of the peace, Aug. Lau.

The marriage of Joe Hjlik and Miss Fohrman took place Tuesday last. The groom is a prosperous farmer residing near Duncan. The bride resides several miles west of town and is highly spoken of. We presume that the ceremony took place at Duncan. May their future be as happy as their wedding day.

Mrs. Leana Busch advertises her entire farming outfit for sale on Friday, October 25, 1902. The sale will be held on the S. B. Day farm, one half mile southeast of town. A number of cattle and horses appear among the list advertised. Remember the date and attend the sale. Friday, October 24, 1902, at 1:00 o'clock sharp.

Joe McCarthy, representing Wm. Werner, Britt's up-to-date tailor, was in town last week. He contemplates making our town regularly, and by hard rustling on his last trip he succeeded in doing a nice business. Mr. Werner employs a large number of tailors in his tailoring establishment, and his work always gives satisfaction.

On Tuesday occurred the wedding of Ed. Garwein and Lizzie Mackell, both of whom reside a short distance north of town. These young people are very popular in the community in which they live. We were unable to glean any of the particulars except that they were married at the home of Herman Stromer. The TIMES extends congratulations to the newly married pair, may they live long, prosper and be happy.

The opening ball in the new hall over the bank building comes off election night, November 4th. Ainsworth Orchestra.

Local telephone exchange is being agitated here just now. The plan is generally accepted by our business men, and should it go through would be very handy. The talk is to get as many rural connections as possible and as almost every other community has a local and rural exchange why should not Klemme the business center of the county have one.

Rev. Phelps and family left on Wednesday for their new home at Kanawha. During their residence here which has extended over a period of three years, this estimable family has made a host of friends, both inside and outside of the church. Rev. Phelps is an able exponent of the gospel, and has done good work here for the cause he espoused. May success attend his efforts and may they like their new home.

I have for sale in Polk county, Minn., a few quarter sections of raw prairie land, well located and of good quality, that I am offering on very easy terms and at a reasonable price. If you have $400 to $500 to pay down, you can secure a quarter section of this land, and can secure very easy terms on the balance of payments. These lands are sure to advance in value, and offer an inducement to the man seeking land for a farm as well as to the investor.

A Severe Accident.

On Thursday afternoon the 17-year-old daughter of Louis Wendel was accidently shot in the right shoulder. She was going out in the field to plow for her brother while he went out hunting, and was carrying the gun on the plow, and in some manner it was discharged with the above results. Her parents are not at home having gone back east on a visit a week or so ago. Dr. Spooner was called and though we have been unable to get an authentic report, we hear that the patient is in rather a critical condition.

Cattle Strayed or Stolen

Out of my pasture on section 19, in German township. Following is a description of the stock: Three yearling steers coming two next spring. Color—red with white spots, mostly red. Two of them are marked with a slit in right ear and one with small hole in top of right ear. Finder of these cattle will be well paid for his trouble by notifying AUGUST LAU, 12-4 Klemme, Iowa.

Railroad Notes.

Homeseekers Before buying a farm or locating elsewhere, ought to see the good farming and dairy lands along and contiguous to the line of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway. The soil is rich and highly productive of grains, and is a good stock country with markets in easy reach.

These lands are going rapidly and another opportunity will be given to all who desire to see them. On the first and third Tuesdays of June, July August, September and October, round trip tickets will be on sale at principal stations to points on this line in Northwestern Iowa, Southern Minnesota and Southwestern portion of South Dakota.

Call on nearest ticket agent for rates, etc., and see that your ticket reads via the C. R. I. & P. Ry.

There will also be on sale at stations of this company on same dates homeseekers excursion tickets at low rates to various other territory.

WARNING GIVEN BY PRESIDENT

Attention Called to the Strict Provisions of the Civil Service Law.

TWO CASES CITED BY HIM

Attorney General Holds the Law Was Violated in Pennsylvania and Ohio—Quay and Dick Were the Offenders—President Gives Advice.

Washington, Oct. 2.—President Roosevelt issued an executive order having regard to the matter of political contributions by federal employes. It seems that the civil service commission had complained of certain soliciting letters sent out by the republican state committees of Ohio and Pennsylvania. The president asked the attorney general for an official opinion

In the Pennsylvania case it appears that recently a circular letter was issued by the republican state committee signed "M. S. Quay, chairman," stating that financial assistance is needed in the coming congressional and state election and that the committee will be greatly obliged if the addressee will aid to the extent of his ability and inclination. This circular letter bore in its caption besides the name of Senator Quay as chairman that of W. R. Andrews (clerk to the senate committee on immigration) as secretary, and was sent by mail to various federal officers and their employes at their home addresses. Upon advice from the commission that because of their official relations neither Senator Quay nor Mr. Andrews could properly serve upon a committee concerned in soliciting and receiving political contributions from federal officers or permit their names to be used in letters making such solicitation, the circular letter, so far as addressed to federal officials, was withdrawn. Immediately thereafter another circular letter was issued identically the same form except that it bore the signature of the treasurer of the committee, who is not a federal officeholder. The commission pointed out the illegality of this circular because it carried on its heading the names of Senator Quay and Mr. Andrews, and directed its recall, and this ruling is now contested by Mr. Andrews.

In the Ohio case a circular was issued by the republican state executive committee, bearing the names of Hon. Chas. Dick (member of congress) and of various federal officials. The commission demanded its withdrawal, but the Ohio committee, in the words of the commission, "declines or neglects to acceed to this demand."

The attorney general in his opinions says the question presented is covered by section 11 of the civil service act, which provides:

"That no senator, or representative, or territorial delegate of the congress, or senator, representative or delegate elect, or any officer or employe of either of said houses, and no executive judicial, military or naval officer of the United States and no clerk or employe of any department, branch or bureau of the executive, judicial or military or naval service of the United States, shall, directly or indirectly, solicit or receive, or be in any manner concerned in soliciting or receiving any assessment, subscription or contribution for any political purpose whatever, from any officer, clerk or employe of the United States, or any department, branch or bureau thereof, or from any person receiving any salary or compensation from moneys derived from the treasury of the United States."

The attorney general, after quoting other points of the act, says:

Whatever the particular form of words adopted in such circulars in order to show a request rather than a demand and to give to responses a quasi-voluntary character, the explicit and comprehensive words of the statute, forbidding those barred by their public relations to solicit from federal officials, directly or indirectly, or to 'be in any manner concerned in soliciting or receiving contribution, for any political purposes whatever,' unquestionably condemn all such circulars. They should not be sent to federal officials, or else they should not bear the names of the public officers and employes designated in the act."

There is also quoted an opinion by former Attorney General Harmon on a similar case, who said in summing up:

"All who are in the government service are thus protected against the possibility of actual coercion and from that of the coercion implied in the election of the person soliciting or receiving to the government or implied in solicitation or receipt in a public office: but congress did not attempt to prohibit solicitation by or payment to persons not in the government service otherwise than in government offices."

President Roosevelt's order continues:

"I hereby call the attention of all officers and employes in the federal service to the foregoing opinion, and warn them that the provisions of the law as therin construed are to be by them obeyed and enforced.

"Any official in the federal service may without jeopardy to his official standing contribute or not, exactly as he pleases, provided he obeys the sections of the civil service act above referred to."

Agriculturists on Strike.

Rome, Oct. 14.—An agricultural strike has broken out in the district of Syracuse, Sicily. The carbineers who were sent to preserve order were received at Giacratana with volleys of stones. They fired their revolvers in the air, but this failed to overawe the rioters, who dragged one of the soldiers into a house and killed him. The carbineers then endeavored to retreat to their barracks to procure their rifles, but they were so closely pressed by the mob that they were compelled to fire their revolvers in self defense, with the result that two peasants were killed and others were wounded.

Shaw's Son Returns.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Mrs. Leslie M. Shaw, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, has left for Seattle to meet her son Earle. Master Shaw has been roughing it with a geological survey in Alaska during the summer.

What Has Been Going on During the Past Week.

PIERCE GETS THE HOMESTEAD

Bids the Property in for $162,010 and the Litigation Is at an End—Supreme Court Denies a Rehearing in Case of Mrs. Kuhn.

Des Moines, Oct. 17.—J. M. Pierce yesterday purchased the Homestead property at the trustee sale for $162,010. But three bidders qualified by depositing with the trustee their certified checks for $5,000. These were Mr. Pierce, Samuel F. Stewart, who with Mr. Pierce held all but ten shares of the two hundred of capital stock of the corporation, and James Parrish of the law firm of Bishop, Dowell & Parrish, who acted for Mr. Pierce in the recent litigation. Mr. Parrish was bidding in the interests of Mr. Pierce. Mr. Stewart bid for himself. Mr. Pierce made but two bids toward the end.

Both Mr. Pierce and Mr. Stewart seemed highly elated at the result of the sale. Mr. Pierce said that his life had been spent in the building up of the property and that he was determined to have it.

Speaking of the price, Mr. Pierce said: "I do not consider it an excessive price, in fact, I think I got the property cheap. I was ready to go to $200,000 if necessary. Last year the business earned $30,000. Our total business amounted to $170,000 this year. I expect to be able with the new facilities to very materially increase the business."

Mr. Stewart said: "I am satisfied with the sale. The property brought what it was worth, and that was what I desired to accomplish. It was a good sale."

TROUBLES OVER SUNDAY LAWS.

Merchants And City Officers of Lamoni Have Trouble.

Lamoni, Oct. 17.—Lamoni is in the throes of a fight against Sabbath desecration, which has had its humorous, as well as its more serious phases. Last week the city fathers in council assembled passed an ordinance forbidding buying or selling in any of the stores or shops of the city on the first day of the week. It was expressly stated in the ordinance that the law applied to restaurant keepers as well as to the shops and stores. One of the leading citizens of the place went into a restaurant last Sunday and purchased a sack of candy for his boy. He confessed his crime to the mayor and judgment against him has been suspended during good behavior. The condition that he file complaint against the merchant was also imposed, and the complaint has been filed. Another citizen bought a sack of pea nuts and has since paid a fine and costs amounting to $2.85. To cap the climax one of the aldermen who had helped frame the new has been arrested for buying a newspaper on Sunday. The situation is regarded as ludicrous here, and there is some talk of repealing the law. The matter will be brought up at the next session of the council for discussion.

WHITLATCH ACQUITTED.

He is Found Not Guilty of the Murder of Joseph Buchanan.

Ottumwa, Oct., 20.—After one of the most bitter fights in the history of Lucas county district court, the trial of Lee Whitlatch, charged with the murder of Joseph Buchanan in October, 1901, was brought to a close at Chariton, when the jury returned a verdict finding the defendant not guilty. Whitlatch was arrested last October on suspicion, but was released by the grand jury in December, that body deeming the evidence insufficient to return an indictment. About six weeks ago Lee Whitlatch was again arrested, together with his brother, Owen, who was charged with complicity in the murder. A demand was made for separate hearings and the case against Lee was the first brought to trial. The hearing of this case has been watched with great interest by the people of Lucas county. Owen Whitlatch has been placed under $4,000 bond and he is now being held until it has been secured.

MRS. LAVELUER GIVEN LIBERTY.

Grand Jury Adjourns Without Finding Indictment.

Newton, Oct. 17.—The grand jury has adjourned and many of our citizen are surprised that more bills were not returned. Especially is this true in the Leveluer case. Mrs. Leveluer was under bonds for killing her husband, afterwards burning the barn in which the charred body was found. The evidence before the coroner's jury was very meager and Mrs. Laveluer should have been discharged at that time. The case was afterwards taken up in a justice court and she was bound over to the grand jury. They found absolutely no new evidence. The case has been an expensive one to the county and if there was a crime committed at all, which is doubted by some of the officials and citizens, it has been so closely covered up that all trace of it has been lost.

MRS. KUHN DENIED REHEARING.

Keokuk County Murderess Must Continue in the Penitentiary.

Des Moines, Oct., 20.—The supreme court overruled the petition for a fehearing in the case of the state against Mrs. Sarah Kuhn, the young woman from Delta, Keokuk county, who is now serving a term in the Anamosa penitentiary. Mrs. Kuhn was convicted of the murder of her husband, an old and crippled shoemaker, whom she poisoned at What Cheer, where they had driven one evening. Strychnine was administered in beer which Kuhn had purchased. Mrs. Kuhn was sentenced to the penitentiary for life and the action of the court yesterday removes her last hope of freedom except through pardon or parole.

WOMAN ESCAPED; MAN IS DEAD.

Muscatine, Oct., 20.—Otto Neimeyer, a shell digger, while enraged at his wife, fired three shots at her and then drove a few blocks and killed himself by firing three loads into his face. When found by the police, who had given chase, he was dead. The revolver was clasped tightly in his hand. Neimeyer had domestic troubles. Saturday he returned to the city and took his wife out riding, when he showed a gun she begged him not to kill her. He threatened, and she jumped out of the buggy. He then fired at her three times, but did no damage. The police followed and found him dead.

METHODS OF TAXATION.

Supreme Court Refuses to Allow Deductions to be Made.

Des Moines, Oct. 17.—The Iowa supreme court refused to accept the conclusions of Judge Smyth of Burlington, in the matter of allowing banks to deduct from their capital stock the United States bonds held as a part of the capital stock before assessment is made for taxation purposes. The German American bank at Burlington had protested against the action of the board of review in declining to deduct $100,000 in bonds from the assets of the bank as not taxable before making the assessment. The plan of assessing was to assess the entire shares of stock to the bank as a whole. Judge Smyth ordered the deduction, but the supreme court today declared this was all wrong and the town council was correct. "This method of assessing and taxing," said the court in the opinion prepared by Judge Sherwin, "the shares of stock of banks was undoubtedly adopted for convenience and for the purpose of reaching valuable property which might otherwise escape its just share of public burdens and does not in our judgment compel payment of the tax by those who do not own the property." As the shares of stock are taxed to the bank as a whole the court says is was improper to deduct the value of the government bonds therefrom in arriving at their value.

NORTHWESTERN EXTENSION.

It May Go From Alden to the Northwest.

Iowa Falls, Oct. 17.—An action just brought in the district court to secure possession of the field notes, surveys, estimates, etc., of the Chicago, Iowa & Minnesota Railway company is regarded by many as the first step on the part of the Chicago & Northwestern in extending its newly acquired line, the Chicago, Iowa & Dakota, northwest from Alden It is figured that considerable expense can be saved by securing these figures and papers, as the Chicago, Iowa & Minnesota company was organized to build an extension from Alden northwest to Britt. The acquistion of the Chicago, Iowa & Dakota by the Chicago & Northwestern put an end to the plans of the new company and the extension was abandoned. The Northwestern is putting the roadbed of the Chicago, Iowa & Dakota in permanent shape by the construction of stone bridge abutments and it is generally understood that an extension northwest from Alden wil be made next spring to either Eagle Grove or Burt in order to relieve the congested traffic that now results by the consolidation of the company's business from the western and northwestern Iowa lines of the company at Jewell Junction.

STOLEN FROM EXPRESS OFFICE.

Two Packages Containing $1,000 Each Mysteriously Disappear.

Cedar Rapids, Oct. 17.—One of the most extensive robberies committed in Cedar Rapids within recent years is that of the United States Express office at the corner of Second avenue and Third street, which occurred a few days since and which was kept from the public by those interested in the hope that the thief might be apprehended and the money recovered. The company or the agent have been successful in neither. Two packages of paper money, each containing $1,000, unaccountably and mysteriously disappeared from the office, it is understood being purloined from the safe. Mr. Crozier, agent of the company, was requested to make a brief statement relative to the robbery, but would only say that the matter had been settled. He admitted, though, that the money had not been recovered.

Immediately upon notification of the robbery the company dispatched a detective to the Cedar Rapids, but he was unable, it is believed, to unearth anything like a direct clue or any sort of a one that promised to reveal the author of the crime.

CORN JUDGING SCHOOL.

Iowa Farmers and Corn Breeders to Meet at Ames.

Ames, Oct., 17.—Thousands of Iowa farmers will be interested in the announcement that a corn-judging school has been arranged to be held at this place January 5 to 17, 1903, under the supervision of the department of agronomy. All Iowa farmers are cordially invited to attend, bringing specimens of corn raised on their farms this year, and other seeds, which they have raised. In addition to the average run products of the farms of Iowa there will be specimens of the best corn that can be shown by the leading growers of corn in Iowa and other states. The object of the school is to bring farmers and breeders of corn together to discuss relative values of various varieties of corn raised in the middle west. Corn-judging classes will be conducted for the systematic study of corn-raising. An examination will also be held and certificates given to those qualified to become judges of corn at county fairs and expositions. Cash premiums will be given to the owner of the best specimens of corn exhibited.

Demented Son is Found.

Adel, Oct. 18.—Rev. W. L. Archer has received word that his son who had become demented and wondered away from home, has been found by a minister in a town 325 miles from his home sitting on the church steps. He took him to his home, where he recovered himself but could give no account of anything from the time he left home. Two hundred dollars which he had with him are gone and he has lost 25 pounds of flesh during his wanderings.

Wrens to Inebriate Asylum.

Webster City, Oct. 17.—The notorious Dan Wren and his son, George, who for yeras past have terrorized Webster City when on their drunken sprees, were sentenced by Judge Richard to two years in the inebriate ward at the Cherokee state insane asylum. They had been drunk and fighting since Saturday. People in general were afraid of them and rather than take measures against them gave them a wide berth.

Opportunities in Oregon,

Washington and Idaho, for farmers, timbermen, stock raisers, sheepmen, miners, business men, pleasure and health seekers. Cheap excursions soon. Send two 2-cent stamps for particulars, date, list of farms, timber tracts, mining opportunities, etc. Address Johnson & Wells, 202 West Fifth street Des Moines, Iowa.

Black Leg is Killing Cattle.

Waterloo, Oct. 18.—Black leg among the cattle has broken out in the southern part of this county on the farm of Joe McManus, where one dozen cattle have died from the disease. This is one of the most dreaded diseases among cattle and every effort is being made to check it where it is.

PROSPECT OF EPIDEMIC.

Number of Smallpox Cases in Iowa Greater Than Last October.

Des Moines, Oct. 18.—There are symptoms that Iowa will be troubled this winter by another epidemic of smallpox. The number of cases reported to the state board of health is increasing rapidly as the fall season advances. Dr. J. F. Kennedy of the state board of health pointed out yesterday that the number of cases reported thus far in October was greater than the number reported the entire month of September. It is felt at the office of the board that timely precautions against the disease should be taken in all communities and thus if possible prevent a repetition of the experence of last season.

Des Moines so far as known is free from smallpox entirely. Since October 1 eight cases have been reported from Iowa City. Other parts of the state from which cases have been reported since October 1 are Buchanan county, Dubuque county, Almond, Melvin, Clinton, Mt. Hamil, Fairbanks and Bonaparte. One case is also reported from Johnson county outside of Iowa City.

Reports to the board indicate there is much scarlet fever and typhoid in the state. Ottumwa is having a serious visitation of typhoid just now, there being twenty cases reported to the state board of health. Reports to the board indicate considerable scarlet fever in Des Moines.

DAN PATCH HOLDS LAURELS.

Famous Pacer Goes Mile on Soft Track at Davenport in 2:01.

Davenport, Oct. 17.—Dan Patch again proved himself the king of pacers by stepping a mile on the Davenport mile track yesterday in 2:01, on a track that was soft and declared by horsemen to be fully two seconds slower than it was last Saturday, before Sunday's heavy rain. Driven by McHenry, the pacer started a couple of lengths behind his running mate, passed the colt on the first turn, and reached the quarter pole in :29¾. The half was reached in 1:00 flat. Gillen brought up the runner, and the pacer, going like clockwork, did each of the last two quarters in :30½, flashing under the wire in 2:01 flat. He had to face a stiff breeze on the back stretch and under the conditions the mile was one of the best he has paced. Three thousand people saw the event. The track record was lowered from 2:02¾, where Robert J. put it several years ago.

WRECK AT ELMIRA.

Milwaukee Passenger Train Run Into by Rock Island Freight.

Cedar Rapids, Oct., 20.—East bound passenger train No. 8 on the Milwaukee road, consisting of three passenger coaches, a mail car and a baggage car, was telescoped by a fast Rock Island freight train at Elmira. The Milwaukee train was at the tank taking water when the freight train crashed into it. The passenger engine was shattered and the tender telescoped the mail car. Fireman Conley was badly bruised about the back and shoulders and the mail clerk was injured, though not seriously. There were rumors that several persons were killed, but this is denied by the railway officials, who say that none of the passengers were injured.

THOUGHT STATE WILL LOSE.

Opinion as to Outcome of the Owl Lake Litigation.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Senator Dolliver, Attorney Wright and Attorney Mullan departed for Iowa at 8 o'clock last night. Mr. Mullan made his closing argument in the Owl lake land case yesterday forenoon and the case is in the hands of the supreme court. It is not likely a decision will be reached for some time, but the indications are that the state will lose the case and that the court will decide the title of present owners is valid. The case has hung for seven years. It involves lands in Humboldt county valued at $200,000.

EWART DISAPPEARS.

Robert, Elder Member of Bankrupt Firm, Can't Stand Ignominy.

Grinnell, Oct. 16.—As the result of the financial crash which has precipitated the great Ewart Bros.' estate and business into hopeless ruin, Robert Ewart, the elder member of the firm, has disappeared and no one seems to know where he has gone, although members of the family do not yet suspect that any harm has come to him. He was last seen on Monday. He occupied the palatial residence on the farm, where his family now resides.

Fishing at Bonaparte.

Ottumwa, Oct. 16.—The jury of six farmers of Van Buran county in the Bonaparte dam case, in connection with Attorney General Mullen, assessed the damages from the construction of a fishway at $40,000. This is the most important step yet taken in the clearing of the Des Moines river for the free passage of fiish.

Body Burned to a Crisp.

Marshalltown, Oct. 16.—Leona, the 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Calkins, was burned to a crisp. She was endeavoring to light a lamp when her clothing caught. Her entire body was enveloped in flames and the flesh, crisped and charred, sloughed off before assistance could be rendered.

Was Strangled to Death.

Cedar Rapids, Oct. 18.—A collar button caught in the throat of little Elward Kurtz of Eastlock Court caused his death from strangulation. The little eighteen months old child found the button on the floor and placed it in his mouth. Strangulation followed almost immediately.

Was Frightfully Burned.

Sioux City, Oct. 18.—Conrad Steinkoenig, a candy maker, is in a critical condition from being scalded by seething liquids over the head and shoulders by an explosion at the National Biscuit company's, caused by an accumulation of gasses. He was married this week.

Price Set on a Human Leg.

Mason City, Oct. 18.—R. F. Fitch, who was recently injured by the Mason City and Clear Lake Electric line, has been awarded $3,650 damages for the loss of a leg. Fitch was thrown from a car in August and his right leg shattered.

KELLY HELD RESPONSIBLE.

Coroner's Jury Fixes Responsibility on Motorneer.

Pittsfield, Mass., Oct. 16.—The finding in the inquest following the accident in which President Roosevelt's body guard, Wm. Craig, was killed here last September, filed yesterday, says that the "unlawful acts of James T. Kelly, conductor, and Euclid Madden, motorman" of the electric car, which ran into the president's carriage "contributed" to the death of Mr. Craig. The finding was by Special Justice Chas. L. Hibbard.

BRITISH ARMY IN MUCH DANGER

Surrounded by Much Greater Force of Mad Mullah in Somaliland.

JIM YOUNGER KILLS HIMSELF

Gives as His Reasons Poor Health and Grief Over Separation From Friends—Found Dead in His Room With Revolver by His Side.

Aden, Arabia, Oct. 20.—The British punitive expedition under Colonel Swayne sent to Somaliland, has fought a heavy engagement with the forces of Mad Mullah. Major Phillips and Captain Angus were killed. Colonel Cobbs was wounded.

London, Oct. 20.—The foreign office has issued an undated dispatch from Colonel Cobbs, commanding one of the columns of British forces operating against the Mad Mullah in Somaliland. The dispatch was forwarded through the British vice consul at Berbera, Somaliland. The British force engaged was composed entirely of native troops and levies. Colonel Cobbs says:

"My force reached Erego this morning. When about one day's march north of Mudug it was attacked in the thick bush. Two advances were made, and the enemy was beaten back in the morning. Their losses were heavy and we captured 100 rifles. Our force then proceeded to collect animals for transportation purposes and to join the detachment at the stockade camp. In the afternoon a reconnaissance was made and, after sharp fighting, the enemy was again driven off.

"I deeply regret to report the following casualties:

"Colonel Phillips and Captain Angus and fifty men killed and about 100 wounded. There were severe losses among the transport and riding camels. The force will reach the stockade camp tomorrow and will advance to attack the enemy."

The vice consul also telegraphs the substance of a later dispatch from Colonel Swayne who says that as a result of the fighting at Erego October 6, which was very severe, the Somali levies are considerably shaken.

The Mullah, who is said to be in communication with Kail and Inger, in the direction of the Webbe river, is bringing up reinforcements from all sides.

Colonel Swayne is much hampered owing to the necessity of transporting the wounded and water. He is retiring on Bohotle. He asks that six hundred further troops be dispatched from Berbera forts.

The severe reverse in Somaliland places the small British force there of about 3,000 men of doubtful reliability, in an exceedingly perilous situation.

Since the beginning of Colonel Swayne's second campaign against the Mullah last May, little has been heard of the expedition. The present dispatches seem to show that he was retreating from the Italian frontier northward when the Mullah attacked him at Erego.

Last December the Mullah was reported to have about 12,000 men, mostly mounted, a large percentage of whom were armed with rifles; it is possible that he now commands about 15,000 men. With this large force harassing him, Colonel Swayne has to retreat to Bohotle, 150 miles, and probably still 100 miles further, to Burao, the principal British frontier post.

This march must be made under a scorching sun and over an arid and roadless desert, even if the retreat is successful.

The gravest anxiety will be felt until further news is received. The entire expedition will have to be repeated on a much larger scale.

Colonel Swayne is accompanied by over twenty white officers, and has with him some Maxim guns and some seven pounders.

The Mullah's success will set the whole Ogaden and Doisbahanta country aflame.

JAMES YOUNGER SUICIDES.

Former Bandit Did Not Appreciate Life Outside of Prison.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct 20.—James Younger, one of the famous Younger brothers, former associates of Jesse James, committed suicide yesterday by shooting. Younger was recently pardoned from the Stillwater penitentiary, where he and his brother, Cole, were serving life sentences for participation in the Northfield, Minn., bank raid of 1876.

Younger left a letter to the press in which he gives as a reason for his act, despondency over continued ill-health and separation from his friends. The suicide is supposed to have occurred about 8 o'clock yesterday morning.

Younger occupied a room in a downtown block, and when he did not make his appearance as usual the search was made for him. About 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon the door of his room was broken in and his dead body found stretched on the floor beside the bed, a revolver clutched in his right hand. He had shot himself through the head, and evidently had been dead for several hours.

Old wounds he had received earlier in life also gave him much trouble, and although he soon obtained lighter work, his health was extremely precarious, and this caused him much worriment. He was 54 years of age.

DEFEAT FOR INSURGENTS.

Forced to Retreat at Victoria With 3,000 Killed and Wounded.

La Victoria, Venezuela, Oct. 20.—A messenger has arrived here from the scene of the engagement near this place between the government troops and the revolutionists bringing news that after seven days of terrible fighting 9,000 rebels, under General Mendosa, had abandoned the field, having retired from their last positions, six miles from La Victoria, Friday night, retreating in the direction of Villa De Gura. According to President Castro, the killed and wounded number 3,000.

During the last days of the fighting the temperature rose to 116 degrees, and a visitor to the scene of the engagement declares he never saw such a terrible spectacle as was presented by the battle field.

The victory of the government troops, which is said to be due to the personal courage of President Castro, who twice, with a Mauser rifle in his hand, charged at the head of his soldiers, is considered a serious setback for the cause of the revolutionists.

A courier from Valencia who arrived Saturday reports that up to Friday that town was not in the hands of the revolutionists

MINERS TO DECIDE.

Call For Delegate Convention to End the Strike.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 17.—The executive boards of the three anthracite districts of the United Mine Workers of America in joint session yesterday unanimously decided to recommend to a delegate convention of striking miners the acceptance of the arbitration proposition submitted by the president of the United States and are reasonably certain that it will be followed and the struggle brought to a close.

The convention will be convened in this city Monday morning and it is the hope and the belief of the officers of the union that the mining of coal will be resumed before the close of next week, after a suspension of more than five months.

The citizens of the entire region are much elated that the strike is almost over, because business in the coal regions has been practically paralyzed since the strike began.

From the time the news was received until about 10 o'clock yesterday morning there was some doubt as to how the miners would receive the modified plan. President Mitchell was asked to make some expression on the proposition, but he steadfastly refused. He was pressed by the correspondents for a statement and finally at 10 o'clock he cleared up the situation by issuing the following bulletin:

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 16.—Appreciating the anxiety and impatience of the public and the mine workers for some authoritative statement from this office, I issue this bulletin to say that I was unalterably opposed to the acceptance of or acquiescence in the form of settlement proposed by the coal operators because it restricted the president of the United States in making selection of the men who were to determine the questions involved in the coal strike. These restrictions having been removed, and representation given to organized labor as well as to organized capital, I am now prepared to give my personal approval to a settlement of the issues involved in this strike by the commission selected by the president, and shall recommend to the executive officers of districts Nos. 1,7 and 9, in their meeting today, that an immediate call be issued for a convention, whose authorization is necessary to declare the strike at an end.

"In the meantime, I trust that the people of our country will be as patient as possible, as we are moving as rapidly as the interest of our people will permit.—John Mitchell, President United Mine Workers of America."

When this was read to the arriving district leaders and groups of miners who came to headquarters to learn the news, general satisfaction was expressed that Mr. Mitchell was willing to accept the modified plan, and from that time on there was no doubt that the strike would be brought to a speedy close.

About 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon the seven members of the district boards were called into session, and after a full discussion of the objectionable part a unanimous vote was taken to recommend to the convention the acceptance of the plan. This conference was held behind closed doors and a bond of secrecy placed on every man present.

THUNDER CLOUD BY BLACK SEA.

Russia Said to Seek Revival of Unkiar-Skelessi Treaty.

London, Oct. 18.—In a dispatch from Bucharest, Roumania, the correspondent of the Daily Mail says he has just returned from Constantinople, where he investigated the reported Russian diplomatic advances to Turkey. He says he is able to affirm positively that Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia, during his visit to the Sultan, proposed to Turkey the revival of the Unkiar-Skelessi treaty, which was concluded in June, 1833, and which established a Russo-Turkish alliance. Under the terms of this treaty the porte undertook, at Russia's request, to exclude in time of war foreign warships from the Black Sea, while Russia undertook, at Turkey's request, to furnish aid by land and sea forces.

This treaty, continues the correspondent of the Daily Mail, which really placed Turkey in the position of a subject state of Russia, lasted for eight years, but on account of the opposition of the western powers it was not renewed. Russia now proposes to renew it, but to introduce articles strengthening its purport.

The Turkish court and government were thrown into consternation, fearing it was Russia's intention to enforce her wishes. Some important ministers were disposed to entertain the proposal, but a majority of the influential ministers were against it.

In an editorial article on the dispatch of its Bucharest correspondent, the Daily Mail says it thinks this news explains the recent rumors of the Russian attempt to regain control of the Dardanelles. The paper sounds an alarmist note of warning to Great Britain, Austria and Germany against this new "thunder cloud" in the east.

AWFUL DISASTER IN JAPAN.

Hundreds of Lives Lost in Tidal Wave at Odawara, in North Part.

Yokohama, Oct., 1, via Victoria, B. C., Oct. 16.—A terrible typhoon has spread disaster all over the northern part of Japan. It was accompanied by seismic tidal waves at Odawara, which deluged the coast villages. The loss of life and property being immense. Subscrption lists have been opened in the various towns by the leading Japanese people and newspapers. A local journal said:

"From telegrams and personal narrations it seems that the typhoon which visited this section of Japan on Saturday centralized its fury in the region of Odawara. Tidal waves visited the shores at Odawara, Kodsen, Kamekura, Oizo and great loss of life and immense damage to property ensued. The telepraph reports that at Odawara alone fifty houses were washed away and eight persons killed on Sunday morning. The Yumuto-Kodseu-Odawara line was completely paralyzed. Whole sections were lifted bodily, sleepers and rails and transported hundreds of yards inland. At the power house, the dynamo was reported still there, but a house was supposed to be 'up the mountains somewhere.' The loss will eat up a considerable amount of the year's profit of the line."

LONG JOURNEY BY AIRSHIP.

Santos-Dumont Proposes to Travel From Paris to San Francisco.

London, Oct. 17.—Ex-Mayor Phelan of San Francisco, who arrived in London last evening said to a representative of the Associated Press that M. Santos-Dumont is about to make an offer to travel from Paris to San Francisco by airship.

"Santos-Dumont," said Mr. Phelan, "asks that a prize of $200,000 be put up. This sum however, will only be paid over in case the trip is successful. The aeronaut undertakes to pay all his own expenses, and he is already at work building a new airship for this purpose."

This business is not an undeveloped prospect. It is a demonstrated dividend payer. This is the largest business in the world producing Men's Goodyear Welt (Hand Sewed Process) shoes, and has always been immensely profitable. There has not been a year in the past twelve when the business has not earned in actual cash much more than the amount necessary to pay 7 per cent annual dividend on the preferred stock of $1,000,000. The annual business now is $5,500,000, it is increasing very rapidly, and will equal $7,000,000 for the year to come. The factory is now turning out 7400 pairs of shoes per day, and an addition to the plant is being built which will increase the capacity to 10,000 pairs per day. The reason I am offering the Preferred Stock for sale is to perpetuate the business. # The Klondyke Gold Mystery.

By JOHN R. MUSICK,

CHAPTER VIII.—(Continued.)

"You?" cried Captain Fairweather sharply.

"Yes. If she sails for Juneau from Seattle in the 'President,' I will sail from San Francisco in the 'Occident.'"

"Would not your presence awaken her suspicion?"

"Why should it? Everybody is going to the Klondyke now, and why not I as well?"

"That's so," with a craning swallow which ended in a bow. "Seems all right. Plan is a good one, but it will be very uncomfortable to you."

"I am willing to undergo all the discomforts when it is a matter of such importance," said Lackland. "I want two more faithful, trusty men. Men who will go wherever I send them, obey every order I give, and keep still tongues in their heads. Money is no object."

"Well, well!" said the captain, winking and rubbing his hands gleefully; "that's talking to the mark; that is talking just as I like to hear a gentleman——"

"What is your price?" asked Lackland, his pale, white face almost quivering in his intensity.

"Well, they come high."

"I expect to pay high for them. How much do you want for finding two such men for me in the next twelve hours?"

With a wink and another craning neck and swallowing bow, he gasped:

"One thousand dollars."

"I take you up; go bring them at once."

"Meet 'em at my boat at midnight to-night."

"I will do it and the money is yours as soon as they are secured."

CHAPTER IX.

Paul's Departure From Metlakahtla.

Paul Miller's discovery that the white man prospecting on the island was one of the men who had captured the hermit, and beyond doubt one of the four who had robbed him, for a moment deprived him of speech. He had his own reasons for not wishing to be recognized by the man who had robbed him and attempted his life. He also had strong reasons for wishing to have him held a prisoner. He believed the man could unfold the whole story of the robbery and mystery of the hermit, and determined to make him do so before leaving the island.

After a few moments the babel of voices without ceased, and the crowd gathered near the house began to disperse. The thought then occurred to his mind that the prisoner, having been arrested for trespassing, might be released on his solemn promise never to return. With this new danger in his mind he started toward the door, when he was met by Father Duncan.

"What have they done with the prisoner?" he asked anxiously.

"He has been sent to the prison to be detained for a while until certain mysteries with which he is connected are cleared up," said the old man.

"Father Duncan, do you think the fellow is secure? Do you think there is no danger of his escape?"

"None whatever. My Indians are very watchful and careful. They will obey me to the letter."

"Then let us sit here and compare notes for a few moments."

He seated himself by the old missionary and told him of his rescue by the mysterious old man of the mountains whom he had called the hermit. Then he told of the capture of the hermit, and concluded with:

"This man was one of the three who seized the good old man and took him away from the cavern."

The interest of good Father Duncan increased, and he shook his head, saying:

"This is certainly very, very strange."

"There is a mystery in it all which I am unable to solve. I cannot comprehend who this strange hermit can be, unless he is the captain to whom you refer."

"It looks very much as if the unfortunate man was the beloved captain whose mysterious disappearance has occasioned so much distress."

Paul remembered the story which the ex-sailor, Glum Ralston, had told him of his captain, and also recalled to his recollection the mysterious wallet-like hide.

His anxiety to escape from the island and return to the Klondyke, where his friends were, was more than over-balanced by a desire to learn something of the motives of the trespasser.

"Mr. Duncan, will your friends see that he does not escape?"

"There is little danger of his doing so," Father Duncan answered. "My friends are kind and Christian men, yet they have by no means lost their native watchfulness."

Paul had ample proof, in time, of the danger of over-confidence. The third night after his visit to the jail he was awakened by a loud noise in the direction of the little wharf. There came the report of a gun, something rarely heard at Metlakahtla, and he leaped from his bed hurriedly dressed and ran out upon the street. At last he met Father Duncan, whom he found as calm and firm as usual.

"What has happened, Father Duncan?" he asked.

"Alas! my son, you were all too good a prophet. The prisoner has escaped. The wicked are ever cunning and watchful, and Satan sleeps not."

Paul gave utterance to a groan, sank upon a large stone at the side of the road and bowed his head in his hands. One more hope, and, in fact, about the last hope he had, was gone. Paul remained two weeks longer in the Metlakahtlas, and then decided to leave his dusky friends and start for the Klondyke.

Father Duncan selected four stout young Indians to accompany him. The Indians were well supplied with provisions suitable for crossing the mountains, and he and his escort were provided with dried meat and compressed bread and hardtack.

The four Indians selected for Paul's party were stout young fellows, inured to hardship and danger. They were strong, brave and faithful. The instructions given them by the old missionary were carefully listened to and they promised to carry them out to the letter.

There is always something enchanting in a great, deep forest, with its tall trees clothed in moss and solemn depths which seem to speak of divinity. At night in the forest adds to the gloom, the solemnity and awfulness of the scene. A camp fire in the great northern woods, with its rocks and cliffs, its moss-covered trees, has something grand in it.

Gathered about a camp fire built at the base of the mountain range were five persons—Paul Miller and his four Christian Indians.

It had been a long, hard day's travel, and the poor fellows were almost exhausted. It was only Paul's indomitable will driving him on to more than super-human energies that kept him on his feet. He had abandoned all hope of finding the men who had robbed him, and now he longed to get back to the Klondyke, take another fortune from the frozen earth, and return to Laura and his mother.

The faces which ever seemed to smile at him from the smoke and darkness gave him courage and hope.

"It has been a long time since I wrote to them," he thought. "They have no doubt given me up for dead. How sad to cause them grief, and all through a mischievous yet truthful message written in a fit of delirium!"

He was suddenly roused from his painful reverie by the falling and rolling of a great stone down upon and across the camp fire, scattering the burning brands in every direction. The great, round bowlder passed within a few inches of where Paul sat and between two of the Indians, but fortunately did not touch any one. The stone was heavy enough to crush out life or break bones had it struck one.

Paul leaped to his feet and the Indians started up with exclamations of fear.

"From whence came that stone?" cried an Indian.

Paul's first suspicion that some convulsion of the earth had shaken the stone loose from the mountain side and sent it thundering down the cliff upon them, but there had been no perceptible quaking.

While he was still trying to discover the cause, there came another object rolling down the steep descent mingled with dirt, fine stones and snow. It semed a great dark ball, from which there issued a human cry. It rolled to Paul's feet and stopped. He seized one of the burning brands and held it so the flame threw the light upon the face of the stunned and half-insensible man, who sat stupidly gazing about him. The sudden and unexpected advent of this stranger was enough to startle the campers and disturb their wits. The Indians, starting to their feet, stared at him in amazement. Paul was first to recover his speech.

He cried:

"Throw the wood on the fire!"

They obeyed, and the light flashed up, throwing out a broad red glare on the scene which illumined the dirt-be-grimmed face of the man who had tumbled down the cliff. Paul, starting back, said:

"It is the escaped prisoner, the abductor—the robber—and perhaps murderer." He seized one of the Indian's muskets and raised it to brain the scoundrel, but two stout Metlakahtlas seized him and said:

"Nay, brother, Thou shalt not kill!"

The man who had so suddenly fallen into their midst was rapidly regaining his faculties and by this time able to speak. He growled an oath and rubbed the side of his head.

"Where did you come from?" asked Paul.

"From aloft on the cliff," he answered.

"What were you doing up there?"

"Tryin' to cross. Was any harm in that?"

"I recognize you as one of the men who robbed me."

"Mate, yer off yer course when ye accuse me o' doin' that."

"You are one of the two men who seized your captain a few years since and have made away with him."

"Yer on the wrong tack again, mate. I hain't done nothin' o' the kind, I tell ye."

"Where is your captain?"

"Don't know."

Paul determined to keep a close watch on the rascal and conduct him across the mountains to the camp on the Klondyke, where punishment would be meted out to him according to frontier ideas of justice.

Paul bound his arms behind his back and told him to sit in front of the fire.

The night passed guarding the prisoner by turns, and when the day dawned he was still among them. Breakfast over and they began to prepare to ascend the mountain.

It had snowed considerable during the night, but toward morning it changed to a rain and later in the day a sleet.

The ascent became every moment more and more difficult. About every one hundred paces they came to mountain torrents, fed by the glaciers, and augmented by recent rainfalls, which they had to wade, the cold water often coming above their knees.

After struggling up a steep ascent of twenty-five or thirty feet they were often forced from sheer exhaustion to rest for a moment, but when they stopped ever so short a time the piercing wind cut them to the bone and they were compelled to continue their course to keep from chilling to death.

When evening came they were on the other side of the mountain in a valley wet, shivering and benumbed with cold. They had no tent nor shelter, save the lowering heavens from above. Some dry pine and scrub oak wood was collected and a fire kindled. They all gathered about it to dry their bedraggled garments and warm their shivering bodies.

They had just made a supper on dried salmon, moose meat and hardtack, when they were startled to see an old man with long white hair and beard standing on a slight elevation not far away, gazing at them. He wore a seal-skin cap, which shaded his face, but not too much for him to be recognized by all the camp.

"The captain!" cried the Metlakahtlas.

"The hermit!" exclaimed Paul.

The prisoner gave utterance to a curse and was bounding away when a blow from the hermit's staff sent him staggering to the earth.

Paul Miller started quickly toward the hermit, saying:

"Where are you from?"

The old man gave him a piercing look and answered:

"I am from everywhere, which means nowhere. This is precious fine company you keep!" He clutched his stout staff as Paul approached and warned him not to come too close. "I will strike you as I did your companion if you come too near me," he added, in a voice made ferocious by long years of suffering and disappointment.

Paul halted and gazed at him in amazement.

The old man at last said: "I have been cheated, deceived, betrayed and lied to until I have about lost faith in all men. Can I trust you now?"

"Do you know those men?" asked Paul, pointing to the Melakahtlas. "If you know them, you must know they can be trusted."

"Yes, they are brothers, but they have been deceived as often as I."

One of the Indians approached the hermit and addressed him in his native tongue. The old man answered in the same language and grasped his hand. Though Paul could not understand a word of what was said, he knew from their manner and gestures that it had some relation to the man on the ground.

After a long conversation with the Metlakahtla the hermit approached the fire. His face was very grave, and his brow lowered when he gazed upon the prisoner. The mien of the prisoner had been defiant until he met the glance of the hermit, then his countenance fell, and his eyes were upon the ground.

"Ned Padgett," said the hermit, "you will some day receive the reward you so much merit; you will die a dog's death yet."

The ruffian gave a sneering chuckle, but made no answer.

"Have you lived long in Alaska?" asked Paul, trying to draw the old man into conversation.

"Yes."

"How many years?"

"A great many."

FREAK DINNERS A FAD.

Entertainments Where Guests Cook for Themselves.

Freak dinners are a fad. An ordinary dinner has lost its charm for some people who go out much during the season, and now that Paris has set its seal of approval on the Corinthian dinner at which everyone is obliged to cook something, New Yorkers and Chicagoans will select this form of entertainment as a diversion.

In a studio a few weeks ago the wife of an artist gave one of these cooking parties to a dozen guests who knew nothing of the fun in store for them when they arrived at the house. The studio was arranged with a long table holding a chafing dish for each person, with some particular viand before it ready to be cooked. Each guest received a chef's cap and apron, and in a short time the dishes were bubbling and simmering in a promising fashion.

When the meal was cooked it was served by the men, who acted as the waiters. Strangely enough, the dinner in every particular was a success.

But cooking has become such a fad of late that it is considered quite smart to know how to cook some particular dish in a chafer. The bachelor apartment feasts, at which the host acts as cook, have increased the desire for culinary knowledge, as these occasions prove very enjoyable to those used to more formal entertaining.

ONE PAINTER'S HAPPY LIFE.

Mind of William Blake Filled With Lofty Thoughts.

William Blake, the poet and painter, whose delicate and mystical work, both in words and on canvas, was quite unlike that of any other man, had a singularly happy life. It was full of discouragement and greatly cramped by poverty, but of this he seemed to take no account. His mind was always filled with lofty and beautiful thoughts, and this world seemed to him but the entrance to a nobler state of existence.

One day, when he was an old man, a little girl was brought to him. He looked at her tenderly, stroked her long curls, and said:

"My child, may God make this world as beautiful to you as it has been to me."

He had not been well for a long time before his death. When his old friend, the artist Flaxman, died, Blake said:

"I thought I should go first. I cannot think of death as more than going out of one room into another."

A little mre than a year after that he died. On the day of his death he composed and uttered songs in praise of God, so sweet that his wife, as she stood by, was enraptured by them.

"My beloved," he said to her, "they are not mine. No, they are not mine!"

An Iron Serpent.

Millet's House to Come Down.

The Paris mansion of Millet, the creator of "The Angelus," is being torn down to make room for modern flats. It was one of the landmarks of the French capital.

TROUBLE BEGINS.

Trouble begins with the first backache.

Backache comes in many forms—sudden twinges of pain, sharp stitches, slow, exhaustive aches.

Most backache pains are kidney pains.

The kidneys fail to perform the duties nature intends them to do and the warning of trouble comes through the back.

Neglect the kidney warning, grave complications will surely follow.

Urinary disorders, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, are the downward steps of neglected kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure every kidney and bladder sickness and the cure lasts. Read this proof of it:

Mrs. Adam Guntle, residing at 701 South Plum St., Crawfordsville, Ind., says: "I made a public statement in 1897, saying that Doan's Kidney Pills had cured a member of our family after he had suffered for years with a weak back and kidney troubles. He took three boxes of this remedy and was completely cured. Now three years have elapsed since I made this statement and I am only too pleased to reindorse it. I have also used Doan's Kidney Pills myself, obtaining the best results. I have recommended this remedy to my friends and neighbors as one which can always be depended upon."

A FREE TRIAL of this great Kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Guntle will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

THE RAGE FOR RISKS.

Long Record of Lives Lost in Daring Exercises.

A list made up by us at random from newspaper accounts, and without any thought of completeness, of the number of persons who have lost their lives through their passion for risk, the love of hazard, during the past few months, makes a total of several hundred. This includes some forty-five persons who have lost their lives in automobiles, seventeen who have "missed" their footing in balloon exhibitions, nine who have been ushered out of existence by means of the bicycle and its allied contrivances, two who have climbed steeples for the last time, three bridge jumpers, seventeen Alpine climbers, five long-distance swimmers, seven who have been blotted out of existence in efforts to break athletic records, and scores of others who have gone to a better, and it may be hoped, a safer land by various other agencies or methods designed ostensibly to promote the joys of this present life. If to this list we should add the 300 other mountain climbers who, it is said, have lost their lives in the Alps during the past ten years, the total sacrifice of human life to the rage for risk would indeed assume formidable proportions.—Leslie's Weekly.

A Cure for Rheumatism.

Bridgeport, Wash., Oct. 20th.—Rheumatism and kidney trouble seem to be the prevailing ailments in this territory and particularly in Douglas county.

A remarkable and plainly sure cure has, however, recently been introduced.

It is called Dodd's Kidney Pills and although but a short time on the market, it has already worked many wonderful cures.

One of the most striking of these is that of Mr. John Higgins, who for a long time suffered with rheumatism and kidney trouble. The pains of these diseases had combined to make his life very miserable indeed, and he could get nothing to do him any good till he heard of this new remedy. He tells his experience with it in these words:

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have done more for my rheumatism and kidney trouble than anything else I have ever used. There is more virtue in them than in any other medicine and I will always highly recommend them to all of my friends."

Dorothy—"Say, auntie, is religion something to wear?" Aunt Julia—"My dear, why do you ask such foolish questions?" Dorothy—"'Cause papa said you used your religion for a cloak."

In some instances we can exert a wide influence by saying as little as possible.

The artist was painting the portrait of the daughter of the coal baron. In her ball-gown, she was an inspiring study, indeed. "How do you like my arms?" she asked, with that true naivete which comes with great wealth. "You have a divine right," he asserted. "Yes," she smiled; "I inherit that from papa."

HIS RIGHT TO RECOGNITION.

New York Saloon Keeper's Idea of a "Rating."

An east side Teutonic saloon keeper having saved more money than he cared to allow in his till over night, decided to deposit it in a bank. Strolling down Broadway, he inquired for a "goot bank," and was directed to the Chemical National. He asked the bank usher:

"Is Mr. President at home?" The usher replied that the president was in his office. Very well, you yoost tole him that Mr. Yoccup Schmitt wants to put a hundred dollars every night in his bank and take it oudt in the morning."

After a long wait the attendant returned and informed Mr. Jacob Smith that the president could not take his money, as he was not rated by Dun or Bradstreet. The excited German replied:

"Dun or Bradstreet! Why, I was been raided twice by Parkhurst!"—New York Times.

An Australian Wit.

William Shields, a member of the ministry of the Australian federation, is a wit. In the course of a recent public speech he exclaimed: "I am an Irishman, and a pessimistic Irishman is as great a curiosity as a poetic oyster or a benevolent tiger." At the same time he was not "an optimistic ostrich, that sticks his head in the sand while the wind plays fantastic tricks with its tail." In the opinion of Mr. Shields Australians are nationally and individually an extravagant people. He proved it with an anecdote. When the present huge government house in Melbourne was being planned the architect consulted the premier of the period as to the size of the ballroom. "Do you know anything about ballrooms in other parts of the world?' queried the premier. "I only know the one in Buckingham palace," was the reply. "Then build our ballroom a third bigger than the one in Buckingham palace," said the premier. It was done as the lordly premier commanded, and so Melbourne came to possess the biggest ballroom in the world.

High Command for Cowles.

Commander William S. Cowles, President Roosevelt's brother-in-law, will shortly be given command of one of the best war vessels that can be found for an officer of his rank. He is at present assistant chief of the navigation bureau and is also naval aid to the President. Mr. Cowles is now the senior commander and becomes captain at the next vacancy.

IRONING A SHIRT WAIST.

Not infrequently a young woman finds it necessary to launder a shirt waist at home for some emergency when the laundryman or home servant cannot do it. Hence these directions for ironing the waist: To iron summer shirt waists so that they will look like new it is needful to have them starched evenly with Defiance starch, then made perfectly smooth and rolled tight in a damp cloth, to be laid away two or three hours. When ironing have a bowl of water and a clean piece of muslin beside the ironing board. Have your iron hot, but not sufficiently so to scorch, and absolutely clean. Begin by ironing the back, then the front, sides and the sleeves, followed by the neckband and the cuffs. When wrinkles appear apply the damp cloth and remove them. Always iron from the top of the waist to the bottom. If there are plaits in the front iron them downward, after first raising each one with a blunt knife, and with the edge of the iron follow every line of stitching to give it distinctness. After the shirt waist is ironed it should be well aired by the fire or in the sun before it is folded and put away, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

CONGRESSMAN WILBER SAYS

[To The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., of Columbus, O.]

"Pe-ru-na is All You Claim For It."

Congressman D. F. Wilber, of Oneonta, N. Y., writes:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen—"Persuaded by a friend I have tried your remedy and I have almost fully recovered after the use of a few bottles. I am fully convinced that Peruna is all you claim for it, and cheerfully recommend your medicine to all who are afflicted with catarrhal trouble."—David F. Wilber.

Pe-ru-na a Preventive and Cure for Colds.

Mr. C. F. Given, Sussex, N. B., Vice President of "The Pastime Boating Club," writes:

"Whenever the cold weather sets in I have for years past been very sure to catch a severe cold which was hard to throw off, and which would leave after-effects on my constitution the most of the winter.

"Last winter I was advised to try Peruna, and within five days the cold was broken up, and in five days more I was a well man. I recommended it to several of my friends and all speak the highest praise for it. There is nothing like Peruna for catarrhal afflictions. It is well nigh infallible as a cure, and I gladly endorse it."—C. F. Given.

A Prominent Singer Saved From Loss of Voice.

Mr. Julian Weisslitz, 175 Seneca street, Buffalo, N. Y., is corresponding secretary of The Sangerlust, of New York; is the leading second bass of the Sangerlust, the largest German singing society of New York and also the oldest.

In 1899 The Sangerlust celebrated its fiftieth anniversary with a large celebration in New York City. The following is his testimony:

"About two years ago I caught a severe cold while traveling and which settled into catarrh of the bronchial tubes, and so affected my voice that I was obliged to cancel my engagements. In distress I was advised to try Peruna, and although I had never used a patent medicine before, I sent for a bottle.

"Words but illy describe my surprise to find that within a few days I was greatly relieved, and within three weeks I was entirely recovered. I am never without it now, and take an occasional dose when I feel run down."—Julian Weisslitz.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Portable CORN CRIBS

Can be set up in ten minutes when empty can be used for chicken fence or for corn again when needed, or can be sawed into a two-foot hog fence as each section contains six cable wires, thus leaving three cables in each piece of two foot fence. This is just the thing to pen up small pigs to wean or to make a yard to feed small chicks in.

Directions wish each crib on back of tag for setting up and making the door.

A grand thing to set up in the field while husking or to feed out of during the winter. If wanted to store corn in, some pieces of boards or something else should be laid on the ground and the crib set on top. A covering can be made of hay with stringers to hold it on. Will also make a good grain bin if lined with straw or canvas. Tar paper laid on the bottom will keep out mice and rats. The two sections are done up in one roll. Nearly all farmers, grain dealers and storage men use them. Crib is 8 feet high 12 feet in diameter, and holds 400 bushel. It is cheap and handy

One of our best young men is in love—according to his own confession. On Thursday evening last he attended a basket social, and was completely lost in the "wilds" between here and Goodell for several hours. Since this misfortune has befallen him he is much changed, and all he will talk about is a basket that cost him $3.50, which he considered cheap, and the fairy that prepared the very delicate though somewhat expensive repast of which he was permitted to partake.

We clip the following resolutions from the Goodell Globe, which speak volumes for themselves:

"At the quarterly meeting of the directors of the State Savings bank, Monday, the 13th, the resignation of Cashier Sweigard was accepted with regret and the following resolution ordered spread upon the minutes and published in the Globe:

BE IT RESOLVED by the board of directors of the State Savings bank, of Goodell, Iowa, that we do hereby express to Harvey A. Sweigard, Esq., our former cashier, who has this day resigned his said office, our appreciation of the faithfulness, integrity and high order of ability he has shown in the past in the management of the affairs of this bank, and that we recoguize him as a man of good habits, as an exemplary citizen, and especially well qualified to perform the duties of cashier of any bank, and that we express to him our best wishes in his new field of labor, for his future success and promotion.

The affairs of the bank were found to be in excellent condition and the bank done the wise thing in selecting A. L. Tracy, as cashier, who has been the assistant cashier for the past year and a half, and by the further selection of A. R White as assistant cashier. The successors are well and favorably known and have plenty of ability to carry on the business with the same measure of success. Harvey will remain a director and retain his present interest in the bank."

Mr. and Mrs. Sweigard arrived in Klemme on Wednesday, and are now fullfledged Klemmeites.

Under the caption "Bolted" the Corwith Hustler hands Mr. Brummund this warm one:

"Our people will be surprised to learn that the democratic nominee for county auditor has withdrawn, and the present incumbent, E. F. Brummund has been petitioned and will accept the nomination as as independent candidate, so we are informed. Now, we have a high regard for Mr. B. as a citizen, but very little respect for the kind of republicanism that permits a man to run for office for revenue only or to defeat the regular nominee. We understand that the petition was drawn up in Mr. B,'s own handwriting, and was circulated partially at least by a non-resident of the county. Mr. B. has held this office two consecutive terms by the grace of republican votes, and is not entitled to the votes of the straight republicans or democrats of this county, as un independent candidate. This is no year for bolters. Stay by the regular nominees."

This article published in his home paper we should think would be a deadener on his third term aspirations. That Mr. Monahan, the democratic nominee, has withdrawn, we think is a mistake.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to return our sincere and heartfelt thanks to the many kind friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us during the recent illness and subsequent death of our son, Fred.

The Chicago Weekly Inter-Ocean is the only weekly newspaper published in Chicago in connection with the great daily papers. It contains a judiciously selected summary of the news of the nation and world, the best stories, home, farm, women's, and other special departments, and fair, patriotic, able editorials, written from a Republican view point. It is by far the best-general newspaper of the western states. The regular price for the Weekly Inter Ocean is $1.00 and for the TIMES $1.00, but subscriptions will be received at this office for the two papers in combination for one year for only $1.45.

Railroad Notes.

Homeseekers

Before buying a farm or locating elsewhere, ought to see the good farming and dairy lands along and contiguous to the line of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway. The soil is rich and highly productive of grains, and is a good stock country with markets in easy reach.

These lands are going rapidly and another opportunity will be given to all who desire to see them. On the first and third Tuesdays of June, July August, September and October, round trip tickets will be on sale at principal stations to points on this line in Northwestern Iowa, Southern Minnesota and Southwestern portion of South Dakota.

Call on nearest ticket agent for rates, etc., and see that your ticket reads via the C. R. I. & P. Ry.

There will also be on sale at stations of this company on same dates homeseekers excursion tickets at low rates to various other territory.

What Has Been Going on During the Past Week.

EX-CONVICTS HOME DEDICATED

"Father" Coffin's Gift to Humanity Is Now Ready for Occupancy—Mrs. Booth Makes an Address and Prominent People Are Present.

Fort Dodge, Oct. 25.—Under perfect October skies yesterday afternoon, in the presence of a large company, "Hope Hall," the home for ex-convicts which the beloved "Father" L. S. Coffin has built, was dedicated to its humanitarian work. The home has been built on Mr. Coffin's beautiful Willowedge farm on the outskirts of this city, and is especially adapted to its uses and represents the founder's latest contribution to the work of altruism and love.

Mrs. Ballington Booth, wife of the commander in chief of the Volunteers of America, delivered the dedicatory address. Chairman Cownie, Judge Kinne and Judge Robinson of the board of control, Warden Hunter and Chaplain Pickworth of the penitentiary at Anamosa, and Charles Aldrich, curator of the state historical building, were guests of honor at the dedication. The exercises were held on an open air platform which had been erected in front of the home. Judge Kinne presided, and after Chaplain Pickworth had offered an eloquent prayer Mrs. Booth was introduced. Mrs. Booth spoke with great power and eloquence and was followed with rapt attention by the audience which had gathered. Warden Hunter and Chairman Cownie made addresses supplementary to that of Mrs. Booth.

"Hope Hall" is the outgrowth of the desire of Hon. L. S. Coffin to leave some monument which will be helpful to his fellow men. Its purpose is to receive the most deserving prisoners as they are discharged from the penitentiaries of the state, to place them in quiet, homelike surroundings, where they can regain their self respect and efface the prison taint, and to finally find for them situations where they may begin life anew. Mr. Coffin has been impressed with the fact that a man when turned out of the penitentiary, with half formed resolutions for a better life, is most likely to drift back into the associations from whence he came. The home is admirably situated for its purpose. It is located in the midst of the eighty acres of his fertile "Willowedge farm" on the outskirts of Fort Dodge. It is beautiful in situation, on the summit of a wooded hill which commands a wide view in every direction. The building itself is a commodious frame structure 76 by 30 feet, two stories in height with a quaint gable roof. A veranda, eight feet in width, encircles the east and south sides.

The first floor includes a vestibule, a main hall, reception hall, library, matron's parlor, bed room, bath room, dining room and kitchen. The floors and woodwork are of hard pine, well oiled and varnished. On the second floor is a large bath room and nine bed rooms, which are calculated to accommodate thirty or forty persons. A large attic furnishes a workshop.

Over every detail of the building Father Coffin has watched with anxious care. Every detail is as he wishes it, and he feels that there is nothing omitted calculated to add to the comfort of its inmates.

Occupation for the inmates is to be furnished by a large plat of ground, which is to be set aside for gardening and for the raising of small fruits. A library of well selected books is in the library provided.

WATERMELONS AT $100 APIECE.

Polk County Court Sets High Value The Luscious Fruit.

Des Moines, Oct. 25.—One hundred dollars is the value of a watermelon, according to the district court of Polk county. Judge Holmes made the award yesterday and no appeal will be taken from his decision. If the purchaser doesn't have the hundred dollars handy he goes to the county jail for thirty days until the purchase price is worked out. Frank Blake entered a plea of guilty to the charge of stealing a watermelon from a Rock Island freight car and was fined $100 and costs by Judge Holmes. In default of payment he will go to the county jail for thirty days. Blake was indicted by the grand jury recently on the charge of breaking and entering a railway car. The evidence before the grand jury showed that Blake had entered the car and helped himself to a nice luscious melon. Later developments, however, showed that the car had not been sealed, only a light strip being nailed over the door and that the melons had been refused by the house to which they were shipped, so that the offense of Blake was a minor one, and the state accepted his offer of a guilty plea for petty larceny, with the thirty-day sentence.

M'FARLAND CASE ON DOCKET.

Strong Probability, However, That Controversy Will be Settled.

Des Moines, Oct. 27.—The submission of Polk county cases will begin in the supreme court today. The first case on the docket is that of the state vs. W. M. McFarland, appellant. This is the case in which the state is endeavoring to recover on ex-Secretary of State McFarland's bond of $5,000 for alledged misappropriation of state funds in handling the Iowa census. W. W. Welday and A. Holland are the bondsmen and they were sued jointly with McFarland. The case was tried in the Polk county district court about three years ago and the abstracts have been filed in the supreme court for a year or so. It was given out Saturday by one of the attorneys interested in the case that negotiations were well under way for a settlement and that the case would in all probability be settled out of court. He said it was improbable it would be submitted to the court.

H. G. McMillan Shot in Foot.

Cedar Rapids, Oct. 24.—A dispatch from North Dakota says H. G. McMillan, United States district attorney, was accidentally shot in the heel while hunting. His injuries may necessitate the amputation of his foot. He was removed to Minneapolis.

Had a Miraculous Escape.

Oskaloosa, Oct. 24.—A section of the roof sixty by eighty feet in measurement, of the Oskaloosa Traction company's new plant fell and three men went with it but escaped with their lives. Loss, $1,000.

RICHMOND A DIPSOMANIAC.

Former President of the Union Building And Loan Association.

Des Moines, Oct. 27.—W. S. Richmond, eight years ago on the crest of the wave of success, the head of a properous building and loan association, stock holder in insurance companies and owner of valuable real estate in Des Moines and Cedar Rapids, was yesterday adjudged an habitual inebriate by Judge McHenry and sentenced to the Mt. Pleasant asylum for three years.

Richard, although represented in court by counsel, refused to make a defense, and permitted Judge McHenry to sentence him upon the court's knowledge of his habits. The information was filed against Richmond by his mother; the result of Richmond's last spree. He went to his home drunk Friday night; attacked his wife and then announced his intention of resisting arrest, and arming himself with a revolver, threatened members of his family.

Richmond came to Des Moines from Cedar Rapids. He organized the Union Building and Savings association, rented the greater portion of the first floor of the Equitable building for offices and built up a large business. In 1895 the company made an assignment. An investigation was followed by the indictment of Richmond for embezzlement. Richmond escaped conviction and was then indicted for criminal libel, but again escaped. A prosecution by the United States courts for improper use of the mails also failed.

But the prosecution cost Richmond all that he had saved from the wreck and he was forced to sacrifice his lands, horses, equipages, etc. Later he became involved in an alleged real estate swindle in Cedar Rapids, but managed to get out of that. After that he engaged as an insurance agent, but for the past few years has been a strong drinker.

KILLED HER HUSBAND.

Mrs. Kreebs Resented Being Doused With Bucket of Cold Water.

Ottumwa, Oct. 24.—Because her husband threw a bucket of water on her while she was asleep at her home at Jerome yesterday morning, Mrs. John Kreebs it is charged procured a shotgun and fired a charge of shot into his stomach, killing him.

According to the story of the affair, told by a neighbor of the family, Mrs. Kreebs refused to get up yesterday morning and get breakfast for her husband, who wished to go to work. After a few hot words, it is stated that Mr. Kreebs went to the well and getting a oucket of water went into the bedroom and threw it upon his wife while she was still in bed. Shortly afterward, it is stated that Mrs. Kreebs, with the exclamation, "I'll fix you," went into the house and returned in a few moments with a gun. Coming out of the house, it is stated, that Mrs. Kreebs pointed the gun at her husband pulled the trigger. The load was exploded, striking Mr. Kreebs in the abdomen, causing injuries from which he died a few minutes later.

According to the story of Mrs. Kreebs, as told by a neighbor, the woman admitted that she pointed the gun at her husband and pulled the trigger, but she also stated that she did it with no intention of killing him, and claimed that she did not know that the gun was loaded.

A coroner's jury was empanelled and after an examination the following verdict was rendered: "Mrs. Kreebs is a criminal before the law, and that she killed her husband." She will be taken to Centerville, where she will be held pending an investigation by the grand jury.

NEW POINT OF LAW.

Cannot Order Examination of Person in Order to Secure Evidence.

Des Moines, Oct. 24.—The supreme court decided a new and interesting point of law in an opinion handed down yesterday. In the case of the state vs. Fred Height, appellant, from the Linn district court, tried before Judge William G. Thompson, defendant was convicted of rape. The prosecuting witness was under the age of consent, which accounts for the charge rather than that force was used. The girl did not make known her condition for more than ten days after the assault is alleged to have occurred, and only then when her suffering from a venereal disease forced her to do so. In order to establish the guilt of the defendant he was examined by physicians, against his protest and without his consent, and was also found to be afflicted with venereal trouble. Upon this evidence the case was prosecuted and a conviction secured. In setting aside the action of the trial court Judge McClain launches into a twenty-page essay on personal rights from the days of Caesar down to the present time, and shows that the majority of states prevent such an examination as was permitted in this instance. There are other grounds for appeal, all but one of which are found sufficient for reversal. One was the refusal of the court to admit evidence to show that the prosecuting witness was not a person of chaste character and that there had been opportunity to contract the disease from other persons other than the defendant.

LUCAS TELLS HIS STORY.

Claims He Left Emma Moore Long Before Fatal Shot Was Fired.

Clarinda, Oct. 23.—The defense in the Lucas murder trial completed its testimony at 5:30 last evening and the state at once began rebuttal. Mr. Lucas was put on the stand in his own behalf yesterday afternoon and made a good witness for himself. He was calm and self-possessed and did not in the least contradict himself on the rigid cross examination given him by County Attorney D. G. Sutherland.

The defense sought to show that Emma Moore was shot about 7 o'clock in the morning and at that hour Lucas took the train at Shambaugh for his home in Clarmont, Mo., which is four miles south of the place where the body was found. In his testimony Lucas claims to have left the girl under the booth at 5:30 on the morning of May 15.

Spaulding Not Guilty.

Winterset, Oct. 24.—The jury in the case of the state vs. Dr. Homer L. Spaulding of Des Moines, charged with performing a criminal operation on the person of Miss Jessie Frieberg which resulted in her death, returned a verdict of not guilty. The jury was out a little over an hour. The verdict met with the hearty approval of the spectators and Dr. Spaulding was the recipient of congratulations on every hand.

The Child Burned to Death.

Cedar Rapids, Oct. 23.—The little 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dostal met death in an awful form. The little fellow was playing about the house and in some manner got hold of a box of matches, unnoticed by his mother, and set fire to his clothes. Before he could be reached he was enveloped in flames.

The Klondyke Gold Mystery.

By JOHN R. MUSICK,

Author of "Mysterious Mr. Howard," "The Dark Stranger," "Charlie Allendale's Double," Etc.

Copyright, 1897, by ROBERT BONNER'S SONS. All rights reserved.

"Why have you lived so long in Alaska?"

"I could not get away," was the answer. "Yours is the only face I have seen since I left my friends, the Indians, save those who held me captive."

"And you have escaped?"

"Yes."

"Then come with us to the camp on the Klondyke."

"Klondyke—I've heard of it; they often talk about it when they think me asleep, but I do not always sleep when I seem to."

Paul was filled with delight, for here was a chance to unravel the mystery in which he was involved.

Another silence fell on the group, broken by Paul asking:

"Do you know a miner named Glum?"

"Glum—Glum—no."

"Glum Ralston."

The old man again shook his head, declaring he had never known such a person. Paul was disappointed. From what Glum Ralston had told him he was confident that this mysterious hermit of the woods was the long-lost captain who had followed the Indians to the place where they said gold in great quantities was found. But when the mysterious hermit disclaimed any knowledge of him at all he was quite as far away from the solution of the problem as he had been before.

Next morning the party resumed their march guided by the sun, which shone a portion of the day. Paul and the hermit were constantly together, and hourly grew more and more friendly, until, as the noble nature of the hermit unfolded itself, Paul came to love him. He was known to the hermit by his sobriquet of Crack-lash, for he had been called by no other name since his arrival in Alaska.

Paul was hourly entwining himself about the rugged heart of the old man. One night when they had halted and the Indians were building a fire for the night the hermit said:

"Crack-lash, you impress me strangely. I don't know why, but I have grown to love you as if you were my nearest relative. When my own dear boy grows up to manhood I could only wish that he would make as noble a man."

Paul, deeply impressed with the old man's sad story, expressed a hope that he would soon be able to leave Alaska and reach his home, and that his wife and child might yet be alive to welcome him.

Their stock of provisions were running short. One day the Indians came on the trail of a moose and were anxious to start on its trail. Paul gave them permission to go, while he and the hermit kindled the fire and prepared to make themselves comfortable for the night.

The prisoner as usual sat in sullen silence, with his back against a tree and his eyes fixed on the fire. Paul and the hermit sat engaged in earnest conversation. The former was talking in a low tone, telling how he had been robbed by the prisoner and three others, and followed them into the forest. He was in the midst of his narrative when two objects suddenly appeared before them, each with a Winchester rifle and said:

"Surrender or you are dead men."

Resistance was useless; they were prisoners almost before they knew it.

CHAPTER X.

Paul Learns That Laura Is in Alaska.

"He, he, he!" chuckled Ned Padgett, rubbing his hands gleefully at seeing the tables turned. "You hove in sight, mates, in good time. Must 'a' had fair winds."

Paul had no difficulty in making out the two men, companions of the third, whom he had met on other occasions. As these were the men who had robbed him and whom he and old Glum had chased in the forest, there was little mercy to expect from them. With thongs of seal-skin Paul and the hermit were quickly tied hard and fast, and told they must move on before the Indians returned.

As it was dark and the snow falling rapidly, there was little danger of even the Indians following on their trail, shrewd as they were in such experiences.

The night was dark and the snow falling, so it was difficult traveling. A strip of walrus hide was tied about the arms of each above their elbows and fastened about their backs. They were heavily loaded, and threatened with the knotted stick which Ned carried in his hand when they staggered under their heavy loads.

On, on and on they staggered through the darkness and over the uneven ground. At last Paul, utterly exhausted, sank down at the root of a tree.

"Get up! Go on!" cried one of their captors.

"I cannot."

"Ye lie!" cried Padgett and raised his club.

But one of his companions quickly interposed with:

"Hold on, Ned. Don't be a fool, now, and throw away every chance we have."

"What ye goin' t' do?" asked Ned.

"We're too far away for the Metlakahtlans to overtake us, so we will go into camp and wait till mornin'."

A roaring fire was built against the side of a great stone which reared its snow-capped head a hundred feet into the air.

Paul's pack was removed from his back and he laid on a blanket in front of the fire with the hermit by his side.

The rascal named Morris came to the old man's side and said:

"You said you could not give up that secret if you wished."

"I did."

"What do you mean?"

"It is lost."

Morris stared at him for a moment with wide open eyes and gasped:

"I don't understand you, Cap; you are talkin' in riddles."

"I care very little whether you understand me or not," the old man defiantly answered. "The secret is lost. It was written in cipher on a walrus hide and the walrus hide is lost."

It was some time before the idea could get through the thick skulls of the ex-sailors, but when they came to fully comprehend the loss they roared like madmen. Ned seized his knotted stick and swore he would brain them both, but his more cool companion interfered, saying:

"It may all be a trick. After all it may be only a trick to throw us off the trail. If we decide for the old cuss to pass in his checks, let it be done deliberately and give him time to reflect."

So Padgett decided to let them live and trust to some chance to reveal the hiding place of the money. Paul had heard the above conversation between their captors and waiting for an opportunity to speak with the hermit when he would not be overheard by them, whispered:

"Is the walrus hide you referred to the one left in the cavern where you took me?"

"Yes."

"I took it."

"You?" There was an expression on the old man's face almost fierce as he asked the question.

"Yes, I took it."

"What did you do with it?"

"Gave it to the miner who was with me before I fell from the precipice and whom I found after leaving the cavern. He said he had seen it before."

"Where?"

"The Indians who had enticed his captain away in search of gold had some such hide, only there had been painting added to it since."

The hermit turned, and fixing his great, earnest eyes on him in astonishment, asked:

"His captain—had he been a sailor?"

"Yes, sir."

"In what seas?"

"Almost all over the world, but his last voyage was in a sealing schooner to St. Paul Island, Alaska, and this coast."

"What was this sailor's name?"

"He is called old Glum."

"No other name?"

"I believe Glum Ralston is his name, but after all his real name, I don't think, is known. In this country nearly everybody goes by some nickname, and I fancy that Glum Ralston was only a nickname."

"Might have been Jack Ralston."

"Well, since you mention it, I believe I once heard him say his real name was Jack Ralston; however, I will not be sure."

The hermit was very calm. Paul waited a long time for him to answer, but the old man was silent as the grave. Then two of their captors came near where they were sitting, and they dared not talk anymore.

Their journey was very painful and difficult. Grown desperate, Paul had determined to escape from their captors even if he had to kill them.

One day they reached a great, gloomy cavern which extended to an unfathomable depth in the earth. Their captors had pine knots on the wall about the cavern, and lighting two of these went back to where there were piles of dead grass and a table of stone on which lay a pack of greasy cards. Here they took up their abode.

Several days passed, and then Morris and Padgett left the cavern in charge of Tom Ambrose, who tied the prisoners every night, established a deadline in the cavern in daytime, and swore he would shoot the first one who attempted to cross it.

Two or three weeks had elapsed, for in that dungeon night and day were one, when the two men came back and with them another whom Morris seemed to have known. He introduced the newcomer to Tom Ambrose as a friend fresh from San Francisco.

Padgett took Paul to where the stranger sat on a musk ox hide and the latter asked:

"Is your name Paul Miller."

"It is."

"Are you from Fresno, California?"

"I am."

"Do you know Laura Kean?"

"I do; what of her? His whole frame was trembling with anxiety and emotion."

"She is in Alaska. Just landed a few days ago at Juneau in company with Mr. Theodore Lackland."

"It is a lie—a lie!" roared Paul, beside himself with rage and mortification. "It's a lie and I will crowd it down your throat!"

Before anyone knew what he intended he had his informant by the throat and hurled him to the ground.

The guards came to the relief of their companion. Paul was quickly torn away from him and his hands bound. He lay upon the dead grass piled in the cavern. His mind was in a whirl and he kept saying to himself:

"Can it be possible? No, no, it is not possible. The whole world may be false, but Laura is not. Come to Alaska in company with that man—no, it is not true."

A thousand tumultuous emotions were stirring his breast as he lay on the dried grass, striving to persuade himself that after all this was some horrible dream. The man whom he had assaulted in company with Padgett and Morris approached him. Morris handed Paul a letter in the well-known handwriting of Laura Kean. It was dated at Juneau and addressed to Paul's mother in Fresno. The letter was brief, saying she had just arrived, and would rest a day or two before proceeding farther.

"Isn't that evidence?" asked Morris.

"Yes; but she did not come with him."

",Oh no; he came on another ship."

Then he lied when he said they came together."

Morris laughed a cold, sardonic laugh, and in a voice that seemed to have all the evil of a demon in it, answered:

"Though they came on different ships from America, there is but one train going to the Klondyke and both will be in that train. The chances are she knows no one but him, and you know Lackland's feelings towards the girl. When he starts to win he wins; he's got millions to work with, and if it's necessary to buy the entire pack train off he can do it."

Paul Miller groaned aloud, but made no answer. He realized how great her danger and how uterly hopeless he was to aid her.

"Now you can save her," said Morris.

"Save her? My Heaven, how? What other infernal scheme have you on hand?"

"You were overheard talking with the old man about a walrus hide. From what you said it was understood you knew something about it. If you will give us information that will lead to finding it, you shall be given your liberty and be taken to this young lady, Laura Kean."

"I cannot," groaned Paul.

"Why."

"I don't know where it is."

"What did you do with it?" asked Morris, his face expressing the deepest concern.

"I gave it to another. Where he is or what he has done with it I do not know."

A look of disappointment swept over the faces of the captors at this announcement. They retired to near the entrance of the cavern and there held a consultation.

"It's all a pack of lies," cried Padgett. "We've been twenty years in these woods waitin' t' grab that pile, an' no nearer to it now than before. Knock out their brains an' go away is what I say."

Tom Ambrose, though equally as much a villain as his companion, urged moderation. During all the years the unprincipled rascals had struggled to get possession of their captive's secret, Tom had acted as a brake to fiery Ned's temper.

"We have a hold on the old man," one of the plotters at last declared. "He can be made to tell where the gold is cached."

"But he don't know."

"He does know. He must know."

"Well, what good'll that do? Hain't we been the last eighteen or twenty years tryin' to open the hatches o' the old capen, who's as close-mouthed as a clam? We've threatened t' hang him—done everything any one kin, but it's all no use."

"We got a stronger pull now than ever."

"What is it?"

"Come here."

His companions gathered about him and he spread his arms around their shoulders and began to reveal the plan which emanated from his wonderful brain—a plan that was diabolical, but promised success.

RACIAL FEUDS IN EUROPE.

Antagonism Engendered Between Prussians and Poles.

Hardly a day passes but the newspapers contain striking evidence of the antagonistic spirit which is being engendered between the Poles and the Prussians. Last week it came to the ears of the publishers of a Polish paper circulating in Westphalia that one of their compositors was about to marry a German girl. They considered that this stamped him as a traitor to Poland, and although he had served them faithfully for many years they dismised him on the spot. A large number of Poles work in the Westphalia coal mines, and in order to further the amalgamation of the races the authorities have issued regulations to the effect that no person who is not proficient in the German language. The Poles obstinately refuse to know a word of German when they happen to be called up to make statements in public.

A few days ago a Polish miner had to give evidence in a Westphalia police court. He was, of course, as innocent as a newly-born babe of any knowledge of German until the magistrate threatened to report the case to his employers, who would have been compelled to dismiss him. Thereupon his German came back, and he replied fluently to all the questions put to him. His wife had been present during the hearing of the case, and was waiting for him in the passage just outside the court room door. As soon as he appeared she bitterly reproached him for having given way, and to render her arguments more forcible, soundly boxed his ears. She then kicked him with such vigor that he had to race down the corridor into the street to escape the attentions of his "patriotic" better half.—London Leader.

WHY FRANCE HAS NO NOBLES.

Gambetta Discusses Use of Aristocrats With King Edward.

The veteran Marquis de Gallifet, a former French minister of war, is letting some of his recollections get into print. He tells of meeting King Edward in Paris in 1880, when the latter dined with him and met Gambetta.

At dinner the prince said to Gambetta:

"May I ask you why you and your friends keep the French aristocracy out of office?"

"But, sir, there is no aristocracy in France,' answered Gambetta. "There are dukes that head no army, marquises who defend no marches, counts and viscounts who have no counties or viscounties, no authority or influence."

"Suppose, then, that I spoke of nobles."

"But they don't want to be employed. One only meets them in the army and navy and now and then in diplomacy. In these careers they cut, I own, a good enough figure."

"But why do you not act as in my country," queried the prince, "where we pick out the best in manufacture, trade, science and literature and ennoble them?"

"In your country that is possible, but not in France. The duke of Mossystone would object to rub shoulders with the duke of Cottonmills. We cannot in a republic have any aristocracy but that of science and merit."

"I see you are a true republican, M. Gambetta."

"Allow me, sir," retorted Gambetta, "to confess that I think you consistent in being a royalist."

ST. JACOB'S OIL.

In cases where bronchitis has come chronic from want of proper treatment in the earlier stages, there is nothing so good as Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea, in conjunction with which is strongly advised the use of St. Jacobs Oil as an outward application along the front of the throat, from close up under the chin to well down to the top of the chest; the one remedy assists the other and as intended, they work in complete unison. The wonderful penetrating power of St. Jacobs Oil enables it to reach the adhesion of the elgt matter, which lines the bronchial tubes and which makes breathing more and more difficult. As these lesions become inflamed and enlarged St. Jacobs Oil causes such adhesions to break away, making expectoration easier and more free. Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea, drinken slowly and very hot, soothes and heals the parts, is comforting and quieting, stops the cough and relieves the breathing. This manner of treatment (and there is no other two remedies that will work together so successfully) reaches the difficulty from the outside and the inside at the same time. St. Jacobs Oil reaches the seat of the adhesion and assists Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea in relieving them; then both remedies act in unison in healing and curing. The above remarks apply with equal force in cases of asthma, croup, whooping cough, enlarged tonsils and all bronchial affections. Every family should have St. Jacob's Oil and Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea always in the house in order that they may be promptly used in the first stages. Often the maladies develop with wonderful rapidity and complications take place with equal suddenness.

Man wants but little here below, but he is not anxious to get below cost.

Once, in the course of a speech which was punctuated by interruptions, in Parliament, John Bright said, saying: "Personally, I do not feel disposed to wage war against these interruptions," when an unruly member in his audience shouted, "Hee-haw!" "However," Mr. Bright continued without pause, "my friend at the back of the hall will lend me one of his ears. I shall be encouraged to recommend my attitude, in view of the historic success of Samson when provided with a similar weapon."

The Belfast magistrates announced that they would inflict a fine of forty shillings on any person expressing in public too warm a regard for the future state of any political antagonist. A policeman subsequently came upon an Orangeman lying in dignified ease in the gutter and muttering "To——." "To——." Apparently he could get no further than the first of the destination to which he desired to consign somebody or something, so the constable with "a case" in hand endeavored to help him out. "Now, where with whom?" he enquired, bending over the Orangeman. But the northern caution asserted itself. Instead of rising into a sitting posture, the Orangeman gazed upon the officer. "Put it yourself," he said; "it's too expensive for me."

Helped Everybody.

Gainesville, Tex., Oct. 27th.—L. E. Burton, formerly of Eureka, Kansas, has been at 507 Gladstone street, this city, for some time. While here Mrs. Burton has been the means of doing much good by introducing Dodd's Kidney Pills to sick friends a remedy which it seems is very popular in Kansas, but which has not been very much heard of in this neighborhood. It is called Dodd's Kidney Pills and in every case where it has been used it has produced wonderful results.

Mrs. Burton has good reason to speak well of Dodd's Kidney Pills, for they have done much for her and her family. She says: "I must tell everybody what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for me and for as many of my friends as have used them.

"I had a very bad case of kidney trouble for which I had been doctoring for a long time without benefit. I saw Dodd's Kidney Pills recommended. I tried them and was completely cured. My mother and my brother were ill and they took them and were soon well again.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have done much for us."

V. I. Jocelson, one of the explorers of the American Museum of Natural History, has arrived at Moscow on his return to New York. Mr. Jocelson has been making ethnographical studies and collections in the Amur and Yakoust territories for two years. He was especially fitted for this task by an earlier residence of several years in the Yakoust political settlement. He returns with valuable folklore and linguistic materials, notably on the Ukaghire and the Koriaks.

Advantages of Wealth.

Reginald Vanderbilt, who failed to receive his diploma with the regular academic class of 1902, has been given a special private examination in the study in which he was deficient. A rule of the university allows a special examination to be held in a student's home provided he pays the expenses of an instructor to hold the same. Several other students who failed to pass last June have also been given special examinations.

Cables Laid by Ferrets.

An American inventor of infinite resources and sagacity has utilized ferrets to lay the telephone cables through the conduits. Several rats were turned loose in the conduit with a ferret after them, to which was attached a string. Through 700 feet of the conduit the merry chase was carried, and the ferret emerged into daylight at the other end just a few feet ahead of the rat, which was probably impeded somewhat by the cord.

Mrs. Tupman, a prominent lady of Richmond, Va., a great sufferer with woman's troubles, tells of her cure by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For some years I suffered with backache, severe bearing-down pains, leucorrhœa, and falling of the womb. I tried many remedies, but nothing gave any positive relief.

"I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in June, 1901. When I had taken the first half bottle, I felt a vast improvement, and have now taken ten bottles with the result that I feel like a new woman. When I commenced taking the Vegetable Compound I felt all worn out and was fast approaching complete nervous collapse. I weighed only 98 pounds. Now I weigh 109½ pounds and am improving every day. I gladly testify to the benefits received."—MRS. R. C. TUPMAN, 423 West 30th St., Richmond, Va.

Surely you cannot wish to remain weak and sick and discouraged, exhausted with each day's work. You have some derangement of the feminine organism, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you just as surely as it has others.

Mrs. W. H. Pelham, Jr., 108 E. Baker St., Richmond, Va., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I must say that I do not believe there is any female medicine to compare with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I return to you my heartfelt thanks for what your medicine has done for me. Before taking the Vegetable Compound I was so badly off that I thought I could not live much longer. The little work I had to do was a burden to me. I suffered with irregular menstruation and leucorrhœa, which caused an irritation of the parts. I looked like one who had consumption, but I do not look like that now, and I owe it all to your wonderful medicine.

"I took only six bottles, but it has made me feel like a new person. I thank God that there is such a female helper as you."

Be it, therefore, believed by all women who are ill that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine they should take. It has stood the test of time, and it has hundreds of thousands of cures to its credit. Women should consider it unwise to use any other medicine.

A SECOND MAHDI LOOSE IN AFRICA

It Is Feared the Mad Mullah May Repeat the Khartoom Campaign.

GEN. KITCHENER SENT OUT

One British Force Was Compelled to Retreat Before the Troops of the Fanatical Mohammedan Priest—Somaliland to Be Subjected.

London, Oct. 24.—A message received at the war office here today from General Manning, dated Barbara, capital of Somaliland, announces that the force commanded by Colonel Swayne which was threatened with destruction by the army commanded by the Mad Mullah has reached Bohottle in safety.

General Manning's message adds:

"Colonel Swayne's force was not attacked during its retirement. The situation consequently is more satisfactory, but do not cancel the orders warning a Punjab regiment to be in readiness in case it is wanted. Two of the wounded are doing well, and no anxiety concerning the wounded officers need be felt. The Aden detachment is expected today and will go forward tomorrow."

Besides the Second Bombay grenadiers and the Bombay infantry regiment, sailing for Somaliland from Simla, India, today, a native field hospital sails for the same destination Saturday. The Twenty-ninth Baluchis have also been warned to be in readiness.

The news from Somaliland caused great satisfaction here and relieved the keen anxiety felt as to the fate of the British expedition. General Manning's message was promptly forwarded to King Edward.

The great combination of the tribes in East Africa under the leadership of Mad Mullah (Mad Priest), threatens to bring about a long and fierce war. The Mad Mullah is a fanatical Mohammedan priest in the Somaliland district. He has consolidated the Musselman factions and directed their combined forces against the English. The British say that Russia is backing the priest. Kitchener has been sent to crush the Madhi at Obdurman and Khartoom on the Nile.

That part of Somaliland in northeast Africa forming a border land between Abyssinia and the British protectorate on the coast of the gulf of Aden, has been for the past two or three years in a state of disturbance, owing to the increasing power of the Mad Mullah. Last December the Mullah was reported to have about twelve thousand men, mostly mounted, a large percentage of whom were armed with rifles. It is possible that he now commands about fifteen thousand men. With this large force harrassing him, Colonel Swayne, who was in charge of the British troops in the district, retreated to Bohotie, 150 miles distant, and probably still one hundred miles further, to Burao, the principal British frontier post. This march was made under a scorching sun. Col. Swayne is accompanied by more than twenty white officers and has with him some Maxim guns and some seven-pounders.

INCREASE PRICE OF COAL.

Cost of Production Increased, as a Result of the Strike.

Philadelphia, Oct. 24.—In view of the resumption of mining of anthracite coal, President Baer yesterday made public the following letter to General Manager Henderson:

"The reports of the superintendents in charge of the mines show that, as a result of the strike, the mines and mining plants have sustained considerable injury and their respective working organizations have been impaired. For some time to come the colliers cannot be worked to produce their average quantity of coal. This will increase the cost of production. Estimates have been submitted showing the probable increase in cost per ton at the several groups of collieries. The general average exceeds 50 cents per ton.

"You will, therefore, add to the circular price 50 cents per ton—this additional price to continue until the 1st of January, 1903, by which time we hope to reach a normal condition of mining and production.

"Notwithstanding the fact that during the strike no coal was sold by our company over the circular price, the price has been unreasonably advanced to the public by some retail dealers. In the distribution of the coal, therefore, you will, so far as practicable, supply the dealers who are willing to sell coal to the public at nominal prices. Where dealers seek to obtain an unfair profit from the public, you will promptly take steps to supply the reasonable demands of the public directly."

The opinion is expressed by Mr. Henderson that the prices for white ash egg, stove and chestnut coal, delivered to householders in the city of Philadelphia, should not, in any case, exceed $6.75.

AUTOMOBILE WRECKS TROLLEY.

Twenty-Two People Injured but None, It Is Thought, Will Die.

New York, Oct. 27.—Twenty-two passengers on a trolley car were injured yesterday, but none, it is believed, fatally in a collision between the car and an automobile.

The accident occurred in front of Greystone, the home of the late Samuel J. Tilden, at Yonkers. Those most seriously injured were taken to a hospital.

A man and two women, who occupied the automobile and whose names could not be ascertained, together with the chauffeur, escaped injury.

The chauffeur said he was running along the back of the trolley line when the car ran into him from behind.

The motorman says the automobile, while going down grade, swerved into the track and before it could again get off his car hit the machine.

When the car struck the automobile it left the tracks and turned over in the direction of Greystone. Had it gone to the other side of the road it would have been thrown over a precipice eighty or ninety feet to the New York Central tracks.

CASE NO. 30,611.

C. E. Boles, Dealer in Grain and Feed; Address, 505 South Water Street, Akron, Ohio—Cured in 1896.

Mr. Boles says: "Ever since the Civil War I have had attacks of kidney and bladder trouble, decidedly worse during the last two or three years. Although I consulted physicians, some of whom told me I was verging on Bright's disease, and I was continually using standard remedies, the excruciating aching just across the kidneys, which radiated to the shoulder blades still existed. As might be expected, when my kidneys were in a disturbed condition there was a distressing and inconvenient difficulty with the action of the kidney secretions. A box of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Lamparter & Co.'s drug store, brought such a decided change within a week that I continued the treatment. The last attack, and it was particularly aggravated, disappeared."

Cure Confirmed Four Years After.

Four years later Mr. Boles says: In the spring of 1896 I made a public statement of my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy cured me of terrible aching in the kidneys, in the small of my back, in the muscles of the shoulder blades, and in the limbs. During the years that have gone by I can conscientiously say there have been no recurrences of my old trouble. My confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills is stronger than ever, not only from my personal experience, but from the experience of many others in Akron, which have come to my notice."

A FREE TRIAL of this great Kidney medicine which cured Mr. Boles, will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

The Buffalo Commercial relates that an American woman, belonging to the nouveau riche, recently met an acquaintance on the deck of an outgoing steamer, and announced, with great eclat, that she was going abroad to have the dear girls' (her two daughters) portraits painted. "Why not in America?" queried the acquaintance. "Oh, I've tried al. the American artists in vain. Now we're going over to see what the old masters can do."

To the housewife who has not yet become acquainted with the new things of everyday use in the market and who is reasonably satisfied with the old, we would suggest that a trial of Defiance Cold Water Starch be made at once. Not alone because it is guaranteed by the manufacturers to be superior to any other brand, but because each 10c package contains 16 ozs., while all the other kinds contain but 12 ozs. It is safe to say that the lady who once uses Defiance Starch will use no other. Quality and quantity must win.

A story is told of the late Professor Snell, of Amhurst College, which relates how he once asked for a definition of the solar corona from a member of his class in astronomy. The young man, after a good deal of hesitation, and a dread consciousness of impending failure, plunged desperately into the statement that he did know what the corona was but had forgotten. The professor turned to his class with a tragic gesture, "What an incalculable loss to science!" he exclaimed with emotion; "that the only man who ever knew what the sun's corona is has forgotten!"

Mrs. Scott Siddons was once playing Juliet at the London Haymarket Theatre, when an amusing unrehearsed incident occurred in the last act. Paris was duly slain and Juliet lay stretched upon her bier. Just then some of the scenery caught alight somehow, but some of the men from behind soon extinguished it. Juliet, with commendable presence of mind, did not move an eyelid, but the corpse of Paris was nervous. He raised himself to a sitting posture, then got upon his feet and fled from the stage. The danger being removed, his courage returned, and the audience was afforded the pleasing spectacle of a corpse crawling along the stage from the wings to take up the proper position for the final curtain.

In an article of reminiscences, Mary Stuart Boyd says that the late Bret Harte never obtruded his personality. He also had a dread of people regarding him for his work only, not for himself. "Why didn't you tell me it was Bret Harte who sat next to me at dinner last night?" wailed one of society's smartest young matrons, in a note to her hostest, the morning after a large dinner party; "I have always longed to meet him, and I would have been so different had I only known who my neighbor was." "Now why can't a woman realize that this sort of thing is insulting?" queried the author, to whom the hostess had forwarded her friend's letter; "if Mrs. —— talked with me, and found me uninteresting as a man, how could she expect to find me interesting because I was an author?"

GOVERNOR OF OREGON

Uses Pe-ru-na For Colds in His Family and Grip.

CAPITOL BUILDING SALEM, OREGON.

A Letter From the Executive Officer of Oregon.

Pe-ru-na is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Letters of congratulation and commendation testifying to the merits of Pe-ru-na as a catarrh remedy are pouring in from every State in the Union. Dr. Hartman is receiving hundreds of such letters daily. All classes write these letters, from the highest to the lowest.

The outdoor laborer, the indoor artisan, the clerk, the editor, the statesman, the preacher—all agree that Pe-ru-na is the catarrh remedy of the age. The stage and rostrum, recognizing catarrh as their greatest enemy, are especially enthusiastic in their praise and testimony.

Any man who wishes perfect health must be entirely free from catarrh. Catarrh is well-nigh universal; almost omnipresent. Pe-ru-na is the only absolute safeguard known. A cold is the beginning of catarrh. To prevent colds, to cure colds, is to cheat catarrh out of its victims. Pe-ru-na not only cures catarrh, but prevents. Every household should be supplied with this great remedy for coughs, colds and so forth.

The Governor of Oregon is an ardent admirer of Pe-ru-na. He keeps it continually in the house. In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman he says:

STATE OF OREGON,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
SALEM, May 9, 1898.

The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Dear Sirs—I have had occasion to use your Pe-ru-na medicine in my family for colds, and it proved to be an excellent remedy. I have not had occasion to use it for other ailments.

Yours very truly, W. M. Lord.

It will be noticed that the Governor says he has not had occasion to use Pe-ru-na for other ailments. The reason for this is, most other ailments begin with a cold. Using Pe-ru-na to promptly cure colds, he protects his family against other ailments. This is exactly what every other family in the United States should do. Keep Pe-ru-na in the house. Use it for coughs, colds, la grippe, and other climatic affections of winter, and there will be no other ailments in the house. Such families should provide themselves with a copy of Dr. Hartman's free book, entitled "Winter Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

This is the largest business in the world producing Men's Goodyear Welt (Hand Sewed Process) shoes, and has always been immensely profitable. There has not been a year in the past twelve when the business has not earned in actual cash much more than the amount necessary to pay 7 per cent annual on the preferred stock of $1,000,000. Its business now is $5,500,000, it is increasing rapidly, and will equal $7,000,000 for the year 1902. The factory is now turning out 7950 pairs of shoes per day. In addition to the plant is being built which will increase the capacity to 10,000 pairs per day. Therefore I am offering the Preferred Stock for sale to accommodate the business. Any person wishing to invest in the best shoe business in the world which is permanent, and receive 7 per cent on their money, can purchase one share or more in this business. Send money by cashier's check or certified check, made payable to W. L. Douglas. If there is no bank in your town, send money by express or postoffice money orders.
Circulars giving full information about this great shoe business sent upon application. Address
W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.

Why Syrup of Figs is the best family laxative

It is pure.
It is gentle.
It is pleasant.
It is efficacious.
It is not expensive.
It is good for children.
It is excellent for ladies.
It is convenient for business men.
It is perfectly safe under all circumstances.
It is used by millions of families the world over.
It stands highest, as a laxative, with physicians.
If you use it you have the best laxative the world produces.

Because

Its component parts are all wholesome.
It acts gently without unpleasant after-effects.
It is wholly free from objectionable substances.

It contains the laxative principles of plants.
It contains the carminative principles of plants.
It contains wholesome aromatic liquids which are agreeable and refreshing to the taste.

All are pure.
All are delicately blended.
All are skillfully and scientifically compounded.

Its value is due to our method of manufacture and to the originality and simplicity of the combination.

To get its beneficial effects — buy the genuine.

Portable CORN CRIBS

Can be set up in ten minutes when empty can be used for chicken fence or for corn again when needed, or can be sawed into a two-foot hog fence as each section contains six cable wires, thus leaving three cables in each piece of two foot fence. This is just the thing to pen up small pigs to wean or to make a yard to feed small chicks in.

Directions wish each crib on back of tag for setting up and making the door.

A grand thing to set up in the field while husking or to feed out of during the winter. If wanted to store corn in, some pieces of boards or something else should be laid on the ground and the crib set on top. A covering can be made of hay with stringers to hold it on. Will also make a good grain bin if lined with straw or canvas. Tar paper laid on the bottom will keep out mice and rats. The two sectiona are done up in one roll. Nearly all farmers, grain dealers and storage men use them. Crib is 8 feet high 12 feet in diameter, and holds 400 bushel. It is cheap and handy

13 MRS. JOHN JOSTEN.

Mrs. Noltre, of Butler county, who has been visiting relatives here for the past week or so returned to her home on Tuesday.

The opening ball in the new hall over the bank building comes off election night, November 4th. Ainsworth Orchestra.

The family of Section Foreman Blank are somewhat under the weather. We understand that all his children but one are sick.

Typhoid malaria has again gained a foothold in the home of Chas. Krouse. This time it is one of the younger boys that is afflicted.

A baby girl has taken up her residence at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Medans. This important event occurred Monday night.

Mrs. John Baumgaertner returned from her Garner trip on Sunday. John could not stand batching it any longer so drove up after her.

Julius Henschen has purchased the black team which was formerly owned by Frank Robey. It makes him a splendid dray team.

C. E. Gardner is about to launch out in the poultry business. He has secured the services of Harry Smith who will be his head man.

P. L. Kimberly, a student at the Agricultural college at Ames was killed on Saturday night while attempting to alight from a moving freight train

Attorney Hughes, of Garner, transacted business here Thursday. He says that his chances for election to the county attorneyship are very promising.

W. R. Bloom is having his barn moved to the lot just across the alley from where it formerly stood. This will much improve the appearance of his property.

Dr. Briggs V. S., of Garner, was attending to professional business here on Monday. The doctor has had good success in the treatment of dumb brutes in this locality.

Joe and Charlie Nissen were at Garner Wednesday. Charlie went up to have one of his ivories extracted, and Joe went along to hold "Spider" in the chair during the operation.

George Nissen spent Sunday at Clear Lake. George did not fully understand his appointment by the conference which he attended there three weeks ago, and went over to settle his mind on the subject.

Kelly & Tellier have secured the contract of decorating the new bank building. These gentlemen are real artists, and something very fine may be looked forward to without fear of disappointment.

On Wednesday a baby boy took up his abode at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Schaefer. According to Mr. Schaefer, the ordinary scale is not large enough to weigh the youngster so we cannot give his weight.

The ball game out in Ell township which was played last week resulted in a victory for the married men. Frank Kluckhohn umpired the game, and though many say not, yet we insist that his decisions were just.

Rev. Kaste and wife, and their daughters, Martha, Edna, Nettie and Ida, expect to leave shortly for Denver, Colo. They make the change for the benefit of Miss Martha's health, which for some time past has been very poor.

John Hammill, of Britt, candidate for county attorney on the republican ticket, was in town on Tuesday. Mr. Hammill is one of Hancock county's brightest young attorneys and will, if elected, make a splendid official.

J. S. Lemon had seven head of young cattle killed by lightning during Saturday night's storm. The stock was insured in the Hawkeye Insurance company of which G. W. Kluckhohn is local agent, which insures the prompt payment of his claim.

Sam Baake returned to Buffalo Center on Thursday last after having helped in the Northern Lumber company's yards for a month or so. Sam is a genial good fellow, and we very much regret his removal. However, he promises to return to Klemme quite often.

"The Missouri Girl," that comedy-drama that has attracted so much attention throughout the country and concerning which our exchanges are full of flattering comments, will be presented at Garner Opera House, on Monday evening, November 3d. This promises to be even better than "For Her Sake," with which those who attended from here were so well pleased.

The new bank building will be opened by a grand ball on Tuesday evening, October 4th. The Ainsworth orchestra will furnish the music, and a good time is positively guaranteed to all. A large number of lovers of the dance are expected from adjoining towns.

Do you want a location for a home. I have three five and ten acre tracts, and a few lots in the town of Klemme which I will close out at a bargain.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies, and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes. Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. Take it after meals. J. L. Harr.

Railroad Notes.

Homeseekers Before buying a farm or locating elsewhere, ought to see the good farming and dairy lands along and contiguous to the line of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway. The soil is rich and highly productive of grains, and is a good stock country with markets in easy reach.

These lands are going rapidly and another opportunity will be given to all who desire to see them. On the first and third Tuesdays of June, July August, September and October, round trip tickets will be on sale at principal stations to points on this line in Northwestern Iowa, Southern Minnesota and Southwestern portion of South Dakota.

Call on nearest ticket agent for rates, etc., and see that your ticket reads via the C. R. I. & P. Ry.

There will also be on sale at stations of this company on same dates homeseekers excursion tickets at low rates to various other territory.

J. L. HARR. DRUGS

Klemme, Iowa.

The Hallowe'en party at Morton Elder's, on last Friday night was a most enjoyable affair, and despite the inclement weather, a large crowd was in attendance. The party was in favor of Mr. Elder's son, George, and the guests were a unit in proclaiming him a host of unusual ability Very toothsome refreshments were served which ended an evening of enjoyment seldom equalled.

The new bank has been completed and was opened for business on Saturday The building is certainly an ornament to our town, being a two-story brick, and the architecture is certainly fine H. A. Sweigard is cashier which insures to the public that the bank will be conducted along sound banking lines. He says that the prospects for a good business are flattering. Read their advertisement in this issue.

I have for sale in Polk county, Minn., a few quarter sections of raw prairie land, well located and of good quality. that I am offering on very easy terms and at a reasonable price. If you have $400 to $500 to pay down, you can secure a quarter section of this land, and can secure very easy terms on the balance of payments. These lands are sure to advance in value, and offer an inducement to the man seeking land for a farm as well as to the investor.

CHARLES BAILEY
Garner, Iowa.

Election day has come and gone, and as ever, there are the overjoyed and the disappointed. This county went republican of course, and the entire county ticket was elected. Mr. Anderson, the democratic nominee, defeated Mr. Schaper, the republican nominee for supervisor in this district. by 65 votes. The township ticket was divided. Chris Lau, F. Bock, Dan Webner and S. B. Day were elected on the democratic ticket, while Oscar Carlson and George Barthen were elected on the republican ticket. There was no excitement to speak of, everything passed off quietly. Iowa rolled up a good republican majority, as did also most of the other states.

---

The opening ball of the new bank building was pulled off on Tuesday evening A large crowd was in attendance, and everyone enjoyed themselves to the utmost. For this occasion Managers Bloom & Schoper had secured the Ainsworth orchestra which proved to be even better than they had anticipated. No expence was spared by those gentlemen to make this the social event of the season, and how well they succeeded is best judged by the many flattering remarks which one hears concerning the way in which everything passed off. The crowd was orderly and everyone went home feeling that they were indeed fortunate to have been there. The managers promise many such enjoyable occasions this winter.

ALL GERMANY SUFFERING.

Price of Meats Prohibitive to Poor and Serious for Middle Classes.

Berlin, Nov. 1.—Increasing pressure is being brought to bear on the government with the object of opening the frontiers for the importation of foreign animals and a relaxation of the regulations created to exclude meat exports or something which will afford relief from the excessive prices of meat, which have now risen to levels which are prohibitive for the laboring people, and which are seriously affecting the resources of middle class families. The magistracy of Berlin, for instance, in a petition to the government says that if the prices of meat continue as high as they are now, the salaries of the city employes must be raised, because their present salaries were based on times when the cost of food was much less than at present. The petitioners also say that the expenses of the municipal institutions have already increased $750,000 during the current year, which is attributed wholly to the high price of meat.

The best beef retails at 44 cents a pound, and other meats are proportionately higher. The wholesale prices in the German markets are from 15 to 25 per cent higher than in those of neighboring countries, hence the people who advocate government action assert that the scarcity of animals is due to the closed frontiers and the exclusion of many kinds of foreign dressed meats, the German farmers being seemingly unable to raise enough animals for their country's requirements.

Carl Marx, of Frankfort-on-the-Main, chairman of the National Butchers' association, and J. H. Schuchmaker, head master of the Hamburg Butchers' Guild, have had a lengthy conference with Agricultural Minister von Podbielski in an effort to remedy the situation. They pointed out that the butchers, though selling at high prices, are unable to make as much profit as by larger sales and lower prices. The entire trade, therefore, asked for an alleviation of the conditions that limit the consumption of meat. Herr von Podbielski recognized fully that the present situation was intolerable, and he expressed the hope that the German farmers would soon be able to depress prices through an increased supply of animals. Should this not take place, he added, the government would consider the adoption of remedies.

Home Secretary Podadoski, in the reichstag, during the meat debate, affirmed farmers were able to supply the country's needs, and this statement is taken by the Fleischer Zeitung as meaning that the government has already reached the conclusion that no action is necessary.

The liberal and socialist parties are naturally making everything possible out of the situation in preparing for the general election.

PAY STARTS NOVEMBER 1.

The Strike Commission Announces a Preliminary Decision.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 1.—The first important action by the anthracite coal strike commission, which is arbitrating the differences existing between the miners and their employers, was taken yesterday, when it was announced by Carroll D. Wright, the recorder of the commission, that if any award affecting the existing rate of wages shall be made, the award shall be effective from November 1. The mine workers are perfectly satisfied, however, with the decision of the commission. The strike has been off only one week, and most of the men have not worked more than four or five days.

Accompanying the resolution was a brief statement made by Recorder Wright, in which he says:

"The resolution was adopted by the commission because it felt that it was important to make its investigations deliberately, and that it might be well, in order to relieve itself from pressure from any source which might cause undue haste, to inform the operators and the miners that should the investigation and the deliberations following it warrant any change whatever, either in the way of increase or reduction of wages, such change should be from a certain date, thus enabling all parties to facilitate their calculations."

The commissioners spent the entire day in continuing their inspection of the mines and the mining about Scranton. They visited the Manville colliery, operated jointly by the Delaware wanna and Hudson and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western companies in the forenoon, and the afternoon was spent in riding through the region on a special trolley car. The commission will spend today in the vicinity of Wilkesbarre, returning here in the evening.

MINING METHODS STUDIED.

The Arbitration Commissioners Have an Interesting Day.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 31.—The seven commissioners appointed by President Roosevelt to adjust the differences existing between the anthracite mine workers and their employers yesterday made a tour of the extreme upper coal fields and saw every step taken in the production of coal from the time it is blasted from the ground, hundreds of feet below the surface, to the point where it is sent to market ready for the use of the consumer.

The arbitrators had an interesting day and returned to their hotel at 6:30 o'clock last night grimy from coal dust and tired after eight busy hours of observation and investigation. The commissioners displayed the greatest interest in every feature of coal mining and went about their work in a manner that was pleasing to both the mining superintendents and the representatives of the mine workers who accompanied the president's commissioners. The seven arbitrators had to endure many discomforts, make their way through wet places in the mine, almost crawl along some of the gangways in the workings and pass through clouds of coal dust in the breakers.

It would be unfair to say that one commissioner displayed more interest than another, but it can be truly said that Bishop Spalding asked more questions than any of the others. He was usually in the center of a group of commissioners and asked many questions of those who are employed in and about the mines.

Yesterday's tour consisted of an inspection of No. 2 mine of the Hillside Coal and Iron company, operated by the Erie company, and the coal broker of the Delaware and Hudson company. The former is located at Forest City, twenty-one miles north of this city, and the breaker at Carbondale, four miles south of Forest City. On the run up the Lackawanna valley the commissioners viewed with interest the several mining towns situated along the Delaware and Hudson railroad.

PRIMGHAR VISITED BY FIRE

Twelve Business Houses Destroyed at a Loss of $50,000—Town Has No Waterworks—Five Men Injured in a Coal Mine Near Newton.

Primghar, Nov. 2.—The business portion of Primghar was almost completely wiped out by the worst fire in the history of the town at an early hour yesterday morning. Twelve business houses are in ashes as a result of the blaze and the total loss will approximate $50,000, while the insurance is estimated at about half the amount of the loss. The fire started in the postoffice and was caused by the explosion of a kerosene lamp. The postoffice was a frame building and burned like tinder. All of the mail was destroyed and the postmaster states that the mail boxes were well filled.

The town is without fire protection of any kind and the efforts of the citizens were futile to stay the progress of the fire from the very start. The city is built about a square on which the court house is situated, and of all the business houses in town but one dry goods store is left standing, while there are left but two or three other stores of any description. Although the town is the oldest in the county, with the exception of Sheldon, and is a county seat, the town has never built a water works. The question of fire protection has been discussed for some time and it was recently decided to submit the matter to the voters at the election next Tuesday. Besides the damage to the buildings a great many goods were lost, although in most cases attempts were made and were partially successful to remove the stocks to places of safety. It is a great blow to the city, but will probably result in the building of more substantial and better buildings than those destroyed.

Following is a list of the losses, as nearly as can be estimated at this time:

| | |
|---|---|
| Hinz & Spears' brick building, partly burned | $ 400 |
| Postoffice building | 800 |
| W. J. Semmons, general merchandise | 15,000 |
| C. W. Slimp, grocer | 4,000 |
| Pearly Company, drugs | 4,000 |
| Lewis Swanson, restaurant | 3,000 |
| P. Manderville, restaurant | 3,500 |
| Campbell & Powers, meat market | 1,000 |
| J. King, groceries | 5,000 |
| Lange Meat Market | 2,000 |
| C. B. Gray, feed store | 2,000 |
| J. C. McNarey, pool room | 200 |

Other minor losses in the way of damage to stocks by smoke and in transferrings them will bring the loss to the figures given above.

WAS COMMITTEE PACKED?

Miss Deighton Asserts Speaker Eaton Was Unfair.

Des Moines, Oct. 30.—Miss Daisy Deighton of Shenandoah, who had charge of the qual suffrage lobby last winter, in the state convention of equal suffragists here yesterday, ascribed the defeat of the resolution for the submission of the question to Speaker Eaton. She charged that he packed the house committee against suffrage. She declared that Representative Sweet of Bremer couny had told her, during the session, that he had come to Des Moines for the express and avowed intention of making a record against woman suffrage in order to "square" himself with his constituents, and that he proposed doing it. Yet he was made chairman of the house committee on constitutional amendments, in which Miss Deighton declared the suffragists did not have a fair hearing. She referred to the fact that the proposition easily passed the senate and said that it would have gone through the house, also, if the speaker had not packed the committee against it.

Miss Deighton, out of her experience, said that she thought the idea of the president, Mrs. Adelaide Ballard of Hull, that a man be employed to take charge of the work in future legislatures, an excellent one. But she doubted if a man could be found who would be willing to do the work on a salary, and did not believe one could be found who would do it for the love of the thing.

EXPRESS COMPANIES HIT.

Supreme Court Decides Against C. O. D. Liquor Sales.

Des Moines, Oct. 31.—The supreme court yesterday reversed two trial courts in Iowa on the question of C. O. D. liquor sales by express companies, and handed down opinions which will effectually put an end to the liquor traffic through express agents. The case was from Washington county against the United States Express Co., and from Tama county against the American Express Co. In both instances the express companies had liquors which they were handing out to purchasers or others in exchange for C. O. D. payments. Seizures were made and the cases tried in the district court, where the express companies won out. Both cases were appealed and both cases were reversed.

The holding of the court prevents express companies from handling liquor C. O. D. and makes such goods contraband and liable to seizure if found in he possession of the companies.

The opinion is one of the last blows to be dealt by the supreme court of Iowa at the liquor traffic, and will have the effect of closing up many of the alleged express office booze joints.

FIVE MINERS HURT.

Two May Die as Result of Accident Near Newton.

Newton, Nov. 3.—Five miners were badly injured and two will probably die as the result of falling down a fifty-foot mining shaft at the Frinck coal bank, two miles south of Newton. The miners were being pulled to the top and the cage was just up when the wire rope of the cable broke. The cable was new and had just been put on. The injured are:

Hugh Smith, head crushed in; will live.

Eugene Welsh, coal pick ran into breast; may die.

John Welsh, internally injured.

Andrew Fleming, bruised.

Child Is Killed.

Clemons, Nov. 3.—The 4-year-old son of William White, a farmer, living about two miles from town, was killed. He was hanging to the side of a wagon, when he fell off and the wheels passed over him. Before a surgeon arrived the child was dead.

SHORT COURSE FOR FARMERS.

State College at Ames Has a Novel Scheme.

Ames, Oct. 30.—Iowa State college department of agronomy, has conceived a novel idea. It will hold a short course school for corn and live stock judging at the college near this place January 5 to 17, to which the farmers of Iowa are cordially invited to attend.

Following is a portion of the announcement:

"Bring samples of your corn and other farm seeds. They will prove of interest to your fellow farmers and will be of the greatest value to the students and instructors in the school.

"The best samples of all the leading varieties of corn from the greatest breeders of this and other states will be on exhibition, and will be used in the corn judging classes.

"This immense collection of choice corn will afford an unusual opportunity to compare the different varieties and study their characteristics.

"The best known and most successful live stock breeders and corn growers of Iowa will attend this corn school. You will have an opportunity to meet these men and confer with them on live farm topics.

"Regular classes in corn judging will be held every day. All who desire to do so may enter these classes and make a systematic study of corn with the revised score card.

"Those wishing to become expert corn judges, qualified to judge corn at county fairs and expositions, will have an opportunity at this corn school to prepare themselves for the work. An examination will be held at the close of the school and corn judging certificates will be issued to those who prove themselves proficient.

"Do not fail to bring ten ears of your best corn and come prepared to stay the entire two weeks.

"Important and interesting points regarding the selecting, storing and breeding of seed corn will be presented by prominent seed corn breeders of Iowa and by others.

"In order to encourage the improvement of corn, friends of the agricultural college have offered liberal premiums which will be awarded to those who stand highest in the corn judging examinations which will be held at the close of the corn judging school.

"Premiums will be awarded for the best ten ears of yellow corn, and also for the best ten ears of white corn exhibited by those in attendance at the short course in corn judging."

PETERSON MURDER CASE.

Grand Jury Decides Evidence is Insufficient for Indictment.

Des Moines, Oct. 31.—The grand jury has completed its investigation of the Peterson murder case and no indictment will be returned. The county authorities were in hopes that additional information would be secured making more or less of a case than that which was worked up at the preliminary hearing of Tom Lewis before Justice Aylesworth, but no information of value was secured. John Peterson, his wife and daughter, and members of the local constabulary, including Detectives Eli Hardin and Night Captain Al Miller, testified before the grand jury and the entire story of the murder was gone over, but the mystery is still as dark as ever.

It developed during the hearing that the grand jury began its work at the instigation of John Peterson, the father of the murdered children. He testified that he had been so bothered by the repeated visits and inquiries of alleged detectives and Hawkshaws that he wanted the matter sifted and settled once and for all, so that he brought what evidence there was before the grand jury. But the evidence was not sufficient to warrant an indictment and none will be returned.

The grand jury will commence an investigation of the Mabel Scofield mystery next Wednesday, the day after election, and will give every person who knows anything concerning the case an opportunity to testify. The summons is general. What the jury wants is evidence, and every person will be heard if the testimony is at all material. The grand jury hopes to make a report on the Scofield case before it adjourns on December 24.

Shafer Stole $50 With Which to Marry.

Eldora, Nov. 3.—Edward Shafer, the young man who was indicted by the grand jury for grand larceny, was arraigned before Judge Whitaker, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to the penitentiary for one year. Young Shafer stole a $50 bill from the clothing of his employer, a farmer living near Iova Falls, last September. The young man gave as an excuse for taking the money that he wanted it to get married with. The young man's mother and young wife were present to hear the sentence pronounced. It was a hard blow to a widowed mother.

Suicide of Mrs. Scott Norris.

Clarinda, Nov. 3.—Mrs. Scott Norris, living about two miles west of Clarinda, committed suicide by swallowing carbolic acid. She had not been strong since the birth of her youngest child some three months ago, and for several days past her mind has been affected, but she was not thought to be in danger of losing her mind. She leaves a husband and four boys, the oldest about 6 years old.

Shot By Playmates.

Ottumwa, Nov. 3.—While hunting near here, Arthur McCune, 10 years old, shot and probably fatally wounded his playmate, Clare Baker, son of S. D. Baker, a local capitalist. The shooting was accidental. When McCune realized what he had done, he tried to kill himself, but was restrained by a third boy. The boys then hailed a switch engine and took their wounded companion home.

Killed By a Piledriver.

Indianola, Nov. 3.—Fred Smith, of the Warren county bridge gang, was killed at Summerset by a piledriver. He was a resident of Des Moines and engaged by Nate Stark, contractor for Warren county bridges. He was at work on the bridge where Christ Troub lost his life about a year ago.

New Trial Is Denied.

Clarinda, Nov. 3.—The motion for a new trial in the Lucas county murder case was overruled by Judge O. D. Wheeler, after which sentence was pronounced on the young man for life imprisonment at Ft. Madison at hard labor.

Many Cases of Smallpox.

Dunlap, Nov. 3.—At present there are about twenty families quarantined within the city limits for smallpox. All of the cases so far have been very mild, except three, and they are doing finely now.

Whole Train in Ditch.

Ottumwa, Oct. 31.—An engine and eight cars are in a ditch near Bunch, Davis couny, on the Rock Island railroad. The accident was caused by the spreading of the rails.

Big Burglary at Earlham.

Earlham, Oct. 31.—The store of Frey & Packard was burgalarized and clothing, boots and shoes to the value of nearly $500 were carted out of town without leaving a clew.

CHAPTER X.—(Continued.)

"Course ye might hang him up by the neck until he was dead an' he wouldn't tell. What would a man care for bein' killed himself? It's when you begin an attack on his flesh an' blood he trembles."

"Well, d'ye reckon that's certain?" asked Padgett, rubbing his bullet head to get the idea through.

"Know it."

"Why didn't we light on that afore?"

"Because the youngster goes under a nickname. He's Crack-lash here an' Paul Miller in Fresno. That's the whole long and short o' it."

"Well, sail in on the capen an' see what ye kin do with him," growled Ned seating himself on a stone and twirling his stick in his hand. "I leave it all t' you; take it an' see how ye'll come out."

Then followed another long consultation among the other three.

It was not until late that night they proceeded to carry out their plan. The old hermit whom they called the captain was taken apart from his fellow prisoner and seated on a stone. Ben Allen then proceeded to interrogate him.

"You are Captain Joseph Miller of the schooner 'Eleanor,' ain't ye?" he asked.

"Those two rogues told you that. They know it, and it's no use to deny it."

"You left a wife at home—a wife and child?"

"Yes."

"Your wife was named Mollie and your boy baby's name Paul?"

"I don't admit or deny."

"After you sailed away so many years your wife gave you up for dead, and with her child removed to Fresno, where she lives now. She never told her son the sad, uncertain fate of his father, fearing when he grew up he would start in search of him, and she always had a superstitious dread o' the forests o' Alaska."

The sea captain sat unmoved throughout the narrative. Ben went on:

"But when Paul Miller grew to be a man he heard of the fabulous riches in Alaska and came to find it. He had amassed quite a fortune, when he was robbed, followed the robbers to the woods and was captured by them. Now, the young man yonder is Paul Miller, your son."

The stern old captain was unmoved save a slight twitching at the corners of his mouth, but he made no answer. Ben continued:

"Though you may have lost the walrus hide on which the map to the buried treasure is, yet you know the spot, and can take us there. You shall do it or I swear that your son shall die before your face."

Again Ben Allen was disappointed. The old man was wholly unmoved, as if he had been talking to stone. The captors waited about him with half-suppressed breathing, hoping that something would occur to break his imperturbability, but they were disappointed.

The threat of Morris had only been to intimidate the prisoner. He was willing to make any sort of threats, but not being the hardened criminal Ned Padgett was he called a halt at the line of murder.

"Boys," continued Morris, "I haven't given up all hope yet. We may be able to do somethin' with him. Let's keep up the scare."

"Agreed."

"We can even get a rope and go through pretense o' hangin' the youngster."

"That's it; go through anything to make the old rascal tell us where it is."

With this resolution more firmly fixed in their minds they once more returned to where the old captain sat as unmoved as when they left him.

"Well, Captain Miller, have you decided to tell us where you cached the treasure?" asked Ben Allen.

"No," was the immediate answer.

"Do you want to see your son hang before your eyes?"

"I have no son."

"Don't you know that young man is your son?"

The prisoner fixed his great blue orbs on the speaker and in a firm, unmoved tone answered:

"He is not my son. I may have a son living. I once did, but he is not my son. I like the young man, for he is noble, brave and honest, but he is no relation to me."

They were wholly unprepared for this answer. The sincerity with which it was given took everyone aback and for several moments they stood aghast and silent. The ex-sea captain, after a brief silence, continued:

"Even if I had the walrus hide I would not give it to you. Even if I could now go and unearth that buried treasure I would not do it."

"Why?"

"For two reasons. First, I will not compromise with crime. Second, even if I did decide to do so and turn over the treasure to you it would be the signal for our own destruction. You would never dare let us go after what you have done."

Bob Allen and Morris and the sailors were abashed. They fell back before the piercing glance of the officer against whom they had mutined.

The baffled rascals swore like troopers, and Ned Padgett made an appeal for his knotted stick, but was overruled, and after some more deliberation it was decided to try the effect of the rope on the young prisoner.

"I tell you he is the son of the old man; watch him closely when we go to hang him up and see if his eye does not grow moist."

They had a rope made of seal hide, and, cutting a pole with their hand axes, stretched it across the narrow end of the cavern and placed a rope about Paul's neck.

"Now old man, confess that you have lied, and swear that you will take us to the gold, or this young fellow will die." Paul, who had not heard the conversation between the hermit and his captors, was unable to explain their conduct to his own satisfaction. He believed his last hour had come and determined to meet his fate like a hero. When told to prepare for death, he rose, made no resistance, and his arms were tied behind his back. The noose was adjusted about his neck, and he took his position under the cross-bar, and, closing his eyes, murmured a short prayer.

All eyes were on the other captive, but he sat with face averted and said not a word. There was no change in his expression—no more indication of grief than might have been expected at the death of a stranger. When the miserable farce was over Paul had been released, and the four rascals retired again to confer with each each other. Tom Ambrose said:

"Well, it's my opinion that we've lost our last chance of ever getting his buried millions."

At this Padgett again proposed his knotted stick and swore he would brain both with it, but he was prevented by Morris and Allen, who declared there should be no real violence. The two prisoners were given a meagre supper of dried beef and a little meal gruel, and driven to the far end of the cavern for the night.

When they were apart from the guard Paul asked:

"What was meant by their extraordinary course to-day?"

"They labor under the mistaken idea that we are related and both have some knowledge of the buried treasure. As they are mistaken they will succeed in getting nothing from us."

'I have been mystified at their strange conduct all along," said Paul, "and I would not be surprised at any time at their taking our lives."

His companion shook his grizzled head and answered:

"No, no; they won't harm us so long as we have the secret in our own breasts. If we should tell them and they should find the treasure, then we would be killed in short order."

Paul shuddered, was silent for a while and asked:

"Then you don't believe we have any hope of mercy at their hands?" The sea captain answered:

"No."

"Captain, let's make our escape."

"Sh! Speak lower; you may be heard."

"I will, but I am in earnest."

'So am I, but we must be cunning as the fox to escape from those rascals."

"I am willing to trust you implicitly."

"Then say nothing."

Though night and day were the same in that dungeon, the captors had their sleeping and waking hours. Paul and his companion threw themselves on their miserable pallet of straw, but not to sleep. They lay so they could watch their captors.

At last, one after another, they began to grow drowsy. One rose and went toward the pile of straw, and stretching himself upon it, was soon snoring. A short quarrel followed on the subject of guarding the prisoners. Padgett was the man selected and he swore he had done more than his share at that business and he wouldn't do any more of it, but Morris, who seemed the person in command, declared he must take his turn of two hours, and left him on duty while the others went to bed.

The whole matter could not have been better planned for Paul, for Padgett was careless and yawned sleepily before his companions had closed their eyes. For a long time he made a fight against the wiles of Morpheus, but at last his head dropped forward on his chest.

Paul raised his own head and shoulders from his pallet of straw and surveyed the entire cavern at a sweeping glance. There was a fire burning in the center which threw out a dull, ruddy glow, dimly lighting the scene. Where the fire had been built the cavern was wide, and from the lofty ceiling ages ago great fragments of stone had been torn loose and lay in a heap on the floor, a little to one side of the fire, leaving a dark path in the shadow. Paul could also see that their captors had placed their rifles in a corner farthest from them. The three men sleeping on the straw were between the prisoners and the rifles, which were on the right of the sleeping sentry. All the advantages and disadvantages of the position were taken into consideration at a glance. Paul's companion arose and gave their surroundings a quick survey, and then they exchanged glances. The look was sufficient. They understood each other as well as if they had spoken volumes. Paul was to look after the guard and the captain to seize the rifles. The young man nodded assent to the request expressed by the captain's eyes, and began to act. They rolled up the blankets and left them on the straw, with their caps stuck over them, giving them, in the uncertain light, the appearance of two sleeping men. Paul went first on hands and knees, creeping around the little mound of stone and earth and over the loose stones with all the caution possible. He was closely followed by the hermit, who seemed to possess the wonderful faculty of moving without noise.

The sentry stirred in his sleep when Paul was within ten or fifteen paces of him. The determined youth seized a stone and leaped toward him. Ned Padgett suddenly started up with a yell and had half raised his rifle, when the stone, hurled with great precision and force, struck him on the shoulder. Down he went under the blow, dropping the rifle at Paul's feet.

To seize the gun and turn at bay on the others was the work of an instant. They were starting up from their sleep and Ben Allen shouted:

"The prisoners! They are making their escape!"

CHAPTER XI.

The Dog Courier.

Paul Miller drew his rifle to his shoulder and let drive two or three shots in quick succession, sending their late captors flying helter skelter to the rear of the cavern. Whether any of them were wounded by his bullets or not he did not stop to learn. He then seized the rifles, blankets and caps and the two men hastened away from the cavern, taking the precaution to secure not only the rifles, but three pistols and all the belts of cartridges they could find. Both of them had filled their capacious pockets with dried moose meat until they stuck out like stuffed turkeys.

They broke two of the rifles because they could not carry them and strapped the others on their backs. Long they traveled in a western direction, guided by the stars. They had given up all hope of finding their Metlakahlan friends, who no doubt supposing them lost, had returned to their home on the island. After wandering three or four hours into the forest and being completely exhausted, the two fugitives rolled themselves in their blankets and slept. They dared not build a fire, for it might attract the attention of their pursuers.

When day dawned they made a breakfast on some of the dried moose they had brought with them and prepared to resume their journey. They discovered that they were gradually ascending a mountain side. On all sides of them were forests of scraggy spruce, the trees seldom being over five or six inches in diameter, and ferns and other forms of plant life were occasionally noted.

At last they came to a great cleft between gigantic snow-robed mountains.

The first night after they began their ascent they camped on the mountain side near a spring and spread their blankets under the lee of a large bowlder.

Hope had been revived in the breast of Paul Miller, but his companion, who had been deceived and cheated so often by outrageous fortune, evinced little or none of his spirits.

"We are a long way from civilization yet," he said to one of Paul's remarks about their being safe. "So often, my friend, have I had my hopes raised only to be blighted that I allow myself to believe nothing good can come to me. A terrible fate seems to have taken possession of my being—I seem doomed." The old gray head was bent on his hands, and he was silent, while darkness came over the scene.

The next day's travel over this unknown region was but a repetition of the experiences of the day before. Higher they climbed, up, up and up, approaching on the mountain side the line of eternal snow. A few hundred yards more of climbing brought them to the summit of the divide, where there was a pile of stones which seemed to have been placed there by human hands. No life of any kind was visible, unless that white speck on the distant ledge be a dog or a goat.

BIBLICAL TALE OF POWER.

"Jezebel," by Miss Lafayette McLaws, Has Won Favor.

Miss Lafayette McLaw's "When the Land Was Young" instantly sprang into popular favor, and for a first book was a pronounced success. The promise in her first book has been more than realized in "Jezebel," a work of singular power and insight. It is a Biblical tale of the days when Omri and Ahab were kings of Israel and Elijah was a prophet of Jehovah. Ahab, the Israelite, takes to wife Jezebel, the worshiper of Baal. When Ahab comes to the throne and Jezebel sets up the worship of Baal, the prophets and believers of Israel are incensed against the queen, and Jezebel begins a fierce persecution of her enemies. This contest is the chief motive of the story.

Miss McLaws has endeavored to throw new light upon the character of Jezebel, and, while she does not depart from the Biblical account, she surely presents this strong-willed, beautiful queen in a somewhat novel and striking manner. We get glimpses of Jezebel the woman as well as Jezebel the queen, and it is as a woman with warm passions and jealous instincts that Jezebel is most and best portrayed.

The book is replete with dramatic situations, the action is rapid and stirring, and the denoument is original and startling. Altogether it is one of the books of the day and a distinct contribution to the novel-literature of Biblical days.

Parisian Trees.

Paris is said to lead the world in the culture of city trees. The success of the French capital is due not so much to an admirable soil climate as to a well-organized system of caring for the trees.

In large nurseries young trees are grown and prepared for the Parisian streets. The culture of the soil is elaborate. From the very beginning the trees are pruned and staked to compel a straight growth. By frequent transplanting the roots become so hardened that they are enabled to withstand injury due to transportation. When a tree is sufficiently large, it is set out in the streets with the same care that was lavished upon it in the nursery. Often the cost of planting a single tree is $50. Whenever a storm destroys the city trees the nursery can be immediately drawn upon for another supply.

Thoughtful.

Young Wife—"There is a gentleman in the library, dear, who wants to see you."

Young Husband—"Do you know who it is?"

Young Wife—"You must forgive me, dear, but that cough of yours has worried me so of late, and you take such poor care of your health, and—and, oh, if I were to lose you my darling!"

Bursts into tears.

Young Husband—"There, there, dear! Your fondness for me has inspired foolish and unnecessary fears. I'm all right; you mustn't be alarmed. But I'll see the physician, of course, just to satisfy you. Is it Dr. Pellet?"

Young Wife—"N-o, it is not a doctor; it's a—a life insurance agent."

Case No. 34,520.—Mr. Walter McLaughlin of 3022 Jacob street, Wheeling, W. Va., a machine hand working at J. A. Holiday & Son's planing mill, says: "I firmly believe had I not used Doan's Kidney Pills when I did I would not be alive now. I was in a terrible condition, and although I took quarts of medicine and was attended by doctors, I got no better, but worse. Friends spoke of my bad appearance, and thousands knew about it. I could hardly get around and felt and looked like a dead man rather than a living one. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the Logan Drug Co.'s store, were a blessing to me; half a box relieved me; three boxes entirely cured me."

Stock Yards Combine Will Follow Consummation of Beef Combine.

DETAILS OF THE PLANS GIVEN

Packers Already Control All of the Yards Except Those of Chicago—Announcement Waits Only for a Favorable Condition of the Money Market.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Consolidation of all the stock yards in the country under one management is contemplated by the leading interests in those properties and the plan will be carried out after the completion of the deal to merge the beef packing industries.

It is announced by the leading interests that the joining of the Armour, Swift, Morris and other beef packing concerns will be completed by the end of the year or early in 1903. The underwriting agreements are said to have been signed already with the idea of announcing the combination as soon as the money market is strong enough to float the stock.

There are widely different reports as to the amount of stock the combination will have, the figures on the total running from $300,000,000 to $500,000,000. It is said that preferred stock will represent the book value of the various properties and the common the good will and other intangible assets.

The consolidation will include the Armour, Swift and Morris and other properties in Chicago, the Hammond and Anglo-American, Omaha and other packing properties they have purchased to put into the deal, and the Cudahy and Schwartzchild & Sulzberger companies. It is further stated that Gustavus F. Swift will be president and J. Ogden Armour probably chairman of the board of directors.

The consolidation of the various stock yards companies could be effected with comparative ease after the consolidation of the beef packing interests. With the exception of the Chicago stock yards, which are controlled in Boston, all the properies involved are owned and controlled by the owners of the principal beef packing plants.

The different yards that will be included in the deal, aside from the Chicago yards, are those at Kansas City, East St. Louis, St. Joseph, Mo.; Fort Worth, Tex.; South Omaha, Neb., and Sioux City, Iowa. The Armour interest is the largest in the Kansas City yards.

While the control of the Chicago yards is held in Boston, the Chicago packers have large holdings of the stock also, and their recommendations would undoubtedly have great weight with the eastern crowd. With these yards consolidated and the packing industry all under one head, the packers could practically control the beef market from start to finish.

The plan for sonsolidating the various stock yards has not progressed as yet to a point where the amount of stock required has been more than discussed. It would undoubtedly run close up to $100,000,000.

LADRONES AGAIN ACTIVE.

Behead Presidente of a Town Because He Favored Americans.

Manila, Nov. 3.—A portion of a gang of ladrones has been operating on the island of Biliran, just north of the island of Leyte, where they committed various outrages, went to the island of Leyte last Wednesday, and entered a small town near Caragara. Here they captured and beheaded the presidente of the town, murdered his wife, whom thy slashed with bolos, and abducted the presidente's children. The motive of this crime is said to have been the presidente's friendliness with the Americans.

Ladrones are again active in the province of Rizal and Bulcan, Luzon. Members of the native constabulary engaged these bandits twice during the past two weeks at points close to Manila and succeeded in killing a number of them. The constabulary are capable of suppressing these ladrones.

Reports received here indicate that the situation on the island of Samar is better than has been recently represented.

A number of Dios Dios or religious fanatics are still operating there, but the official report states that the Samar police are able to handle the situation.

ARBITRATION WILL BE USED.

Agreement Reached Betwen French Coal Companies and Strikers.

Lille, France, Nov. 3.—A meeting was held here yesterday between delegates of the coal companies and striking coal miners in the department Du Nord. Failing to come to an agreement, it was decided to refer the question of an increase in the miners' wages to arbitration. The representatives of the companies said their principals were prepared to make pension proposals similar to those advanced in the Pas de Calais district, but, the miners having persisted in the demand for arbitration, the companies reserved their pension proposals until after the decision of the arbitraors is made known.

The proposals from the Pas de Calais companies, referred to in the above dispatch, were to establish a system of pensions by which a miner aged 55, having served the same company thirty years, would get a pension of $120, and a miner having worked with different companies in the Pas de Calais district for thirty years, a pension of $110.

REBELS ACTIVE.

Frequently Seen on the Isthmus and Near Railroad.

Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 3.—The British steamer Trent arrived here from Colon, Colombia. She brings reports that the Colombian rebels were still to be seen in the vicinity of the Isthmus, and that they occasionally appeared in the towns along the railroad line.

Considerable indignation was felt by the Colombians at the time of sailing because American guards were still maintained on the line.

Officials of the Colombian government claim that what they term the interference of the Americans prevents them from dealing effectually with the rebels, who occupy certain towns where they collect taxes and make seizurers of property.

The revolutionists, in their turn, claim that the presence of the Americans prevents them from bringing about a final coup in the revolution.

There is much suffering on the Isthmus and the position of civilians is becoming intolerable.

ROOSEVELT ON THANKSGIVING.

He Fixes Thursday, November 27, as the Day.

Washington, Oct. 30.—President Roosevelt today issued his proclamation designating Thursday, November 27, as a day of thanksgiving.

The proclamation is as follows:

"According to the yearly custom of our people, it falls upon the president at this season to appoint a day of festivities and thanksgiving to God. Over a century and a quarter has passed since this country took its place among the nations of the earth and during that time we have had on the whole, more to be thankful for than has fallen to the lot of any other people. Generation after generation has grown to manhood and passed away. Each has had to bear its peculiar burdens, each to face its special crisis, and each has known years of grim trial, when the country was menaced by malice, domestic or foreign difficulties, when the hand of the Lord was heavy upon it in drouth or flood, or pestilence, when in bodily distress and anguish of soul it paid the penalty of folly and a forward heart. Nevertheless, decade by decade we have struggled onward and upward; we now abundantly enjoy material well being, have the favor of the Most High, and we are striving earnestly to achieve moral and spiritual uplifting. The year that has just closed has been one of peace and of overflowing plenty. Rarely has any people enjoyed greater prosperity than we are now enjoying. For this we render heartfelt and solemn thanks to the Giver of good, and we seek to praise Him, not by words only, but by deeds, by the way in which we do our duty to our fellowmen.

"Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, do hereby designate as a day of general thanksgiving, Thursday, the twenty-seventh of the coming November, and do recommend that throughout the land the people cease from the ordinary occupations, and in their several homes and places of worship render unto Almighty God thanks for the manifold blessings of the past year.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington this twenty-ninth day of October, in the year of Our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and two, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-seventh. (seal.) (signature.) Theodore Roosevelt. By the president, (signed) John Hay, secretary of state."

BOTHA ON BRITISH CRITICISM.

Declares Appeal For Aid Has Been Misconstrued.

New York, Oct. 31.—Gen. Botha of the Boer commission, now in Europe trying to raise funds for the redemption of the ruined farming districts of South Africa, has cabled to the World at length on the results of the general mission up to date. The article says in part:

"Our words have been misconstrued. Our actions have been assigned wrong motives and our very motives have been misstated and condemned.

"The British people have no reason to doubt our sincerity. We called on our people to come in and lay down their arms. How many million pounds were saved to the British nation by that surrender it is needless now to reckon up. Having accepted the terms Lord Kitchener was authorized to offer us we never sought to have them modified. What we sought for was not a modification of the terms of the peace treaty, but the immediate help of which our people are in sore need.

"Having come to plead a cause which should speak eloquently enough for itself, we are sorely disappointed by the result. At least, we have had every reason to consided that we have failed on our errand.

"It is assumed that we did not take kindly to a loan. That supposition was gratuitous. As to the shape in which material help should be given us we had neither the right nor the will to pick and choose. But, having seen no prospect of receiving such help we appealed in our general need to all the nations of the world.

"That course has been sharply criticized. So far as we can see all our appeal to foreigners implied was that our people were in sore need of instant relief and that we were willing to undergo the humiliation of pleading for it.

"Memories of help withheld despite the pressing need and urgent appeal for justice or generosity are certain to live long, die hard and inflict damage out of all proportion to their seeming importance."

GIVE WEEK TO PREPARATION.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 3.—The arbitration commission decided Saturday while on their tour of the Wyoming valley, to adjourn tomorrow until Friday, November 14, when the taking of testimony will begin in this city. The first four days of next week will be taken up in inspecting the mines and mining towns from Hazelton south to the end of the hard soal fields. All of this territory is in districts No. 7 and No. 9. The object in taking a recess of one week is for the purpose of giving both sides sufficient time to prepare their cases, and also to give the members of the commission an opportunity to examine the issues. The comissioners feel that the questions involved are so important that any haste may work an injury to either side of the controversy. When the hearings are begun week after next, it is the intention to have the miners, who are considered the plaintiffs, submit their case first. How long it will take to hear all the testimony cannot be estimated by the commisioners. The sixty-seven individual operators will also be given an opportunity to be heard as well as all the larger coal companies.

The miners will take up considerable time in presenting their side of the case.

MARKLE'S MEN ON A STRIKE.

Refuse to go to Work Unless Order of Markles' is Withdranwn.

Hazelton, Pa., Oct. 31.—The strike at the seven collieries of Coxe Bros. & Co., the four mines of G. B. Markle & Co. and the Silver Brook operation of J. S. Wentz & Co. was officially renewed yesterday through an order issued by District Secretary Gallagher of the United Mine Workers upon instructions from President Mitchell. The strikers at those mines were not permitted to return to work in a body, the Coxes insisting that their employes make personal application for their former positions and G. B. Markle & Co. requiring that each man before going back to work promise to abide by the decision of the arbitration commission. The mine workers allege that the object of these requirements is discrimination agr nst men who were prominent in the strike. A. Pardee & Co.'s collieries, where the men have been asked not to interfere with non-union hands, are not included in the strike orders. The men voted not to resume work until the agreement is withdrawn.

THOUGHT HE WAS HONEST

Unkind Comment Made on Unfortunate Lawyer's Story.

A young lawyer who had only hung out his shingle some months before came into the office of a friend, who had already made some money and quite a reputation at the bar. As the elder lawyer saw the visitor enter he said inquiringly:

"Well, how are you getting along? You look sort of seedy. You don't want to get that way. No matter how much you get behind in your accounts, always put up a good bluff and dress well. A lawyer who looks seedy shows by his looks that he can't be doing much business, and so a stranger don't have any confidence in him."

"Glad you give me some frank advice," said the young barrister. "That's the reason I came around to see you. And now that you have spoken about my looking seedy, I want to tell you an experience I had this morning. I was buying some bananas here in Park Row, and standing alongside of the pushcart pedler, when a well-dressed man came up to me, and holding out a dime said:

"'Here, give me a half dozen bananas quick.'

"Now, what do you think of that?"

"Why," said the prosperous member of the bar, "he thought you were earning an honest living. That's all."

RARE JOY FOR A FIEND.

Mean Man Causes Mix-Up of Two Messenger Boys.

A small messenger boy ran down Fifth avenue this morning, caroling a blithesome tune, his small heart at peace with all the world. Some thirty feet behind him sped a second boy, likewise at peace with all creation, and whistling as he trotted on. Upon the sidewalk stood a heartless man, nibbling a large apple, and apparently the last person in the world to pay any attention to the doings of a messenger. The boys passed him, and, with a malevolent grin, he raised his hand. The half-eaten apple whizzed through the air, passed over the head of the rearward boy, and smote the leading lad full in the neck, and distributing its core, pulp and seeds over his shoulders and inside his collar.

With a yell of surprise and rage the insulted youth whirled around, and the second boy ran into him. The apple-battered one let go a fierce right jolt upon the innocent lad's visage, and then they closed. For five minutes they battered each other all over the sidewalk, while two telegrams fluttered in the trampled mud, and the heartless man, holding his ribs to prevent absolute demolition, howled with glee.—New York Exchange.

Ought to Be Satisfied.

"I never have any doubt about Henry's affection for me," the young bride said to her father, on the occasion of the first visit after her marriage, "but I sometimes wish he were a little more demonstrative."

"Does he ever make any objection," asked the old gentleman, "to your keeping this sore eyed poodle in the house all the time?"

"No."

"What other demonstration do you want?"

A Wonderful Pill.

Freedom, Mo., Nov. 3d.—A splendid remedy has recently been introduced in this neighborhood. It is called Dodd's Kidney Pills and it has cured Rheumatism right and left. On every hand may be heard stories of the remarkable recoveries and from what has been stated already there seems to be no case of rheumatism that Dodd's Kidney Pills will not cure.

One of those who has already tested the virtue of Dodd's Kidney Pills is Katie Anderson of this place, who says:

"I can't say enough for Dodd's Kidney Pills. They have helped me so much. I suffered very severely with rheumatism. Five boxes cured me completely. They are certainly the most wonderful medicine I have ever used."

Osage county abounds in just such cases and if the good work keeps on there will soon be no rheumatism left in this part of the state.

During the past twelve months 63,950 unjust weights and measures were seized in London.

PE-RU-NA CURES CATARRH OF KIDNEYS EVERY TIME.

DANGEROUS KIDNEY DISEASES CURED

Pe-ru-na Creating a National Sensation in the Cure of Chronic Ailments of the Kidneys.

Major T. H. Mars, of the First Wisconsin Cavalry regiment, writes from 1425 Dunning street, Chicago, Ill., the following letter:

"For years I suffered with catarrh of the kidneys contracted in the army. Medicine did not help me any until a comrade who had been helped by Peruna advised me to try it. I bought some at once, and soon found blessed relief. I kept taking it four months, and am now well and strong and feel better than I have done for the past twenty years, thanks to Peruna."—T. H. Mars.

Mr. John Vance, of Hartford City, Ind., says: "My kidney trouble is much better. I have improved so much that everybody wants to know what medicine I am using. I recommend Peruna to everybody and some have commenced to use it. The folks all say that if Dr. Hartman's medicine cures me it must be great."—John Vance.

Mr. J. Brake, of Petrolea, Ontario, Canada, writes: "Four years ago I had a severe attack of Bright's disease, which brought me so low the doctor said nothing more could be done for me. I began to take Peruna and Manalin, and in three months I was a well man and have continued so ever since."—J. Brake.

At the appearance of the first symptom of kidney trouble, Peruna should be taken. This remedy strikes at once the very root of the disease. It at once relieves the catarrhal kidneys of the stagnant blood, preventing the escape of serum from the blood. Peruna stimulates the kidneys to excrete from the blood the accumulating poison, and thus prevents the convulsions which are sure to follow if the poisons are allowed to remain. It gives great vigor to the heart's action and digestive system, both of which are apt to fail rapidly in this disease.

Peruna cures catarrh of the kidneys simply because it cures catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

Constipation Will Undermine Your Health.

Mull's Grape Tonic Cures Constipation.

When the sewer of a city becomes stopped up, the refuse backs into the streets where it decays and rots, spreading disease-creating germs throughout the entire city. An epidemic of sickness follows. It is the same way when the bowels fail to work. The undigested food backs into the system and there it rots and decays. From this festering mass the blood saps up all the disease germs, and at every heart beat carries them to every tissue, just as the water works of a city forces impure water into every house. The only way to cure a condition like this is to cure the constipation. Pills and the ordinary cathartics will do no good.

MULL'S GRAPE TONIC
Is a crushed fruit tonic-laxative which permanently cures the affliction. The tonic properties contained in the grape go into every afflicted tissue and creates strength and health. It will quickly restore lost flesh and make rich, red blood. As a laxative its action is immediate and positive, gentle and natural. Mull's Grape Tonic is guaranteed or money back.

Portable CORN CRIBS

Can be set up in ten minutes when empty can be used for chicken fence or for corn again when needed, or can be sawed into a two-foot hog fence as each section contains six cable wires, thus leaving three cables in each piece of two foot fence. This is just the thing to pen up small pigs to wean or to make a yard to feed small chicks in.

Directions wish each crib on back of tag for setting up and making the door.

A grand thing to set up in the field while husking or to feed out of during the winter. If wanted to store corn in, some pieces of boards or something else should be laid on the ground and the crib set on top. A covering can be made of hay with stringers to hold it on. Will also make a good grain bin if lined with straw or canvas. Tar paper laid on the bottom will keep out mice and rats. The two sections are done up in one roll. Nearly all farmers, grain dealers and storage men use them. Crib is 8 feet high 12 feet in diameter, and holds 400 bushel. It is cheap and handy

H. J. KLEMME,
12-4 Belmond, Iowa.

The play "The Missouri Girl" attracted a large number of our young people to Garner on Monday night. All were well pleased with the performance. Manager DeGraff, of the Garner opera house is getting the best on the road this season.

F. C. Bush, of Garner, was in town on Monday. He was circulating among the voters of this locality, and that he made a favorable impression is evidenced by the election returns. Fred is eminently qualified for the office to which he has been elected.

Supervisor Day was over near Ventura on Monday, looking after some road work which is being done there. Mr. Day is a consistent worker for good roads and as a result the highways of this district are in much better condition than they were when he entered upon the duties of his office. Mr. Day has faithfully served his constituents, and had he have been a candidate for re-election their appreciation of this service would have been demonstrated by an overwhelming majority for him at the polls. He has certainly laid a foundation which if built upon by his successor will give to this district first-class roads which are very essential to the business interests of any community.

Mr. Bischel Weds.

One day last week H. W. Bischel departed for Aurelia, Iowa, where he went to wed one of that city's fairest young ladies. The ceremony, we understand, took place at Aurelia, Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

For the past six months Mr. Bischel has had charge of J. H. Queal's lumber business here, and has made for himself in that short time many warm friends, and for the company many patrons. He is a courteous and obliging gentleman, and by close application to business has won the confidence of his employers, and his services are valued highly by them. His bride is a stranger to us and to the people of Klemme, but is certainly a deserving lady to have won for a life's partner such a young man as Mr. Bischel.

The TIMES extends congratulations, may the star that now shines so brightly for them never fade, and may their pathway be strewn with orange blossoms.

Bloom & Schoper will give another grand ball on Thanksgiving Eve. For this occasion they have secured the Albert Lea harp orchestra, which has gained quite a reputation throughout this country this fall. Everyone knows what the last dance given by these gentlemen was, and this will be no exception. At the close of the last dance it was announced that the next dance would be Thanksgiving night but it was necessary to change the date to Thanksgiving Eve.

I have for sale in Polk county, Minn., a few quarter sections of raw prairie land, well located and of good quality. that I am offering on very easy terms and at a reasonable price. If you have $400 to $500 to pay down, you can secure a quarter section of this land, and can secure very easy terms on the balance of payments. These lands are sure to advance in value, and offer an inducement to the man seeking land for a farm as well as to the investor.

CHARLES BAILEY
Garner, Iowa.

Kelly & Tellier, the artists who had been engaged to decorate the interior of the new bank building finished their labors on Saturday and departed that afternoon. These gentlemen are natural born artists, and display rare taste in the selection of colors. The banking room is certainly grand, having been transformed by the deft hands of these artists from rough side walls and dingy looking steel ceiling, into a perfect bower of lovliness. The different colors blend perfectly, and the effect is superb. The other rooms in the bank are also nicely decorated, no two being the same.

EXPRESS COMPANY TO TEST

Seizure of Liquor at Newton Under C. O. D. Decision of Supreme Court Will Be Contested by the Company—New Point to Be Decided.

Newton, Nov. 6.—The recent decision of the supreme court in the matter of C. O. D. packages of liquor will be given a test by a case begun here yesterday which bids fair to display some sensational features.

At the time the supreme court decided that liquor delivered by an express company, C. O. D., in this state was made, the Adams Express agent here held a large quantity of liquor consigned C. O. D. to private persons in this town. He sent to headquarters for instructions, and after waiting for ten days he received word that he should deliver the stuff.

Before he could do this Rev. John Ferguson swore out a warrant for it and it was seized by the officers. It is in a cell at the county jail. It will be tried and probably the question will again be carried to the supreme court to determine whether or not a sale of liquor could be consummated by its delivery. This point the supreme court failed to decide.

There are ninety-four gallons of whisky, nine cases of beer and three kegs of beer in the stock seized by the officers.

FOR CARE OF INEBRIATES.

Counties Must Settle for Keeping of Inmates at Asylum.

Des Moines, Nov. 7.—The first bills for the care of inebriates under the new law have reached the office of the state auditor. They are from the Mt. Pleasant hospital and are against some twenty or more counties in the state. The law provides that the expense of committment and the maintenance of inebriates shall be certified and borne in the same manner as for the insane. The charge for each inebriate in a state hospital is therefore $12 per month. This amount is entered up against the county from which the patient was sent and must be paid by that county out of its insane fund.

The law provides, as in the case of insane persons, that the state may recover from the estates of the patients. However, it is not supposed that any great number of persons will be able to reimburse the county and the most of the expense of care and treatment of inebriates will fall upon the several counties of Iowa.

The counties are abundantly able to bear this expense, however. Counties are required to levy a tax for care of insane persons each year, and in most instances the levy has been one mill on the taxable property of the county. This has brought in much more money than was needed and nearly every Iowa county has several thousand dollars in its insane fund. The Iowa code says: "Taxes thus levied cannot be used for any other purpose," so that the balance on hand has accumulated from year to year. As dipsomaniacs and inebriates are regarded the same as insane patients by the new law, the money on hand in the insane fund can be used in settlement of the hospital accounts, the first of which were certified yesterday.

TRAINS BY DECEMBER 15.

Des Moines, Iowa Falls & Northern to Operate Soon.

Iowa Falls, Nov. 8.—With any kind of decent weather for the next thirty or forty days the Des Moines, Iowa Falls & Northern, now under construction between this city and Des Moines, will reach the latter place by December 15, and will be in shape to run trains regularly over the seventy-five miles of road. But two gaps remain to be covered with steel in order to reach the capital city and save the second half of the Story county tax, amounting to $12,000. Trains are now running regularly between this city and Nevada and the road is ballasted nearly to that point. Steel gangs are rushing the track north and south from Cambridge, the junction with the Milwaukee road, and but ten miles remains to be laid between Cambridge and Nevada. Between Cambridge and Des Moines but fourteen miles remains to be laid to take the road to the city limits, where it will connect with the new Hubbell terminal known as the Des Moines Western. Two passenger trains each way will be run when the track reaches Des Moines and a local freight. A night passenger may be added to connect with the fast night trains on the Illinois Central to Omaha and Chicago. The new line will occupy jointly with the Central the new brick depot now under construction in this city. The new round house and machine shop is being built at Des Moines. The rolling stock of the new road is of the finest pattern. The new road will be popularly known as the "Des Moines Short Line."

MAN AND MONEY GONE.

Lars Ronquest Draws $3,950 From Waterloo Bank and Disappears.

Waterloo, Nov. 7.—The disappearance of Lars Ronquest from this city is a great mystery to his friends and family. Nothing has been seen of him since last Monday, when he came to this city and drew about $3,950 from the bank. His wife believes he has skipped the country and is taking steps to trace him and secure part of the money, if nothing more.

Ronquest is well known in this vicinity, where he has resided for the past twenty-five or thirty years. For the past three or four years he has been residing on a farm about four miles east of this city, owned by Judge F. C. Platt.

Mrs. Ronquest is well known in this city, where she formerly resided. She married Lars Ronquest about six months ago, it being the second matrimonial venture of both parties. Mrs. Ronquest was formerly Mrs. Hillman. Mr. Ronquest's first wife now resides in Waterloo.

He (to himself)—"There! All on account of my beastly temper, I suppose I've gone and said too much." She (to herself)—"Oh, dear! If I hadn't lost my temper, I might have said ever so much more."

BALLIET IS SENTENCED.

Given One Year in County Jail and a Fine of $500.

Des Moines, Nov. 8.—Letson Balliet, convicted in the federal courts last spring on a charge of using the mails to promote a fraud, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Munger to one year's imprisonment in the Polk county jail and to pay a fine of $500. Judgment will also be entered against Balliet for the costs incurred by him in the defense of the suit. The government will be required to pay its own costs. With allowances for attorney's fees it is estimated that the costs amount to about $16,000, of which Balliet will have about half to pay.

Immediately upon the sentence Balliet, by his attorneys, gave notice of an appeal. Later in the day he filed a bill of exceptions and was released on a $2,500 bond pending a decision on appeal.

Balliet appeared in court with his father, former Judge Balliet, shortly after it had been convened. Judge Bishop, who was his attorney during the trial of the case, was in court, but when the case was called Judge Carr appeared for the defendant, saying that Judge Bishop, because of his appointment to the bench of the supreme court, desired to withdraw his appearance.

Judge Munger said the motion for a new trial had been submitted to him on written arguments and that after a careful review of the case he had come to the conclusion there was but one point to be considered, and that was whether or not the court had not erred in permitting so much testimony to be introduced relative to the intent of the defendant in mailing circulars. He said that most of the transactions testified to show intent occurred in California, while the act complained of was the mailing of circulars in Polk county, Iowa. He said he was satisfied from the record that the defendant had mailed the circulars for the purpose of defrauding those to whom they were sent, that he had diverted large sums of money subscribed to the stock of his Oregon mining company, that much of it had been used for injudicious advertising and advertising Balliet himself, and that more of it had been used for his own personal affairs. He said that the evidence of intent, while voluminous, was not detrimental to the defendant insofar as he could see. He declared the motion for a new trial would be overruled.

REPUBLICANS CARRY IOWA

SECOND DISTRICT IS CARRIED BY THE DEMOCRATS.

Boies Defeated by a Big Majority, While Lacey and Hedge Win Out.

Des Moines, Nov. 7.—Complete returns from the ninety-nine counties of Iowa show that Martin, head of the republican state ticket, leads Burke, head of the democratic state ticket 74,785. Last year on governor the republican plurality was 83,080. The republican loss is thus 8,295. This year the democrats carry twelve counties, Bremer, Carroll, Clinton, Crawford, Davis, Des Moines, Dubuque, Fremont, Ida, Johnson, Lee and Scott. A year ago the democrats carried eight. The counties which reversed their position were Crawford, Des Moines, Ida and Scott. Otherwise the political complexion of the counties are unchanged.

The Iowa delegation to the next congress will consist of ten republicans and one democrat—the first Iowa has sent to congress for ten years. The successful democrat is Martin J. Wade of Iowa City, candidate in the Second district. The later news served to increase rather than diminish his plurality, and complete returns from the district show that he has a plurality of 1,149 over William Hoffman, his opponent.

The other districts are safely republican. Judge Conner of the Tenth district has the honor of the largest plurality, it being in the neighborhood of 15,000. Among the gratifying features of his canvass is the fact that Crawford county, his home, a traditional democratic Gibraltar, gives him a plurality. The vote in Crawford county was: Conner 1,956, and Fallinson 1,947, a plurality of nine votes.

Congressman Hepburn in the Eighth district gets the compliment of an increased plurality, receiving this year more than 6,000, against 3,821 two years ago. Judge Smith in the Ninth district has a plurality exceeding 6,000, or about the same as two years ago. In the Seventh district Congressman Hull has 10,000, or a little less than two years ago. In the Eleventh, Congressman Thomas estimates that he will have about 6,500. In the Fourth district, Congressman Haugen has 4,000, or 3,000 less than two years ago. In the Fifth district, Congressman Cousins is re-elected by approximately 6,000.

In the contested districts of the First, Third and Sixth the unofficial figures complete show that Congressman Hedge has 1,830 plurality, Judge Birdsall 5,255 and Congressman Lacey 1,769. The later returns have tended to increase republican pluralities in all the close districts except the Second.

ROBBERY AT SIGOURNEY.

Store of Sheffer Bros. Looted of Valuable Silks and Furs.

Des Moines, Nov. 10.—The police department was notified yesterday that the store of Shaffer Bros. at Sigourney had been looted of all of the silks and furs in it, some time during Saturday night, at a loss from $1,800 to $2,500.

The burglary was not discovered until late Sunday afternoon, though apparently committed early Saturday night. No suspicious characters had been seen about Sigourney, but it was apparent from the neatness with which the job was done that the thieves had some familiarity with the ground.

The local detectives believe the work was done by the same gang that has been doing more or less work all over the country in the same line and are known to be composed of Chicago crooks.

HENDERSON GIVES LIBRARY.

Big Donation to the Upper Iowa University.

Fayette, Nov. 8.—Speaker of the House D. B. Henderson of Dubuque has notified Upper Iowa university that he has donated his entire private library to the school, which is his alma mater. Henderson recently gave a new library building to Upper Iowa, and this gift is a very unexpected one. The library contains nearly a car load of books. They will arrive on next Tuesday and will be put in place as soon afterwards as possible, in order that they may be in the new building by the time of its dedication.

The books are an accumulation of thirty years, and are especially valuable on account of their selection and because of their association with Speaker Henderson.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

Governor Calls Upon People to Remember Blessings of Year.

Des Moines, Nov. 10.—The annual Thanksgiving proclamation issued by Governor Cummins is as follows:

By the Governor:

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

The long-continued and faithful observance of Thanksgiving day by the people of the United States marks at once our recognition of the hand of God in the affairs of men, and our gratitude for the bounties of Providence, which have never failed, and which grow richer as time passes on.

The year just gone has been one which stirs the profoundest depths of Christian patriotism. It has been a year of peace and of honor, of wonderful growth and unexampled prosperity, and of health, content and happiness. It has been a year in which farms have been fruitful, business profitable, and in which labor in all forms has been efficiently employed and generously rewarded. It has been a year in which all the moral forces of society have increased their power, and all the material elements of industrial and commercial life have added to their strength. Pausing for a moment for reflection at the high point we have attained and comparing the past with the present, it is difficult to conceive conditions more gratifying than those which now surround the citizens of this commonwealth.

Moved by these, and many other manifest reasons, and in accordance with the usual custom as beautiful in its origin as it is beneficial in its results, and acting in conjunction with the president of the United States, I, Albert B. Cummins, governor of the State of Iowa, do hereby appoint Thursday, the 27th day of November, instant, as a day of praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God, and I earnestly recommend that during the whole of that day the people suspend, in so far as practicable, their usual avocations, and devote themseves to such services as will most fittingly express their gratitude and appreciation of the fortunate circumstances under which they live.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the great seal of the State of Iowa.

Done at Des Moines, this 8th day of November, A. D. 1902.

Albert B. Cummins.

By the Governor:
W. B. Martin,
Secretary of State.

7,000 IN STATE INSTITUTIONS.

The Cost of Support Last Month was $91,230.19.

Des Moines, Nov. 8.—The monthly report of the board of control to the state auditor shows more than 7,000 persons in state institutions and upon state support for the month of October. The total number is 7,312, and is arrived at by averaging the total attendance during each of the thirty-one days of the month. On this basis the following is the enrollment in the different state institutions:

| | |
|---|---|
| Anamosa penitentiary | 412 |
| Cherokee hospital | 588 |
| Clarinda hospital | 879 |
| Orphans' Home | 466 |
| School for deaf and dumb | 220 |
| Boys' Industrial school | 506 |
| Ft. Madison penitentiary | 435 |
| School for Feeble Minded | 948 |
| Independence hospital | 878 |
| Soldiers' Home | 654 |
| Girls' Industrial school | 199 |
| Mt. Pleasant hospital | 966 |
| College for the Blind | 161 |
| Total | 7,312 |

The per capita allowance for each inmate of these institutions is lowest at the penitentiaries, Anamosa receiving $9.50 per month for each prisoner, and Fort Madison only $9.00. The School for the Blind at Vinton and the school for the Deaf at Council Bluffs receive the highest amount of support, $22 per month for each inmate. The other per capita tax varies from $10 to $18, and will average about $15 or less. The total amount of support for the month of October as shown by the report of the board of control is $91,230.19. Last month it was only a trifle more than $84,000. The total cost of the state institutions each year is considerably over a million dollars.

BAGLEY WAS BURNED OUT.

Loss is Between Fifteen and Twenty Thousand Dollars.

Bagley, Nov. 6.—Fire broke out in the McChesney drug store and before the flames were under control several business houses were either entirely or partially destroyed.

The loss will be from $15,000 to $20,000 with insurance not more than $5,000. The heaviest losers are the McChesney Drug Co., and the Hobson & Green General Merchandise Co. The fire was caused by an explosion of chemicals in the drug store. The losses and insurance so far as can be learned are:

McChesney Drug Co., loss $5,000, partially insured.

Hobson & Green, general merchandise. Losos $5,000 to $8,000. Insurance on stock $3,000. On building, $800.

Hobson Millinery Co., loss $1,000. No insurance.

John Campbell, real estate, lost office effects. No insurance.

There are other slight losses to property, with but little or no insurance.

FIRST DEGREE.

Thomas Smith of Albia so Held by Grand Jury.

Albia, Nov. 7.—The grand jury has found an indictment charging Thomas Smith, a policeman, with murder in the first degree. About a month ago Smith tried to arrest Sam and Wid Sarver, two farmers, who were drinking in town. The Sarvers resisted arrest and were aided by Jerome Streeter. The three men were fighting the policeman in the street when he drew a revolver and shot one of his assailants dead in his tracks. The tragedy occurred in the presence of a large crowd and the testimony differs considerably. Smith's bail was fixed at $3,000 by Justice Wright. This he quickly gave and has been out on bonds ever since. Since the grand jury returned an indictment for murder in the first degree Smith has been rearrested and put in jail. The case will be tried in January.

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN.

Cedar Falls, Nov 7.—S. B. Humbert, a member of the Lookout Mountain commission appointed by Governor Cummins, has gone to Chicago, where the commission from this state joins the whole commission and proceeds south to inspect the monuments already erected preparatory to the special work they have in charge. Iowa appropriated $35,000 at the session of the legislature for monuments to commemorate the heroism of the Iowa soldiers who took part in that famous battle. Mr. Humbert was a member of the Thirty-first Iowa regiment at that time.

CHAPTER XI.—(Continued.)

"What do you think it is, captain?" Paul asked his companion.

"It is not a stone, Crack-lash."

"No, I can see it move."

"That is why I know that it is an animated object."

"Perhaps it is a horse."

The old man shook his head, saying:

"No horse could climb these steeps."

"Then it may be a polar bear."

"More likely that than a horse, and yet I think it is neither, as a polar bear is white, and this object has some black spots on it."

They journeyed on until nightfall, and went into camp in a spot somewhat screened by rocks. Next day they resumed their weary march through the most desolate country. The skies became overcast, and the snow began to fall in great white flakes, which rapidly covered the ground.

When night came they halted under the shelter of some rocks and thick, bushy top spruce pine. A blanket was stretched over them, forming a partial shelter.

"We are almost out of food," the captain said as they ate a small portion of the dried moose meat.

"How are we to replenish our stock?"

"I don't know."

It was a painful subject to discuss. Their chances of ever reaching a civilized camp were gloomy indeed. Paul's fortitude was tried to its utmost when, weak and faint, he was continually spurred on by the remembrance that Laura was in the wilds of Alaska.

About the middle of the afternoon the snow ceased falling, and the two men trudged on, sinking into the white covering almost to their knees.

Suddenly the hermit stopped and said:

"Do you see that?"

He was pointing to a trail made in the snow by some animal, and Paul answered:

"Yes; what made it—a bear?"

"No; it is either a dog or wolf."

The thought of a supper on either was repulsive, and the two trudged on in silence. A mile farther they saw a white dog with black spots on the side of his head drinking at one of the lakes. Paul reached for his rifle, but the captain said:

"No, don't shoot him; he may prove our friend."

Paul began to call and whistle to the dog, using terms like the Esquimaux. The animal gave them a look of surprise, and then bounded toward them, yelping in his joy at meeting a human companion.

"He has a collar about his neck," said Paul.

"I say, captain, if we release him he will go back to his master, will he not?"

"Certainly."

"Then we may make a courier of him. Let us write a message, tie it to his collar and send him away."

"An excellent idea."

Paul had a small strip of seal skin, and under the embankment he dug out a bit of red chalk, or ochre, usully called keel, and, dressing one end to a pencil point, wrote:

"We are in the forest, out of food and starving. Follow on the trail at once and find us.

"PAUL MILLER AND COMPANION."

When this had been fastened about the dog's neck, he was released and sent bounding away through the forest.

When the dog courier had been dispatched with his message, the two men trudged on a mile or two farther and halted. Evening was approaching, and they were on the banks of a lake in a marshy ground covered with a thicket of bushes. Here they built a small fire and made a supper on a part of their slender stock of food.

Suddenly they were startled by a crashing in the bushes, accompanied by a snort half of terror and half of defiance. Paul seized his rifle and both leaped to their feet.

"A moose."

The captain nodded.

"It is our only chance for life."

Again the captain nodded. Paul gave him an inquiring glance, and the captain made a sweeping motion with his left hand at the same time disappearing on the right.

Slowly and carefully through the melting snow and tangled thickets Paul groped his way, holding his rifle in one hand and parting the bushes with the other. Hour after hour he trudged on, pausing occasionally to listen. At last he was about to give up and return to the camp, when the crashing of the bushes not far off again aroused his hopes.

Suddenly a dark object loomed up through the night. He only caught a glimpse of it, and before he could raise his rifle to his shoulder it was gone.

Wet to the waist, tired out and despairing, he sank down upon a stone to rest. A dense fog had settled over the low ground, and Paul felt damp and chilly. He was stunned and confused, and only half conscious when there came on his ears the sound of splashing feet.

Next he was conscious of a large, dark object coming through the woods. A large animal was drinking at the lake. He roused himself in a moment, raised his gun, brought it to his shoulder, and without hardly taking aim, fired.

There was a wild, spasmodic leap, a splashing and plunging. He fired again and again at the struggling beast. With a snort of agony it made a few plunges blindly into the thicket and fell.

Paul roused himself in a moment and rushed to its side. Despair quickly gave way to joy, for here was food. The moose was a giant in size, and would furnish them with food for days. He cut its throat with his knife and then for the first time thought of his companion. He called aloud, and fired a shot in the air, but only the echoes answered him.

"He will get on my trail and follow me," thought Paul, and began to skin the dead moose without feeling in the least uneasy. Having at last completed his task, he built a fire, and, cutting off some of the choicest steaks began to broil them over it. Paul had been on short rations a long time, and never steak tasted better.

Paul wrapped himself in his blanket and lay down by the fire to warm himself and dry his clothing. The night passed in troubled dreams. When he awoke it was broad daylight.

When it was noon and Paul's companion did not come he began to feel uneasy. Could it be they were lost? To become separated he thought would be fatal to both. He roasted and packed away all the moose meat he could carry, and after another, restless night, started out to return to the spot where he had last seen his companion.

The lowering skies portended another storm, and before he had gone five miles the snow was falling in blinding fury, completely obliterating the trail. For hours and hours Paul staggered on until he came upon a great, high wall of stone, which barred his farther progress and partially sheltered him from the driving storm.

He spread his blanket above him, and, finding some dry pine sticks, kindled a little fire, over which he stretched his half-frozen fingers. His suffering throughout that night was intense, and it is a wonder that he did not perish.

But morning came, and, cold and hungry and in despair, he crept away from the great cliff under shelter of which he had passed such a miserable night.

He reached a deep ravine in which was a great deal of dry pine wood, and he proceeded to make a fire. The fire blazed and roared and gave out a generous heat. He was soon warmed, and, wrapping his blanket about him, slept throughout the day. Night came and he awoke, and, building another fire, slept throughout the night.

Next day the sky was clear, and he started on his wandering, going in the direction of the Yukon. He slept that night in the shelter of a rock, and the next morning started again on his journey.

About the middle of the forenoon he saw a party of men coming toward him, and shouted and danced for joy. He ran to meet them yelling like a madman.

At last he came up with them. The leader was a tall man about his own age. He gazed on the being whom hardship, exposure and toil had so completely metamorphosed that he was unrecognizable, and asked:

"Who are you, and what are you?"

Paul started back with an exclamation of horror, and well he might. He was face to face with his most bitter enemy, Theodore Lackland.

* * * * * *

It is necessary at this point in our story that we take leave of Paul for the time being and return to the brave girl whom we left hastening to the dangers and wilds of the polar world for the man she loved.

Laura kept up bravely so long as she could discern the form of Mrs. Miller on the dock, but when it faded from view she fell upon a steamer chair and burst into tears. A hand hardened by toil and softened by love was laid upon her shoulder and a low, gentle voice whispered in her ear:

"Don't cry, pretty one. It's a hard lot ye've chosen, but there's a rich promise in the future for ye."

Looking up she saw the kind face of the woman called Kate Willis bending over her.

"I know, child, it's tough on ye t' go away from friends and relations, perhaps, but ye'll find friends where yer goin' that'll be true to ye."

"I don't doubt you, my good woman. I don't doubt you," Laura declared. "Pardon this weakness and let me assure you that it will not last long. The knowledge that I shall perhaps never see the face of that dear friend has quite overwhelmed me for the time being."

"Oh, it's nothin', my dear, after ye git used to it; but gittin' used t' it's the trouble. I tell ye, Laura, I'll look after ye when we git to Alaska. Ye shan't work. I'll do it for ye. Them pretty little hands sha'n't do anything to spoil 'em."

"I am not going to the Klondyke to work," answered Laura.

"Not goin' there t' work?"

"That is, I am not going to dig gold from the mines."

"Well, what are ye goin' for?"

It was a long, sad story, but Laura was a confiding creature and told her.

When she had finished tears were trickling down the furrowed cheeks of her companion.

"Ah, child, yer story is so like my own I can but believe yer livin' over my own sad life. When I was young like you, and some said pretty, I had a lover, a gallant young sailor lad. He always told me how he loved me and wouldn't never marry another. We were goin' t' be married when Jack came back from the next cruise. He was tired o' the sea, and I was tired o' havin' him go away so much, so we decided that it was to be the last voyage. He sailed t' the north in the Arctic seas somewhere an' never came back." She sobbed a moment in silence and resumed:

"A long time I couldn't give him up. I didn't believe that he was dead, but at last I had to give in that he was. Two years after a sailor came into port who had been in Jack's crew and he told how Jack and his captain had been led out into the forest by savages on promises o' findin' a great amount o' gold, and both killed."

Laura, who was very much interested in her sad story, asked:

"Why are you going to the Klondyke?"

"I am goin' where I kin make money; where I kin git rich, and help young people, so they won't suffer as I have.

From that time on they became the best of friends. They were together most of the time and exchanged hopes and fears, and both kneeled at night to ask God for guidance in their course in the future.

Their long voyage was at last ended. The great engine was slowly puffing as the vessel was driven slowly into the bay.

The vessel ran to within three-fourths of a mile of the shore and dropped anchor.

They had been discovered by the people on shore, who were waving handkerchiefs and hats, firing guns and pistols in the air. The boats were lowered and men climbed into them.

"Don't be in a hurry to go, child," whispered Kate, who exercised a sort of motherly control over the girl. "There's another ship in."

"Where did it come from?" Laura asked.

"San Francisco, I'm thinkin'. Fact, I know it's from San Francisco."

Poor Laura little dreamed who had come on that vessel, starting after she did, but beating her to the land of gold. Even had she known whom the vessel brought she would not have been able to guess his object in coming to this country.

They went out on deck again to find it cleared of passengers. Another boat was lowered, and they were asked if they wished to go ashore.

"Certainly," said Laura. They descended to the rocking boat, and were pulled ashore by eight sturdy oarsmen. A porter came from the boat with her pretty, white bag, which seemed in harmony with the spotless purity which surrounded them.

She thanked him and gave him a silver dollar for his trouble. Then she turned to go with Kate to the hotel, when she suddenly stopped, started back, and, with a cry of alarm, fell into the arms of Kate Willis. Before her stood Theodore Lackland, a smile on his contemptible features.

Kate Willis was dumbfounded at the conduct of her charge. She knew the girl had unexpectedly met some one, and the meeting was highly disagreeable, but could not, of course, understand the true cause. Kate knew the man before her was the cause of the trouble, and at once began to berate him.

"You unprincipled scoundrel," she cried. "What do you mean by comin' here to frighten this poor child to death?"

In a moment Laura had recovered her self-possession, while Kate continued:

"You ugly, hatchet-faced, spider-legged kangaroo! You flannel-mouthed red-headed dude with brute's milk eyes! You three-card monte, faro bank shark, with a tongue as black as your heart! You—"

"That will do, Kate," interrupted Laura, regaining her speech. "This man's sudden appearance startled me."

A CROWN IN THE SKY.

Virginia Newspaper Tells of a Remarkable Appearance.

With the setting of the sun the other day there appeared in the eastern sky a beautiful golden crown, which drew the attention of many of the inhabitants of this city, who watched with intense interest and excitement the phenomenal movements of something that has never been seen here before and which it is very likely will never appear again.

When first seen it was in the south, and at the time was only a shapeless spot of light, but gradually it grew until it formed a perfect crown of gold, over which twinkled a bright star of unusual proportions which lighted up the sky for some distance. The crown glittered as though made of perfect gold and set with magnificent stones which shed their radiance. From the south it traveled slowly eastward, leaving a gleaming track of fire behind it, until it faded from view.

At the time of the appearance the sky was clouded with a bank of dark clouds in the east and south, and the sun shone dimly through a mist that overhung the western heavens. In the midst of the dark overhanging clouds there was one with a snow-white cap, and upon the very top of this snowy bank rested the golden crown.

For fifteen minutes the crown threw its brightness over the earth, but as the sun sank in a cloud beyond the horizon it gradually faded from view.—Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

As to Two Evils.

Theodore Hallam, one of the most celebrated of legal practitioners, once defended a burglar; and the case gave him a story that he never tired of telling. The prosecuting attorney was fighting vigorously, and had the dedendant's wife on the stand.

"You are the wife of the prisoner?" he asked her.

"Yes," she replied.

"Did you know his mode of life when you married him?"

"I did, sir."

"Will you tell us, then," went on the prosecutor, surprised by this admission, "how you came to contract an alliance with one of his kind?"

"Well," she answered, ingenuously, "I was getting on, the other girls had all been married, and I at last had no choice but between him and a lawyer who was courting me."

Look Out for Your Pate.

So "pate" is slang for head, eh? Wherefore? Surely the word is used in a trivial or derogatory sense, as noodle, noggin, cranium, brain-pan, etc., but its origin is eminently respectable. Shakespeare says "the learned pate ducks' to the golden fool." Pope's epigram is good—

"You beat your pate, and fancy wit will come;
Knock as you please, there's nobody at home."

We have "bald pate" and "shave pate." Why, the word is used once in the Bible, and by David, in Psalm vii., 16: "His mischief shall return upon his own head, and his violent dealing shall come down upon his own pate." Accurately, pate does not mean the head, but the crown of the head.

ALMOST A MIRACLE.

Case No. 49,763.—Mrs. M. Ins[illegible] 1207 Strand street, Galveston, [illegible] who is proprietor of a boarding [illegible] at that address, numbering [illegible] her boarders a dozen medical [illegible] dents, says: "I caught cold during [illegible] flood of September, 1900, and it [illegible] tled in my kidneys. Despite the [illegible] that I tried all kinds of medicines [illegible] was under the care of physicians [illegible] excruciating twinges and dull [illegible] across the small of my back [illegible] to leave, and trouble with the [illegible] secretions began to set in. [illegible] then, ordinary Anglo-Saxon fail[illegible] describe the annoyance and suf[illegible] I endured. The fearful pain thr[illegible] my body, loss of appetite, los[illegible] sleep, consequent loss of [illegible] and, finally, indication of com[illegible] dissolution compelled me, from [illegible] agony and pain, to either lie on [illegible] floor and scream, or forced me [illegible] spasms. On such occasions my [illegible] band called in a physician, whose [illegible] phine treatment relieved me [illegible] rarily. I grew weaker and thinner [illegible] so run down physically that [illegible] was left but skin and bone. All [illegible] friends, acquaintances and neigh[illegible] knew about my critical condition [illegible] on one occasion I was reported [illegible] and they came to see my corpse [illegible] last the doctors attending me held [illegible] consultation and agreed that if I [illegible] not undergo an operation I could [illegible] live. I don't know why [illegible] something told me not to go, and [illegible] solutely refused. Now I want [illegible] reader to grasp every word of the [illegible] lowing: A friend of ours, a Mr. [illegible] Gaund, knowing that my kid[illegible] were the real cause of the [illegible] trouble, brought a box of Doan's [illegible] ney Pills to the house, and [illegible] me to give them a trial. I had [illegible] so much medicine that I was [illegible] than discouraged, and had lost [illegible] any, faith in any preparation. [illegible] ever, I reasoned if they did not do [illegible] good they could not possibly make [illegible] worse, so I began the treatment. [illegible] the third dose, I felt something [illegible] across me like a flash of light [illegible] and from that moment I began to [illegible] prove. The pain in my back and [illegible] neys positively disappeared, the [illegible] ney secretions became free and [illegible] ural. At present I rest and sleep [illegible] my appetite is good, my weight [illegible] increased from 118 to 155 [illegible] and my flesh is firm and solid. [illegible] friends actually marvel at the [illegible] in my appearance. Words cannot [illegible] press my own feelings. I am not [illegible] ting it too strongly when I say I [illegible] been raised from the dead. I am [illegible] isfied that had it not been for [illegible] Kidney Pills, taken when they [illegible] I would have been either lying in [illegible] Lake View Cemetery, or an invalid [illegible] the balance of my life. I will be [illegible] too pleased to give minuter particulars of my case to any one called [illegible] me, not, of course, out of idle curi[illegible] ity, but if they really have a [illegible] complaint and want to know the [illegible] course to pursue to get relief."

THOUSANDS OF WOMEN ARE SLOWLY DYING FROM CATARRH

Pe-ru-na Cures, That Is Why the People Like It.

All the Advertisement In the World Could Not Make Pe-ru-na as Popular as It Is.

Miss Margaret Donnelly, 21 Webster Place, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"Peruna was recommended to me about a year ago for catarrh with which I had been troubled nearly all my life, but which had given me serious trouble a few months before I took Peruna. In two weeks my head cleared up, I did not have headaches, and in a short time felt perfectly well."-Margaret Donnelly.

November Colds Should Not Be Allowed to Develop Into Chronic Catarrh.

Pe-ru-na Cures a Cold Promptly and Permanently.

"I am glad to recommend Peruna as it has done so much for me. I had been a great sufferer from catarrhal colds until I was urged to try Peruna, and I am happy to say that it has entirely cured me. I shall never be without it and most cheerfully recommend it to others who are afflicted as I have been."—Katherine Dauter, 239 13th St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Most people think the success of Peruna depends upon the use of advertisements. Undoubtedly the advertisements help some. But by far the greatest number of people who hear of Peruna, have their attention called to it by a friend.

Some one gets cured of chronic catarrh by Peruna. After he is certain of his cure, he is sure to recommend it to his friends. Friend recommends it to friend and the news spreads from tongue to tongue.

All the advertisements in the world could not make Peruna as popular as it is. Peruna cures. That is the reason people like it. Peruna cures a very stubborn disease. That is why everyone recommends it. Peruna cures chronic catarrh after all other remedies fail which explains why neighbor recommends it to neighbor. Peruna cures catarrh permanently, and this way has gained a life-long friend.

People who have been cured by Peruna many years ago have been eager to recommend Peruna to their friends ever since. This is the way Peruna is advertised. It advertises itself. Its merits are its chief advertisement. Once cured of so distressing and exasperating a malady as catarrh, it becomes the duty of every one to pass it along; to call the attention of those who are still victims, to a remedy that rarely fails to cure.

when I found myself with a bad case of catarrh of the head and throat Peruna was the first thing that I thought of. And my convictions were not wrong, for in a few weeks after using Peruna systematically I was entirely rid of this aggravating and distressing disease, catarrh.

"If people knew how efficient Peruna was for this trouble they would not hesitate to try it. I have all the faith in the world in it, and have never known of a case where the person was not cured in a short time."—Jennie Driscoll.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

Beware of Cheap Imitations of Peru-na ... Be Sure That You Get Pe-ru-na.

There are no substitutes for Peruna. Allow no one to persuade you that there is something just as good. The success of Peruna has tempted many people to devise cheap imitations. Beware of them. Be sure that you get Peruna.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Nov. 8, 1902.

Clerk of Court Tate has forwarded his report on criminal business for the year ending September 30 to the secretary of state. It shows there were forty-three convictions for felonies as follows: Murder, 3; manslaughter, 1; assault with intent to commit manslaughter, 3; larceny, 5; larceny from a build. g, 7; breaking and entering a railway car, 2; breaking and entering, 6; burglary, 2; larceny from the person, 1; being a common thief, 1; robbery, 3; embezzlement, 1; forgery, 4; keeping a house of ill fame, 2; obtaining money under false pretenses, 1. The penitentiary sentences, according to length of time, are divided as follows: For life, 1; thirty years, 1; twenty-five years, 1; twenty years, 1; ten years, 2; between five and ten years, 3; five years, 9; less than five years, 24. The three murder cases tried were those of Otis Green, sent up for life; Albert Smith, sent up for twenty-five years, and Sam Roan, sent up for thirty years. The other heavy sentences were those of twenty years each for Bob Maize and Sonny Brafford, seventeen years for Ike Brafford, for robbery, and ten years for Elijah Heathcote, for burglary.

The state board of health has set down on the practice of many physicians in the state of trying to render a person immune against smallpox by the internal administration of variolinum. According to the board of health, vaccination is vaccination by the old fashioned method, and the newfangled idea of rendering one safe from smallpox through his stomach will not be endorsed. Probably a good many people in the land have been vaccinated without knowing just what it was they were getting into. The board of health has just adopted a resolution which defines vaccination, and lets the public know exactly what it is. This resolution says vaccination is the following:

"An inoculation by scarification, puncture or injection beneath the epidermis of a vaccine which produces, with some constitutional disturbance, the typical vaccine vesicle, which leaves, after the pock has healed, its characteristic scar."

This definition of vaccination was recently adopted at the conference of state and provincial boards of health of North America, which was held at New Haven and attended by Dr. Kennedy, secretary of the state board of health.

The decision of the board in this matter is of the utmost importance throughout the state. Hereafter, under the rules of the state board, which are the rules followed by local boards of health, a person who has been given variolinum internally cannot be recognized as having been vaccinated. It is possible the matter will be brought to a test in the courts.

John R. Prime, inspector general, has reported to Adjutant General M. H. Byers on the condition of company H of the Forty-ninth Iowa at Marshalltown and company D of the Fifty-second Iowa at Hampton. In both cases he recommends that the companies be given until December 1 in which to make a more respectable showing before being mustered out. At Marshalltown Prime discovered that the reason the company was in such bad shape was that it had no drill room. Captain Brown has already agitated the matter to such an extent that the Commercial club of that city has taken it up, and it is possible that an armory will be built. If this is true the company will be retained. At Hampton the trouble has been that the class of men in the company is not of the right kind. General Prime recommended that the waste and unavailable material be weeded out at once, and this Lieutenant Colonel Parker and Captain McCrillis promised to do. Both Marshalltown and Hampton are very desirous of retaining their companies. These towns both had national guard companies before the Spanish-American war, and the men now enlisted are many of them men who saw service in 1898.

In the district court the jury in the case of the state against Peter English, charged with burglary, returned a verdict of guilty despite the instructions of the court in view of the recent opinion of Judge Weaver of the supreme court that possession of stolen goods immediately following a burglary cannot be taken as presumptive evidence of guilty without other testimony. The probabilities are that a motion for a new trial will be filed and it is equally certain it will be overruled that this case may be carried up with a view of securing a modification of the Weaver opinion or a clearer statement of the law than is given in Judge Weaver's opinion. In this case the only evidence offered was that a burglary had been committed and that defendant had the stolen goods in his possession.

The persons having plats to file of new additions, sub-divisions of lands, etc., have struck upon a way to get around the new law requiring that abstracts of title be filed with plats and that the persons filing pay a fee for recording them. The old law provided for plats and official plats. Official plats are plats called for by the auditor that he may have the sub-division record for purposes of taxation. The new law was not made to apply to official plats, so the parties now sell out lots in the additions, etc., before filing and this results in a request from the county auditor for the filing of plats so that he can divide the property for purposes of taxation. The first official plat since the new ruling was made by the auditor has just been filed with a certificate accompanying to the effect that the land platted is free from all incumbrances.

Information for travelers was imparted by a thoughtful genius in Ireland, who engraved the following warning on a stone near the banks of a rivulet in the town of Strabane: "Take notice, that when this stone is out of sight it is not safe to ford the river." This is somewhat similar to the famous fingerpost which was erected in Kent, England: "This is a bridle path to Faversham. If you can't read this, you had better keep to the main road."

Blindness is very common among the Moors. At forty-five their eyesight begins to fail. This affliction is due, it is said, to the excessive use of coffee.

On one occasion Charles Burleigh, the great opponent of the slave trade, was in the middle of one of his eloquent denunciations of slavery when a well-aimed and very rotten egg struck him full in the face. "This," he said, calmly, as he produced his handkerchief and wiped his face, "is a striking evidence of what I have always maintained, that pro-slavery arguments are unsound."

STORYETTES.

John Chalmers, the missionary friend of Robert Louis Stevenson, and every inch a man, once telegraphed to England: "Getting in trim for next season. Ask Jones send one gross tomahawks, one gross butchers' knives. Going east, try make friends between tribes." London was convulsed over the missionary's peculiar way of promoting friendship with the New Guinea cannibals.

When Major General Samuel B. M. Young was presented to the kaiser during his recent visit to Germany, Emperor William asked him if he had ever visited that country before. "Not this part," General Young is said to have replied. The emperor then inquired what parts he had visited, whereupon General Young said: "I have visited St. Louis, Cincinnati and Milwaukee." The emperor roared with laughter, and took General Young to the empress, to whom he repeated the witticism.

Not long ago Senator William P. Fyre, of Maine, was summoned too prepare a will for a man who was very ill. It was necessary, of course, to secure two witnesses, and they had to be sent for. While awaiting their arrival, the invalid seemed to get worse, and Senator Frye thought it his duty, no minister being present, to talk seriously to him. He told him that he was very ill, and that it was likely he would soon depart this life. "And are you ready to meet this great change?" Frye asked him. "I will be," was the reply, "as soon as those d—n witnesses get here."

A SURPRISED PHYSICIAN.

A dying patient recovers through the interposition of a humble German.

Chicago, Nov. 15.

Some weeks ago Dr. G——, a very reputable and widely-known physician, living on C—— Street, was called to attend a very complicated case of Rheumatism. Upon arriving at the house he found a man about forty years of age, lying in a prostrated and serious condition, with his whole frame dangerously affected with the painful disease. He prescribed for the patient, but the man continued to grow worse, and on Sunday evening he was found to be in a very alarming condition. The knees and elbows and larger joints were greatly inflamed, and could not be moved. It was only with extreme difficulty that the patient could be turned in bed, with the aid of three or four persons. The weight of the clothing was so painful that means had to be adopted to keep it from the patient's body.

The doctor saw that his assistance would be of no avail, and left the house, the members of the family following him to the door, weeping. Almost immediately the grief stricken ones were addressed by an humble German. He had heard of the despair of the family, and now asked them to try his remedy, and accordingly brought forth a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil. The poor wife applied this remedy. The first application eased the patient very much; after a few hours they used it again, and, wonder of wonders, the pain vanished entirely! Every subsequent application improved the patient, and in two days he was well and out. When the doctor called a few days after, he was indeed surprised.

A Briton of the consequential species once descended on the British embassy at Washington demanding to see his country's representative. "He is not in," replied Henry Labouchere, who was then an attache. "Then I'll wait," said the Briton, pompously, seating himself. At the end of half an hour came the query: "When-er-do-you-er-expect Lord Lyons back?" "Oh, in six months or so," said the everobliging Labourchere; "he left for Europe this morning. But you said you'd wait, you know, and I did not like to contradict you."

According to the New York Tribune, Secretary Moody, during the president's recent visit in New England, on more than one occasion impersonated his chief. Passing through the numerous New England villages that were close together, it became somewhat of a task for the president to show himself and greet the crowd at every station. The resemblance of the secretary of the navy to the president in height, build and general physical appearance, offered a plan by which Mr. Roosevelt could be rested. Mr. Moody, doning a high silk hat, putting on a pair of eye-glasses, and buttoning a frock coat tightly across his chest, would repair to the rear platform, lift his hat, and smiling bow right and left to the throngs as the train passed slowly along.

Green County's Sensation.

Catskill, N. Y., November 10th.—Ulster and Greene counties are ringing with the news of the wonderful recovery of George F. Ayers, who lives at 16 Division street, in this city. One year ago Mr. Ayers was suffering from Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, and the doctors gave him little relief and less hope. To-day Mr. Ayers is as well as man could wish. He tells the following story:

"About a year ago I was at West Camp, sick with Bright's Disease and without hope of ever being better, when an old gentleman from Bath, N. Y., advised me to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, telling me they had cured him of the same disease.

"I had tried so many remedies that I was past hoping and told him so, but when he bought me a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and coaxed me to try them I did so just to humor his whim.

"That was the means of saving my life. I took that box and half a dozen more. Thanks to that old man and Dodd's Kidney Pills, I am cured."

A nervous, irritable mother, often on the verge of hysterics, is unfit to care for children; it ruins a child's disposition and reacts upon herself. The trouble between children and their mothers too often is due to the fact that the mother has some female weakness, and she is entirely unfit to bear the strain upon her nerves that governing a child involves; it is impossible for her to do anything calmly. She cannot help it, as her condition is due to suffering and shattered nerves caused by some derangement of the uterine system with backache, headache, and all kinds of pain, and she is on the verge of nervous prostration.

When a mother finds that she cannot be calm and quiet with her children, she may be sure that her condition needs attention, and she cannot do better than to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This medicine will build up her system, strengthen her nerves, and enable her to calmly handle a disobedient child without a scene. The children will soon realize the difference, and seeing their mother quiet, will themselves become quiet.

Mrs. May Brown, of Chicago, Ill., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—'Honor to whom honor is due,' and you deserve both the thanks and honor of the mothers of America whom you have so blessedly helped and benefited. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I would feel run-down, nervous and irritable, or have any of the aches and pains which but few women escape, and I have found that it relieved me at once and gave me new strength. Several ladies, members of our Literary Union, speak in the highest praise of your Vegetable Compound, as they have been cured from serious female troubles. One lady, who thought she must submit to an operation, was cured without using anything in the world but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. You have hosts of friends in Chicago, and if you came to visit our city we would delight to do you honor. Gratefully yours,—MRS. MAY BROWN, 57 Grant Place, Chicago, Ill.

How Mrs. Pinkham Helped Mrs. McKinny.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to write and let you know the good you and your Vegetable Compound are doing. I had been sick ever since my first baby was born, and at the birth of my second, my doctor, as well as myself thought I should never live through it. After that menstruation never came regular, and when it came I suffered terribly. I also had womb and ovarian trouble. A friend of my husband's advised him to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me. At first I had no faith in it, but now nothing could induce me to be without it. Menstruation has become regular, and I feel like a new woman. Your medicine is a God-send to suffering women. I hope this letter will lead others to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Yours truly, MRS. ## Portable CORN CRIBS

Can be set up in ten minutes when empty can be used for chicken fence or for corn again when needed, or can be sawed into a two-foot hog fence as each section contains six cable wires, thus leaving three cables in each piece of two foot fence. This is just the thing to pen up small pigs to wean or to make a yard to feed small chicks in.

Directions wish each crib on back of tag for setting up and making the door.

A grand thing to set up in the field while husking or to feed out of during the winter. If wanted to store corn in, some pieces of boards or something else should be laid on the ground and the crib set on top. A covering can be made of hay with stringers to hold it on. Will also make a good grain bin if lined with straw or canvas. Tar paper laid on the bottom will keep out mice and rats. The two sections are done up in one roll. Nearly all farmers, grain dealers and storage men use them. Crib is 8 feet high 12 feet in diameter, and holds 400 bushel. It is cheap and handy

VOLUME VIII. NUMBER 18. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27 1902. $1 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Our Introduction!

We are too busy this week to enumerate the different articles or to go into any details regarding our Holiday Goods, but wish you to keep your eye on this space and on our display of these goods, after Thanksgiving.

This stock is carefully selected, I having spent several days in St. Paul buying it and you will find here suitable Christmas gifts for the babies, your sister, sweetheart mother, mother-in-law and grandmother.

This stock comprises everything that is generally found in a well stocked holiday shopping place and we invite you to look over it before buying elsewhere.

This is positively the best line of Holiday goods that has ever been brought to our town and can compete with dealers in larger towns in points of variety and price. Call early and select your Christmas gifts while the assortment is complete. We will not be undersold. We defy competition.

Yours for Holiday Goods,

G. W. KLUCKHOHN.

Now Tell Your Friends

Will Borman, of Garner, was a business visitor here on Tuesday.

On Monday morning Mr. Lenz an elderly gentlemanly who resided in Germantown, died. The cause of his decease was old age, having reached the ripe age of 88 years. He was buried from German M. E. church on Wednesday, Rev. Dulitz conducting the funeral ceremony. He had been an invalid for years.

On Friday afternoon and Saturday we moved the TIMES office into its new quarters in the new bank building. The rooms are steam heated, well lighted and conveniently located. We have yet much work to do before getting entirely settled, but when we do get settled can boast of as good quarters as any office in the county. We have added considerable new material to our plant, and hope in the near future to enlarge our paper.

I have for sale in Polk county, Minn., a few quarter sections of raw prairie land, well located and of good quality, that I am offering on very easy terms and at a reasonable price. If you have $400 to $500 to pay down, you can secure a quarter section of this land, and can secure very easy terms on the balance of payments. These lands are sure to advance in value, and offer an inducement to the man seeking land for a farm as well as to the investor.

CHARLES BAILEY
Garner, Iowa.

The Chicago Weekly Inter-Ocean is the only weekly newspaper published in Chicago in connection with the great daily papers. It contains a judiciously selected summary of the news of the nation and world, the best stories, home, farm, women's, and other special departments, and fair, patriotic, able editorials, written from a Republican view point. It is by far the best general newspaper of the western states. The regular price for the Weekly Inter Ocean is $1.00 and for the TIES $1.00, but subscriptions will be received at this office for the two papers in combination for one year for only $1.45.

On Saturday Henry Gruetzmacher and family left Klemme to take up their residence in Waterloo. Our people were loath to lose this estimable family, but Mr. Gruetzmacher business interests in Waterloo demanded his presence there. For a number of years Mr. Gruetzmacher was engaged in business here with his brother, Charles, and this firm built up a business here that could not be surpassed Both he and his brother, Chas., are now heavy stockholders and officers in the Waterloo Carriage company. Though our people regret very much their removal, yet they wish them success. We understand that Charles Gruetzmacher and his family will move to Waterloo in the spring. In these families Waterloo gains some splendid citizens.

Mrs. and Miss Bartz returned to Garner on Tuesday, after having spent a week visiting relatives here.

Take Care of the Stomach.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies, and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes. Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. Take it after meals. J. L. Harr.

THE NEWS IN IOWA.

Frightened by a sudden flashlight in a street car in which she was riding, Mrs. Moses Blumenthal of Dubuque jumped from the car, alighting on her head. Her skull was crushed and she died.

Another gun accident occurred at Montezuma. Cliff Harner was "fooling" with an old revolver, and, forgetting that it was not a rifle, put his hand too far forward to support it in shooting at a sparrow. The sparrow got away and the doctor cut the ball out of Cliff's hand later.

Emma Scheweum, a domestic employed in the household of Frank Kimball, a farmer living one mile from Tripoli, is the heroine of a shooting affray with a tramp, in which the girl proved victorious. The girl, who was alone in the house with a small child of the Kimball's noticed an evil-looking tramp coming from the barn to the house. She shut and locked the door. The tramp pounded on the door and demanded admittance and food, threatening to kill the girl unless she complied. Failing to frighten her into compliance he ran to a window and, taking deliberate aim, fired at her through the glass. She ran to an adjoining room and, securing a revolver, returned to the battle. The man was reaching through the broken window pane, endeavoring to unfasten the window bolt. Miss Schewemm stepped deliberately up to him and opened fire. Whether she hit him or not she is unable to tell, but at the second or third shot he grasped his arm and ran cursing toward the barn. Miss Schewemm then rang the farm bell and called Mr. and Mrs. Kimball and the hired man from the field.

At the meeting of the trustees of the Iowa State college at Ames a few days ago the differences that developed some weeks ago over the erection of buildings were compromised and a decision was reached as to how to expend the proceeds of the one-fifth mill building tax that was authorized by the general assembly last winter. It was decided to erect a central building to cost not over $225,000. This is to be used for general and administrative purposes. It is to be begun next spring and erected as rapidly as feasible and as the collection of the tax authorized by the state will allow. The sum of $35,000 appropriated by the state is to be used in erecting this central building. It was also decided to build an agricultural building to cost not less than $200,000. The time for beginning this is not definitely fixed, but it is to be begun as soon as possible after the central administration building is completed. The first improvements to be made, however, are a fireproof addition to the agricultural hall, 60 by 100 feet; a pavilion for judging purposes for the department of animal husbandry and that of agronomy; a slate roof on agricultural hall and greenhouses and minor improvements. These are to cost not over $50,000 and are to be begun as quickly as possible. They are to be completed by August 15, 1903. Proudfoot & Bird, Des Moines architects, were hired by the trustees to supervise this work. In addition to the above improvements the erection of a central heating plant to cost $65,000 was decided on. It will be built whenever it is found necessary after the central building is completed.

Boardman Bros., whose butter, egg and commission business at Nevada had made that city famous and which employed a large number of people, failed a few days ago. Their liabilities are $68,000. The creditors, big and little, have been secured, and it is certain that the firm will pay out dollar for dollar and resume business there with their plant intact. The Boardman Bros. did business with the Farmers' bank of Nevada, a private concern, which the firm owed $10,000. The bank is understood to have purchased $20,000 worth of land of the firm and placed $10,000 to its account when the failure was announced. H. C. Boardman of the firm did business with the First National of Nevada and owed it about $20,000. This has been secured amply by the transfer of abundant real estate properties. The Des Moines Savings bank of Des Moines was owed $14,000 only, and was secured beyond every possibility of loss by warehouse receipts for butter and egg products which had been given the bank as uncontestable collateral. About $24,000 additional was owed by the firm to three or four other banks in the state. Homer A. Miller of Des Moines was made trustee and a large amount of real estate of much greater value than the claims of these creditors was turned over to him for their benefit. In this lot of realty was the poultry plant and the homestead of H. C. Boardman in Nevada. This covers the list of liabilities, practically, and amounts to $68,000.

A Kansas City publication devoted to advertising publishes a list of all the "leading dailies" with the cost of replies to advertisements therein. The Des Moines Daily and Sunday News is the only Iowa newspaper thus listed and it is given a higher place than the Chicago News and several other well known papers. The Des Moines News has won wide celebrity because it is the lowest priced paper in the world published every day in the year, including Sundays. Its price is $1.50 a year, $1.00 for eight months, 80c for six months, 50c for three months. Every subscription is stopped when the time is out—another unique feature.

Public announcement has been made of the gift of $25,000 to Parsons college building fund by Hon. D. Foster of Ottumwa. The only condition is that a like amount shall be raised in the state outside of Fairfield. Mr. Foster has always been a strong friend of Parsons, and his gifts in the past have probably aggregated at least $25,000.

The United States supreme court on the ground no federal question was involved, dismissed the case of the state of Iowa vs. Edwin O. Rood and the others claimed the bed of Owl lake in Humboldt county, Iowa, under the swamp land act.

The postoffice at White Elm was looted a few nights ago. The safe was blown open. A quantity of stamps, money orders and money was taken. There is no clue.

The Sioux City Beet Syrup and Preserving company has increased its capitalization from $100,000 to $200,000. The additional stock is taken by the Great Western Beet Sugar company of Chicago, with which J. Hamilton Lewis, formerly of congress, from Washington, is connected. The additional $100,000 will be used to erect a glucose factory at Sioux City.

While the checking of the accounts of Waldo Miller, the ticket agent who disappeared so mysteriously from Waterloo recently, has not been completed, it is stated there is no longer any doubt but that Miller is short in his accounts, the amount being in the neighborhood of $1,000. Just what he did with the money or whether he took it away with him is unknown.

Because he repented of having leased his homestead to a young farmer, J. A. Richardson, a well to do and highly respected farmer of Linn county, committed suicide by hanging himself in his barn. He had rented the farm for the next year and then repented of his action. He offered his tenant $50 to cancel the contract and the tenant said he would accept it, but refused to take a note, saying he wanted the cash. Then Richardson hanged himself.

Lying in filth and squalor almost indescribable, the body of C. J. Pierce, a mulatto barber, was found in a basement under a bank building at Cedar Rapids. It had evidently lain there for at least thirty hours. The front part of the room was used as a barber shop and the rear part behind the pine partition, served as a kitchen, bed room and coal house combined. A revolver with one chamber emptied lay on the floor and a small bottle half filled with laudanum was also near by. There were no marks of a bullet, and the coroner decided that an inquest was not necessary.

Congressman J. A. T. Hull has announced that he has decided to recommend Richard P. Clarkson for the position of United States pension agent for the Des Moines district. The district includes the states of Iowa and Nebraska. The salary is $4,000 a year and the term of office is for four years. Mr. Clarkson will succeed E. F. Sperry, who has occupied the position for the past eight years. Richard P. Clarkson succeeded his brother "Ret" Clarkson to the position of editor of the Iowa Register ten years ago and sold out the plant recently to George F. Roberts and Samuel Strauss.

C. C. Bigler & Sons of Poweshiek county assigned for the benefit of their creditors, with liabilities of $190,000 and assets placed at $200,000. For years they have been the largest breeders of thoroughbred Shorthorn cattle in the west. Among their assets are 300 head of fine animals, the male at the head of the herd costing $15,000 a few months ago, the highest priced animal of the kind in the world. Their creditors number fifty-five, and are mostly fine stock breders in Indiana, Illinois and Iowa. The assignees are G. W. Brown of Indianola and L. A. Lind of Rolfe. Among the assets are 1,000 acres of fine land. The inability of the firm to raise ready cash to meet matured obligations was the cause. Their farm is near Victor.

It took just twenty-eight minutes for the jury in the case of Schriver Bros. vs. the Western Union Telegraph company, on trial at Fort Dodge, to decide that the telegraph company is responsible for bogus messages sent over their lines. Plaintiffs sued for $9,000 damages. The award of the jury was for $8,873, deduction being made for four cattle of the bunch which were shipped by plaintiffs to a swindler named Barnes on receipt of a false telegram. The plaintiffs were also awarded interest at 6 per cent from the time when the message was sent, March 14, 1902. The case was hard fought and its abrupt determination excited much surprise. The jury held that the defendant company did not exercise due care in assuring themselves of the authenticity of the message. The telegram, which purported to certify to the validity of checks was telephoned to the Western Union operator at Denison, Ia.

The bank of the Farmers Loan and Trust company, at Arthur, a small town seven miles east of Ida Grove was looted by burglars. The bank is a branch of the Loan and Trust company and its president is James F. Toy, with Fred J. Whinery, cashier. The interior of the bank was completely demolished as the doors were blown off both the vault and the safe. Strange to say the noise was not heard about the village. Arthur has a population of less than two hundred and has no night watch. No one slept in the bank. The robbery was not discovered until morning when Cashier Whinery opened the office and found the fixtures practically demolished and the vault and safe a total wreck. Two suspicious looking characters went down from Ida Grove to Arthur on the evening previous to the robbery. They had well filled gunny sacks, but were selling wire clothes hanges so that nothing was thought about the presence in the town. They are missing and an effort is being made to hunt them down. Cashier Whinery says the bank lost $2,300 in cash. So far as can be ascertained no private papers were taken.

At the caucus of the republican members of the Iowa congressional delegation held at Des Moines, it was the unanimous decision to support Congressman Cannon of Illinois for the speakership of the next house. Congressman Hedge acted as chairman of the caucus, which was an informal one, and was attended in person by but three members, Congressmen Hull, Hedge and Smith. An expression had been obtained, however, from every republican member of the delegation, with the exception, of course, of the democratic member, was present either in person or by proxy.

Stephen Way, a farmer, living one and a half miles east of Norwalk, was accidentally shot in the knee by William Talbott while on a duck hunting excursion. Way was taken home, and it was found necessary to amputate the leg. The injured man, however, failed to rally from the ordeal and died. He leaves a wife and five children. He was 35 years of age and had lived near Norwalk all his life.

Mayor S. S. Peirce of Knoxville had the misfortune to break his leg. He had gone out upon a porch for some water, when he stepped upon a board covered with frost and fell, breaking the bones in his leg just above the ankle.

CHAPTER XIII.—(Continued.)

"Information about what?"

"'Bout the youth as has slipped an eccentric and started to take in d' hills last winter."

In a moment Ethel was on her feet, her pretty face all glowing with interest and cried:

"Do you mean Paul—Paul Miller?"

"That's the chap whose name I was flirtin' with."

"What of him—what of him?" asked Clarence, eagerly.

"Well, we don't know; old Glum thought as how may be you better come down and interview them mummies an' see what ye can git out o' 'em."

"You say they are at Ralston's shanty?"

"Yes."

"Why didn't they come here?"

"Well, ye see, they're a little off their feed. Their peddles are bent an' their feet don't track—all from goin' over d' rocks and snow until d' skin's worn off."

Ethel seized her own and her husband's cap, saying:

"Let us hasten to Glum's shanty."

"As you say, my dear. Come, we will go at once and learn all we can."

They closed up their house, and, accompanied by Dick and Gid, hastened away toward the shanty of old Glum Ralston.

They reached the lower part of the camp, which had grown to quite a village of shanties. Great fires were blazing in pits. These were fires built to thaw the ground so the miners could dig it up and wash it.

A small knot of people were gathered in front of Glum Ralston's shanty, talking in strange whispers, nodding and gesticulating in a manner which indicated that some matter of great moment was under discussion.

Clarence and Ethel passed through the throng and entered the shanty. Here a sight met their gaze calculated to awaken their profoundest sympathy. Four dark-skinned young men whose once robust frames had been worn away to skeletons were reclining on piles of skins, filling their empty stomachs with food placed before them.

"Where are you from?" Clarence asked.

"From the island of Metlakahtla," one answered.

"Have you come direct from there?"

"No."

"Where have you been?"

"We were lost in the woods for a long time and almost perished from cold and hunger. We wanted to wait until spring, but he did not. He had been detained for so many months that he would wait no longer. He said months and years were rolling over his head since he had seen her or written to her."

"Of whom are you speaking?"

"He called himself Crack-lash."

"Paul—Paul! It is Paul!" cried Ethel, clapping her hands in delight.

"Hush, dear; let us be sure," whispered Clarence, then turned to further interrogate the stranger.

"What kind of a young man was this Crack-lash?"

"Like you, only darker; that's all."

"Well, how did he reach your island?"

"Come on an ice boat?"

"Ice boat?"

"Yes—great mountain of ice. He was on ice."

"He surely means an iceberg," said Clarence, fixing his eyes on Glum Ralston. The old man nodded his head and said:

"There ain't no doubt of it. He means an iceberg."

"If he does, then this man he calls Crack-lash is none other than Crack-lash Paul."

"You're correct, mate," Glum Ralston answered, with a nod of his head.

The Indian then took another sip or two of the soup and told how on the way they had captured one of the men who had robbed him. They had crossed a mountain range and were making their way toward the Yukon, when they were all four drawn off on a moose trail.

On their return they were unable to find neither the prisoner Crack-lash nor the mysterious captain, who had years before been on their island, but had been abducted by two of his own sailors, one of whom they had captured, and Crack-lash recognized him as one of the robbers. It was a long story, and took a long time to tell it. Paul's fate was unknown, but the chances were he was a prisoner or dead in the forest.

"Do you believe this story, Glum?" Clarence asked.

"Every word o' it is the gospel truth," he answered.

"What are you going to do?"

"I am going to look for him. I'll find him dead or alive. If dead, I'll bury him; if alive, I'll bring him home."

Clarence arose, and, taking the hand of the blunt old miner, said:

"Glum, I'll go with you."

"And her," cried Glum, nodding toward his wife.

"Oh, never mind me; never mind me," the wife quickly answered. "I can get along very well alone. I want him to go and try to find poor Paul, if such a thing is possible."

"I'll go; I'll do it," he declared.

Clarence Berry then proceeded to interrogate the Metlakahtlans, and drew from them the story in detail. Next day, in company with Ralston, he set out to find the men lost in the forest.

* * * * * * *

It had been nearly three years since Theodore Lackland had seen Paul Miller, and no wonder he failed to recognize him. Such a change had suffering and hardship marked on him that he more nearly resembled some ferocious animal than a human being. When he uttered a cry and pronounced Lackland's name that individual asked:

"Who are you?"

But he had heard that voice and knew the man. It was Paul Miller transformed into a wild man. Paul glared ferociously at the men whom he had first welcomed as friends.

"Don't come—don't approach me!" he hissed, his eyes flashing with fire. "I understand your devilish, malicious designs upon me, and I will shoot you dead if you come too close."

"I have come to find you, my dear friend. The dog courier bore the message to us that you were perishing in the woods, and we set out to find you."

Paul grew weak and dizzy, and, sitting down on the snow, gasped:

"I didn't know it would fall into your hands, or I would have perished in the woods before I sent it."

Lackland gave Cummins a wink and continued to hold the attention of Paul, while his hireling slipped behind him to attack him from the rear.

"You misapprehend us, Paul," continued Lackland. "We don't intend any harm to you. You are sick; you are almost perishing, but we want to save you."

"I don't want to be saved by such as you. Go on, I say, and I will make my way to Dawson City alone."

Cummins at this moment seized him from behind. Paul made a desperate struggle to free himself, but famine, suffering and toil had overcome him completely, and he soon lay breathless on the snow.

"I am sent by Miss Laura Kean, who is in Juneau, waiting for you, to conduct you to her."

"It's a lie! Oh, my heavens, I know it is a lie, and I am unable to resist."

The name of the woman he loved pronounced by the lips he hated most seemed to have filled him with rage, and he struggled like a madman to break away from his captors. Two more came to the assistance of Cummins, and they threw him upon the snow with such force that when they lifted his body his head fell back. Paul was insensible. The blood was trickling from a wound in his forehead, and dyeing the virgin snow.

"Thunder, I'm afraid he is dead!" Lackland declared.

They carried him down the mountain side for a mile, where there was a grove of pines, and, calling a halt, built a fire. He then sent for a sled to take the wounded man back to camp.

"Cummins," said Lackland, "now comes the finest scheming we have ever done."

"What is it?"

"We must keep them separate."

"Who?"

"The wounded man and the girl. I also want to separate the old woman from the young woman, and I think I have hit upon a scheme that will be sure to win. This fellow will need a nurse, and I will coax the old woman to stay with him."

The sled was brought and Paul, who had recovered, but was delirious, was placed on it. He had every symptom of brain fever. Lackland began to speculate on the chances of his recovery, and decided they were slim.

They conducted him to a place on the lake two miles above the present camp and set his men to work building a hut for the wounded man.

After seeing the sufferer comfortable in the rude shanty constructed for him, and setting some Indians to cutting wood to supply him, Lackland went to the camp where Laura had been left.

Then with a face deeply furrowed with anxiety he waited on Miss Kate Willis and said:

"My good woman, I came to ask a favor of you."

Kate gave him a doubting glance, and said in a snappish manner:

"What is it?"

"I almost hesitate, for the request is a serious one. We found a poor, wandering Klondyker on the mountainside, bereft of his reason and nearly dying. He needs the tender care of some kind-hearted woman to nurse him back to life."

"Where is he?" she asked, her manner at once changing.

"He is at the grove a mile or two back on this trail."

"Why didn't ye bring him here?"

"Because he is too weak to bring so far. Besides, we have built a shanty and made him as comfortable as possible."

So skillfully did he manage it that Laura was detained in the camp and Kate Willis sent flying back in her dog sled. As evening came Laura declared her intention to go to her female companion, but the rascally Esquimau, who had been posted what to do, could not catch the dogs to harness them to the sled.

She found herself alone in the camp with those strange men, and her soul was filled with dread.

But morning brought Kate back. Her heart was filled with sympathy for the unfortunate young man.

"I will go with Kate," declared Laura.

"No, no, child, the shanty ain't big enough; besides, I don't want ye to be worryin' yerself. Stay here. He'll be better soon, for I see a sign in his favor. The turnin' point is 'bout reached."

She was easily persuaded to wait another day before she called on the sick man. Laura little dreamed that the unconscious stranger whom her companion was nursing was the one her fond, loving heart longed for. Thus, in blissful ignorance of the peril of her Paul, she waited for the train to move on. She had not long to wait. Next morning, long before it was light, she was awakened by the noise of Esquimau teamsters and yelping dogs and cracking whips.

She hurriedly dressed and gazed out into the starless night. She saw angry clouds gather about the mountain peaks, and the air was full of flakes.

"Sled ready," the Esquimau chattered.

She made haste to get ready to take her place on it. All was bustle and confusion. Laura looked in vain for the face of some one she knew. For the first time in her life the face of Lackland would have been welcome.

"Where is he? Where is Lackland?" she asked.

"Um, boss gone," the Esquimau answered.

"Where is she? Where is Kate? I do not want to go without her; I will not go alone," cried Laura, begining to fear treachery.

"Holt!" shouted the Esquimau, and crack went his whip, and the dogs bounded forward like the wind.

"Stop! Hold!" she shrieked, but her voice was lost on the raging wind, and she went soaring away into the night and beating snow.

Meanwhile Paul lay on his hard pallet of skins asleep, with his faithful nurse at his side, her eyes on the face of the sufferer. He was sleeping peacefully. The fever had almost abated, and his brow was less flushed.

The woman held the lamp closer to his face and muttered:

"He is getting better."

CHAPTER XIV.

Kate for Harmony.

Morning dawned amid a raging snowstorm, but thanks to the logs and frozen mud with which the little cabin had been daubed, the patient was comfortable.

Kate brought some warm broth and gave him a few spoonfus, and he whispered:

"Where am I?"

"I don't know. Somewhere in that everlastin' cold, snowin' country called Alaska; but I couldn't give ye the metes and bounds if I was to try."

"Who are you?" he whispered.

"I'm Kate Willis, the woman that washes for a living at Seattle. I'm on my way to Klondyke to start a laundry."

"Who are you with?"

"Well, there's a hull passel in our crowd, but I don't know many o' 'em. Ye'd better be quiet, an' when yer better ye kin git acquainted with 'em."

Paul acquiesced in her plan by simply nodding his head and closing his eyes, and she resumed her work. When he awoke there was a marked change in his manner, and he was regaining his strength. She brought him, some more broth, and, after he had taken a few spoonfuls, he said:

"Did you say you came from Seattle?"

"Yes."

"Who brought me here?"

"It was the boss of the train that's goin' to the Klondyke. I reckon he'll be here after awhile an' then ye can see him yourself. I don't think ye ought to talk too much."

"Yes—I ought not. They struck me on the head."

He shut his eyes and tried to sleep and she went to the door of the little cabin. All was clear. She saw one of the Indians loitering near and called to him and ordered him to go to the next camp and ascertain what had detained the dog sled.

(To be continued.)

AN IRISH "WITCH DOCTOR."

Strange Story of Superstition That Is Vouched For.

At Ballygore police court, County Galway, Ireland, a few days ago, a "witch doctor" was charged with having obtained money by false pretenses. The accused was a small farmer in the district and the prosecuter another farmer named Moore, who had been ill. The accused met Moore and told him if he carried out his instructions he would be as sound as a rock. As a first installment he demanded about 12 shillings from Moore to get through the preliminaries and when he came to the real "cure" he said it would be necessary to have gold, silver and copper coins. The sick man provided a sovereign, a 2-shilling piece and a penny. The witch doctor then stripped him, wound him up in a sheet and placed him sitting in a chair in which were two red-hot bricks. The patient underwent terrible agony, but he bore it patiently, while the witch doctor went on his knees and uttered some unintelligible prayers. After the burning the "doctor" put the coins separately into the sick man's mouth, refusing to allow him to touch them with his hand. Then he buried the coins and told Moore he was cured, but warned him against looking for the coins, saying that if any one dug the place up they would very likely instead find a couple of "dharkdiels"—insects credited by the ignorant and superstitious with the powers of evil. The police subsequently dug up the ground where the coins were supposed to have been buried but none was found there. The prisoner was held for trial.

A Boy's Protest.

The boy was young, but he was a philosopher. He knew that the "grown-ups" did not recognize the rights of boyhood. He felt his wrongs, but he also felt the utter uselessness of struggling against the Fixed. Some day he would be as big as they. In the meanwhile it was futile to cry out against the inevitable. But one morning Hunger, the great primitive instinct before which even Philosophy shrinks and shivers, wrung from him a protest that betrayed him, showing an agitated heart beneath his calm exterior, a mind ready to revolt against the despotism of Fate. He had waited for his breakfast longer than any healthy-bodied boy should, and at last, smarting under his wrongs, said bitterly:

"If our hired man had been waiting all this time, you bet he'd have kicked."

Up or Down?

Even teachers sometimes have a sense of humor. One to whom that gift has not been denied teaches in an up-town school, says the New York Times.

Not long ago she was struggling with a class in geography.

"What is a compass?" she asked a wide-eyed child, who promptly answered, with the confident air of one who knows:

"A compass is an interment for finding directions."

The teacher gasped, but John was not detained, as were the others who answered incorrectly. For, as she smilingly remarked:

"Tradition would uphold him in his belief that at certain stages of man's development an interment is necessary to find the direction in which he is going."

"There are just two things I like about a vacation," remarked Uncle Jerry Peebles; "the goin' away and the gettin' back."—Chicago Tribune.

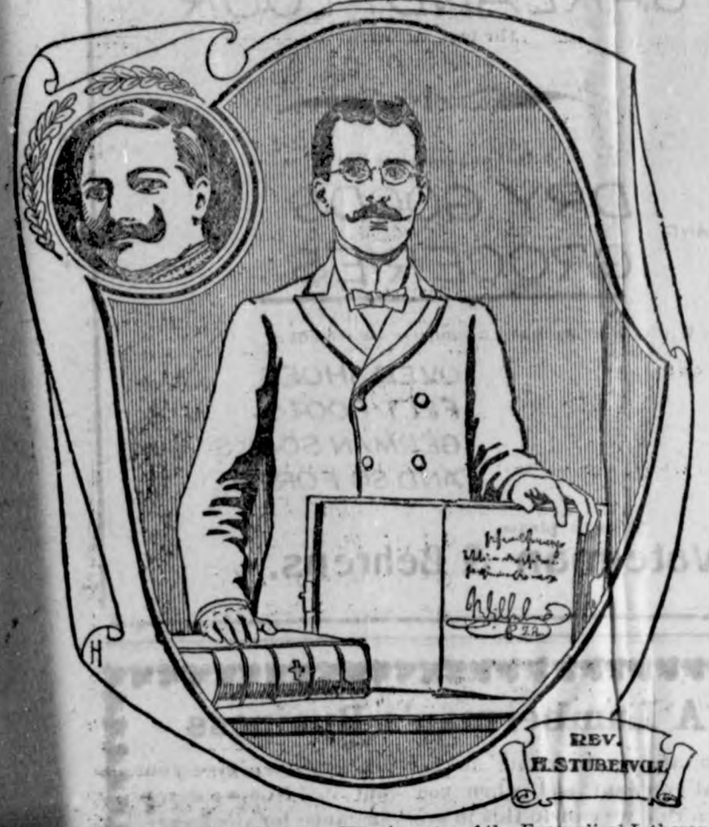
A PASTOR WHO WAS BEFRIENDED BY AN EMPEROR SAVED BY PE-RU-NA.



Rev. H. Stubenvoll, of Elkhorn, Wis., is pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran St. John's Church of that place. Rev. Stubenvoll is the possessor of two bibles presented to him by Emperor William of Germany. Upon the fly leaf of one of the bibles the Emperor has written in his own handwriting a text.

This honored pastor, in a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, says concerning their famous catarrh remedy, Peruna:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Gentlemen: "I had hemorrhages of the lungs for a long time, and all despaired of me. I took Peruna and was cured. It gave me strength and courage, and made healthy, pure blood. It increased my weight, gave me a healthy color, and I feel well. It is the best medicine in the world. If everyone kept Peruna in the house it would save many from death every year."—H. STUBENVOLL.

Thousands of people have catarrh who would be surprised to know it, because it has been called some other name than catarrh. The fact is catarrh is catarrh wherever located; and another fact which is of equally great importance, is that Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

LEVICH NOT GUILTY.

Jury In Finkelstein Murder Renders Its Verdict.

Des Moines, March 24.—"We, the jury, find the defendant, Harris Levich, not guilty."

This was the verdict by the jury in the trial of Harris Levich, charged with having murdered Isaac Finkelstein on the night of August 5.

To a reporter Levich said: "I expected it; I expected it, the jury could do nothing else. I was innocent and knew I would prove it. The jury is satisfied that I am innocent and I hope my friends and acquaintances will take their verdict as final. There was perjured testimony in the trial. I did not realize to what extent my enemies would go to punish me until I heard some of them sell their souls on the stand. It was awful. There were times when I was frightened for fear the jurors would believe their lies. I hope now that Brenton and his police officers are satisfied and that they will quit dogging me.

"They should have known that Finkelstein was my friend. Why, when they said I was quarreling with him he was using my horse, and after that time he and I had visited together. We had differences, but they did not make enemies of us. I want to see his murderers punished and if it is in my power I will bring them to justice, because I want this whole matter cleared up. As it is it has ruined me. I have got to start over again."

Levich was bitter in his denunciation of the police and expressed regret that his attorneys had not permitted him to go on the witness stand. He said that he had implored them for this opportunity, but they had advised him to keep off. He said that if he had been given the opportunity he would have told some things of his treatment at the hands of the police that would have placed the detectives in a new light. Levich threatens suits for malicious prosecution.

The disappearance of Silas Walters of Battle Crek, in Sioux City, has presented a mystery to the police which completely baffles them. Walters was prominent as an Odd Fellow, and had a large bridge building contract in Ida county. He went to Sioux City on the night of November 2. He was seen there that evening just before dark and had $200 in his pocket. Since then he has not been seen. The police believe he was murdered. Walters has a divorced wife and grown up children. He formerly lived in Washington.

James E. Knight, prominent young attorney of Dubuque, made an attempt at suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. At the time he was visiting Rev. Father Slattery at Farley. Mr. Knight has been in poor health, for some time past being unable to sleep. The wound inflicted was a serious one, and twenty-four stiches were required to close it. He just missed the jugular vein. He was taken to the hospital in Dubuque and it is thought his life will be saved. Mr. Knight is a son of W. J. Knight of Dubuque, attorney for the Illinois Central and Milwaukee roads. He has served two terms as city attorney and is prominent in legal circles.

Rev. Mr. Knapp and Leota Teana were brought home from Atlantic, where he had been arrested charged with seduction. He was placed before Justice Taylor, he waived examination and was bound over to the next grand jury in a bond of $1,000, which is not yet furnished. Miss Teana's parents say she is not quite 15 years old and has the appearance of not being older. There are vague and sensational rumors about town as to what the girl says, but nothing definite is obtainable. Mr. Knapp's wife died in Guthrie Center four or five months ago, and this girl, with another woman, has been keeping house for him and caring for the four children, the oldest about 6 years old, the youngest but a few months old.

Inquiry in the attorney general's office develops the fact that the recent decision in the United States supreme court in the case of the state of Iowa, plaintiff in error, vs. Edwin O. Rood et al. does not affect the general question of the right of the state of Iowa to the beds of meandered lakes. In this case, involving the title of the bed of Owl lake, the supreme court decided no federal question was involved, but it did not go into the merits of the question whether the state's contention is good that the title to the dried beds of meandered lakes is in the state itself. So far as this question is concerned, the decision of the state supreme court still stands, in which Judge Deemer, who wrote the opinion, held that the title to the dried beds of meandered lakes was in the state.

The worst class scrap in the history of the State University occurred a few nights ago. Several students were injured and property loss approximating $700 resulted. The local police were routed. The fight started at a freshman dance in the Imperial hotel dining room, when a sophomore threw a chunk of coal through the window. Others bombarded the hotel with eggs, broke much plate glass and demolished costly bric-a-brac. The freshmen retaliated and a sanguinary struggle commenced. The policemen clubbed J. H. King and W. M. Kaler, medical students, inflicting severe wounds when the other medical students routed the officers. Numerous revolver shots were fired, but none is believed to have taken effect. Although several students were hurt, their injuries consisted simply of contusions. Dean Curran has ordered an investigation.

A woman does not care how warm her dress is, if it looks cool.

"The new railroad has been a great blessing to us," says a rural exchange; "in less than six weeks we got enough damages out of it to build a town hall and grade the cemetery. A few more enterprises of this kind, and our town will rise to heights undreamed of in the history of new settlements!"

An inquisitive visitor to the Hampton Institute for Indians not long ago asked one of the students, a pretty Sioux: "Are you civilized?" The Sioux raised her head slowly from her work—she was fashioning a breadboard at the moment—and replied: 'No; are you?"

Love is a flower that easily fades.

A row of corn twenty-five miles long was planted last spring by a farmer in Kingman County, Kansas. It is not straight, but in circular form. He commenced in a fifty acre field and went around and around in a circle with a lister until he had planted the whole in a single row, which commences at one of the edges and terminates in the middle. When preparing the crop of course, he had to plough the same way.

DES MOINES MEN ARRESTED.

Suspected of Complicity in Rock Island Hold-Up Near Davenport.

Davenport, Nov. 24.—Five masked men, swinging switch lights, before a pile of ties, two miles west of Davenport stopped the Rock Island Kansas City express at 11:30 Friday evening and before they had left the train the express car was dynamited and a sum of money said to aggregate $20,000 was taken.

Express and railroad officials declare the loss will not reach anywhere near $20,000. One statement is that but $1,000 was taken. The safe, which was guaranteed to stand a four hours attack, yielded to two attacks with dynamite and its contents were left at the mercy of the robbers.

The Davenport police arrested Richard E. Ridley and Luther D. Hayward strangers, on suspicion, the former being shown, it is claimed, to be a bad character by letters in his possession and apparently being recently out of the penitentiary. Both came here from Des Moines. Most of the letters in their pockets were received while there.

Men supposed to be the Rock Island train robbers stole a team and wagon from William Rohmer, whose farm was reached by a mile tramp through heavy timber. The robbers drove northward on a run and near daylight passed a farm house four miles from the scene of the robbery. The farmer's description tallies with that of the trainmen.

T. W. Hoffman arrived here this afternoon from Knoxville, Ia., with a pack of bloodhounds reported to be noted thief catchers. They immediately went to the scene of the hold-up and were put on the trail of the robbers. The police at Muscatine think they had the gang in jail there a couple of weeks ago. Other parties report seeing them in the neighborhood of the scene of the robbery during the past day or two.

Engineer Sheffer stated that when he had passed the glucose works, about a mile from the depot, he saw a red light across the track. The headlight revealed a pile of ties on the track, and the red light began to swing across the track. Sheffer brought the engine to a quick stop, and the robbers, five in number, immediately took charge of the train. The engineer and firemen were covered with pistols by two robbers. The other three went to the rear express car, the third in line and ordered the brakeman to uncouple it.

The brakeman was then put on the main section of the train which was left on the track. The pile of ties was removed by the robbers and the engineer compelled to pull his train about two miles further westward where the train was stopped. The robbers then turned all of their attention to the express car. Express Messenger Gregory was then taken in charge at the point of a gun. He was placed on the sidetrack where he was kept under guard. Two men entered the car, attacked the safe, although the safe was a three foot cube provided with a time lock. The robbers used dynamite, the first charge being rather light, but the second was terrific and caused the earth to tremble. The top and side of the car were blown out and the interior of the car wrecked. The top of the safe was blown off. The men then rifled its contents and made their escape from the car, but before doing so made the train crew take the engine and cars back to the main train. They then disappeared in the darkness.

Davenport, Nov. 24.—The men who held up the Rock Island express train and broke open and cleaned out the safe in the express car just west of this city are believed to be in hiding in the Cedar river bottoms, an ideal refuge for fugitives from justice, about fifty miles northwest of here. Officers and bloodhounds have found all clues leading in that direction. The team and wagon stolen by the bandits, and with which they made their breakneck drive through the darkness toward the Cedar have not been found, and are believed to have been abandoned in the swamps.

Yesterday's sensation was caused by a telegram from the railroad agent at Buchanan, a small station on the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern that he had been held up and locked into his station by the bandits. A special train carrying a heavily armed sheriff's posse was at once rushed from Davenport to Buchanan, but before its arrival the Cedar county sheriff had captured the gang that figured in the incident. They proved to be common tramps, who had drawn a gun on the station agent when he ordered them away from the station.

The bridges and cross roads of the low lands on the Cedar are closely guarded in the hope that the robbers have not carried out their evident purpose of getting out of the neighborhood through some point on the Northwestern line. In their flight they crossed the Rock Island main line and several branches of that system, but were evidently afraid to board any of its trains.

The legal fight which has long been expected to follow the collision on the Milwaukee at Rhodes last August when fifteen or sixteen men were killed and a number of others injured, was commenced in the superior court at Cedar Rapids, when Don Barnes, the legally appointed administrator of the estates of nine of the dead men, filed damage suits aggregating $90,000 against the railway company. The estates for which the suits are commenced are those of Tom Casey, Patrick Sullivan, Henry Jackson, L. Bingham, John Allen, Mike Doyle, Mike Flynn, Richard Roe and Frank Ray. In each petition plaintiff asks judgment against defendant for the sum of $10,000 and for the costs of the action.

"She seems to have lost her head over that young man." "Yes, I saw it on his shoulder."

Largely supplied: "Are you a man of family, sir? "Yes, sir; my third son-in-law moves in today."

When Frank Buettner, a wealthy contractor, of Cleveland, Ohio, awoke on a recent morning, he missed his false teeth, and naturally inferred that he had swallowed them. He was taken to a hospital, where surgeons made incisions in his stomach, to hunt for the missing molars. Before they had sewed up the incisions, his sister-in-law rushed into the hospital, with the grinders in her hand. She found them under the bed.

Customer (emerging from bargain-counter crush)—"Help! My leg is broken!" Floorwalker—"You will find the crutch department, sir, on the fourth floor in the rear."

In Prella, Kansas, there are two John Smiths; one is long and thin, and the other is short and stout. Until lately they have been very friendly, but now they are foes. It appears that a green-goods letter came to town, addressed to John Smith, and was delivered to the fat John. After reading it, he sent it to the thin John, with the words "Opened by mistake," written on the envelope. Then the thin John walloped the fat John for the supposed insult.

When the Abbe de Voisenon, who had been unfortunate enough to offend the great Conde and lose his favor, went to court to make his peace with the offended prince, the latter rudely turned his back on him. "Thank heaven, sir," the abbe exclaimed, "I have not been misinformed; your highness does not treat me as if I were an enemy." "Why do you say that?" the prince demanded. "Because, sir," answered the abbe, "your highness never turns your back on an enemy."

The English papers tell of a young Parisian in London, visiting the "Chamber of Horrors" at Mme. Tussaud's. Being alone, he was seized with an impulse to put his neck in the lunette wherein had rested that of Marie Antoinnette. He lay down, touched a spring, and closed the collar. But how was he to release himself? If he touched the wrong spring the fatal axe might descend. Before long a crowd of visitors, led by an attendant, came on the scene. The guide was a bit of a linguist, and saw an opportunity, with himself as master of the situation. He at once began a practical lecture on the guillotine, interrupting his remarks with little asides in French to the indignant victim, asking him to scream louder or writhe more agonizingly. "How well he acts!" exclaimed the gratified onlookers. Finally the Parisian was released, and, answering the applause with maledictions, fled.

Mrs. Hildebrandt's Discovery.

Lake Sarah, Minn., Nov. 24th.—Mrs. Hildebrandt of this place claims to have discovered a complete cure for Rheumatism and numerous people can testify that as Mrs. Hildebrandt had the terrible affliction and is now a well woman, she appears to have good grounds for her claim. Mrs. Hildebrandt speaks of her cure as follows:

"I had the Rheumatism in my arms so bad that I could not sleep at night. I was induced to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and before I had taken two boxes I was much better. When I had taken four boxes I was completely cured."

It is only fair to state that others have made the same discovery as Mrs. Hildebrandt and that for Rheumatism and other diseases arising from the Kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills are recognized as the one sure and permanent cure.

When the receipts of a church fair are less than the expenses there is something wrong with the feminine attraction.

SUBSTITUTION.

Please listen to a short talk upon a most vitally important subject—one which is greatly disturbing the business world to-day.

You have doubtless heard of the word "substitution." You have probably read that "substitution is fraud." Tack that saying firmly in your mind and keep it there. It is worth something. It is true—almost invariably.

You call at a store and ask for an article of a certain brand or manufacture, one which has been thoroughly advertised for years, and which has earned an excellent reputation. The dealer says "here's something just as good for less money." That dealer thereby usually tells a direct falsehood. He knows that the article which he offers you at a lower price is inferior, but the point is that it yields him a greater profit; hence his desire to substitute.

You may ask if an article is superior just because it is advertised. Yes, it is, and here's why. The many well-known houses which spend millions of dollars every year in the good publications of the country are managed by men of brains and wide business experience, and these men know only too well that unless an article has merit there is absolutely no business sense in spending good money to advertise it. It does not pay to advertise any article of general use for a short time only. Every advertiser must wait some time before his advertising has created the desired impression and while he is waiting his goods must have time to prove whether or not they are good. If they are good, they stick; if not, they do not, and if they were not good and did not stick, would this experienced business man continue to spend good money advertising the goods—throw good money after bad as it were? Never! He has too much business sense.

The average article which you see advertised month after month in good publications is itself good. Buy an advertised article. It is the true safe way.

When you are buying ask for what you want and get what you ask for.

Remember! "Substitution is Fraud."
—Pearson's Magazine.

THE PINKHAM CURES

ATTRACTING GREAT ATTENTION AMONG THINKING WOMEN.

Mrs. Frances Stafford, of 243 E. 114th St., N.Y. City, adds her testimony to the hundreds on Mrs. Pinkham's files.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies were first introduced skeptics all over the country frowned upon their curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by the new discovery has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands, doubts and skepticisms have been swept away as by a mighty flood, until to-day the great good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her other medicines are doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, physicians and thinking people.

Merit alone could win such fame; wise, therefore, is the woman who for a cure relies upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

SYRUP OF FIGS

Acts Gently;
Acts Pleasantly;
Acts Beneficially;
Acts truly as a Laxative.

Syrup of Figs appeals to the cultured and the well-informed and to the healthy, because its component parts are simple and wholesome and because it acts without disturbing the natural functions, as it is wholly free from every objectionable quality or substance. In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal virtues of Syrup of Figs are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially.

Portable CORN CRIBS

Can be set up in ten minutes when empty can be used for chicken fence or for corn again when needed, or can be sawed into a two-foot hog fence as each section contains six cable wires, thus leaving three cables in each piece of two foot fence. This is just the thing to pen up small pigs to wean or to make a yard to feed smal chicks in.

Directions wish each crib on back of tag for setting up and making the door.

These can be set up in the field while husking or to feed out of during the winter. If wanted to store corn in, some pieces of boards or something else should be laid on the ground and the crib set on top. A covering can be made of hay with stringers to hold it on. Will also make a good grain bin if lined with straw or canvas. Tar paper laid on the bottom will keep out mice and rats. The two sections are done up in one roll. Nearly all farmers, grain dealers and storage men use them. Crib is 8 feet high 12 feet in diameter, and holds 400 bushel. It is cheap and handy

Ed. Fister will have a sale on the Wallace Carr farm six miles southeast of Garner. and six miles northeast of Klemme. He offers 10 head horses, 54 head of cattle, 52 shoats, and a complete farming outfit. Sale is to be Tuesday, 9th, commencing at Ten o'clock.

Koerner Bros. & Co. are pushing the rural telephone exchange hard and expect to have the two Germantown lines connected by the last of the week. They will then begin work on the local exchange and hope to have it in working order within a couple of weeks. This is a worthy enterprise and should receive the support of all.

Monday forenoon George Nissen put on the marble foot boards in the new bank. This work is a little out of George's line, but his natural mechanical ability enabled him to do a first-class job. George is certainly a first-class mechanic, intensely energetic. and is enjoying a lucrative trade in his blacksmith business.

As a result of an accident Henry Fuller navigates by the aid of crutches. One night a couple of weeks ago while returning from Goodell his horse ran off a bridge and upset the buggy in which he was riding. He fell several feet, the rig falling on him and quite seriously injured his hip. The night was exceedingly dark, hence the accident.

Orange Blossoms.

On Wednesday evening of this week the home of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Gibbs was the scene of one of the happiest weddings in the history of our little city. The contracting parties were Mr. F. A. Arnold and Miss Claris Gibbs. The ceremony took place at 7:00 in the presence of a large number of invited guests, and was performed by Rev. Fred Schaub, of Charles City.

The Gibbs home is lovely in all its appointments, but was rendered doubly so on this occasion by the artistic arangement of potted plants and cut flowers, and amid this bower of lovliness two of our very best young people's lives were joined till death doth them part.

About seven years ago the groom entered the banking business in our city, and has built up a business for his bank that he may well be proud of. He is a thorough business man, and a gentleman in every sense of the word. He enjoys the confidence of all and the admiration of a large circle of friends. He is a young man of splendid habits, honest and industrious, and his pleasant bearing has had much to do to make his business career the success that it has been. In short, his life has been a grand success and one that any young man may copy after and succeed. He is indeed a fit companion for any young lady.

His bride. Miss Claris Gibbs, now Mrs. Arnold, is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Gibbs, and has grown to womanhood in our midst. She is a beautiful and accomplished young lady, and her friends and admirers are only numbered by her acquaintances. We hear her spoken of as a young lady always ready to lend a helping hand to the oppressed and share their burdens of sorrow. She possesses rare traits of character seldom equalled and never excelled. She will indeed make a helpmeet for the worthy young man to whom she has given her heart.

The TIMES extends congratulations to the worthy pair, may the garlands of flowers that bedecked the room in which they vowed to love and cherish one another never lose their luster, may no thorn ever cross their path as they journey along life highway hand in hand

I have for sale in Polk county, Minn., a few quarter sections of raw prairie land, well located and of good quality, that I am offering on very easy terms and at a reasonable price. If you have $400 to $500 to pay down, you can secure a quarter section of this land, and can secure very easy terms on the balance of payments. These lands are sure to advance in value, and offer an inducement to the man seeking land for a farm as well as to the investor.

Everybody Did Dance.

On last Wednesday evening the ball that was advertised came off as per program. The night was stormy, but despite this a good sized crowd was in attendance, and everyone enjoyed themselves hugely. Had it not been for the bad night this dance would have been a record breaker. The Albert Lea orchestra furnished the music and proved themselves to be a musical organization of rare ability. They gave splendid satisfaction. Managers Bloom and Schoper promise another ball about the first of the year. With these gentlemen as managers, this promised ball will be the same as the others—a grand success.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Dec. 1, 1902.

At the meeting of the state canvassing board the official returns from the recent election were opened. The total vote this year exceeds by nearly 5,000 the vote in 1901. The republican plurality reached the high figure of 74,.14, or less than 4,000 below the plurality of Governor Cummins in 1901. The republican plurality in 1901 was the largest in the history of the state, except in 1900, and the plurality of this year is the largest with the exception of 1900 and 1901. A feature of the returns is the gain in the socialist vote, which has nearly doubled since 1901. In that year it was 3,463 on the head of the ticket. This year it is 6,360, and an increase of 2,000 more will allow the socialist ticket to go on the ballot without petition, giving the party over 2 per cent of the vote. The increase in socialist strength is in the counties where the large cities exist and where the trades and labor unions are strong. While the socialists have increased rapidly, the prohibitionists have declined, in comparison with 1901. Their vote in 1901 on governor was 15,608. This year it is 9,816. The prohibitionists, however, still have more than 2 per cent of the vote and are entitled to a place on the ballot without petition.

The portrait of Dr. William Salter, pastor of the First Congregational church of Burlington, was presented to the state historical department on the 24th. The presentation was marked by simple but impressive services, and was witnessed by about 100 spectators who were assembled in the art room of the historical building, where the portrait was unveiled. The portrait was the gift of citizens of Burlington, where Dr. Salter is best known and most highly honored and where he has for more than fifty-six years occupied without a lapse the pulpit of the First Congregational church, which he first entered March 15, 1846. The address of presentation was made by Hon. Frank Springer of Las Vegas, New Mexico, son of Judge Francis Springer, who was a close friend of Dr. Salter. Governor Cummins accepted the portrait in behalf of the state. Dr. A. L. Frisbie of Plymouth Congregational church here presided.

A part of the railroads are behind on their reports to the executive council showing the different classes of gross earnings. Under regulations adopted by the council early this year monthly reports were required on the different classes of gross earnings. A part of the companies are reporting regularly, but others are delinquent.

An examination of the election returns shows that the congressional ticket ran over 6,000 votes behind the head of the state ticket in the entire state. Secretary Martin's vote was in excess of the republican congressional vote in the different districts as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| First district | 383 |
| Second district | 592 |
| Third district | 642 |
| Fourth district | 1,228 |
| Fifth district | 327 |
| Sixth district | 727 |
| Seventh district | 1,276 |
| Eighth district | 114 |
| Ninth district | 96 |
| Tenth district | 193 |
| Eleventh district | 626 |

The difference in the vote is ascribed to the fact that the democrats made their chief effort on congressmen.

The highest scoring bird at the exhibition of the Des Moines Chicken Fanciers' Association was a handsome jet black Minorca pullet, the property of G. M. Hol, 614 Lyon street. The bird scored 96¼. This is a remarkably high score, and the bird is as high bred as it is possible to produce Mr. Hol also as a number of hens which score very high and carried off prizes at the show.

At the present time there is over $38,000 in outstanding checks that have been drawn by E. F. Sperry as pension agent at Des Moines and sent to pensioners who have failed to get the same cashed. In view of the change in the agency, to take effect January 1st, it is desirable that all of these checks be sent in for payment so that the accounts can be more easily adjusted at the end of the present year.

Police Judge Silvari dismissed the contempt case against Chief of Police Brackett, pending in his court. "I am bound to accept the excuse of the chief," said the court. "He swears in his showing that he knows nothing of the existence of the disorderly house against which I ordered him to file an information. I admit that I have not the power to compel him to swear to something of which he says he has no knowledge. I contend I have the power to compel him or any other officer of the department to file an information against person or places the facts of whose offenses he or they know. But if they come in and declare that they do not know, then I cannot require them to swear to the information."

A double header crashed into the caboose of a freight train at Dodson, on the north end of the I. & M. division of the Northwestern, creating great damage. Both engines were smashed into scrap iron and the caboose and freight cars into kindling wood. Fortunately no one was killed, but Fireman Martin of Mason City and a couple of traveling men were seriously injured.

He (to himself)—"There! All on account of my beastly temper, I suppose I've gone and said too much." She (to herself)—"Oh, dear! If I hadn't lost my temper, I might have said ever so much more."

Elderly maiden (out rowing with a possible suitor and her little sister, who is frightened by the waves)—"Theodorn, if you are so nervous now what will you be at my age?" Little sister (meekly)—"Thirty-seven, I suppose."

In the rural districts of Australia many of the horses wear cowhide shoes.

Though you lead a man to water, you can't make him drink.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Dec. 1.—The family of General Lew Wallace are quite alarmed over an illness with which he has been suffering. He is confined to his bed. The trouble started with a diseased tooth, but has developed until the general is in quite a weakened condition.

What Has Been Going on During the Past Week.

WILD RUN OF STREET CAR

Becomes Uncontrollable on a Steep Hill at Des Moines and Dashes Into a Drug Store in the Business Center, Injuring Eighth Passsengers.

Des Moines, Nov. 28.—Eight persons were injured in a street car wreck at Sixth and Locust streets yesterday morning at 8:15 o'clock, the climax of a mad race down the long Sixth avenue hill of a loaded street car over which all control had been lost and which was going at the rate of at least a mile a minute when it struck the curve at Locust street, leaped from the rails, crushed its own and the side of another car by colliding with it, broke into two pieces a telephone pole standing at the corner and came up with a crash and collapse directly in front of the Lawrence drug store on the sidewalk.

One of the eight injured is in a precarious condition. She is Helen Frawley, the 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Frawley of 1403 Eighth street. Her skull was fractured and she was injured internally. Her mother was with her on the car and was herself painfully injured, her lower jaw bone being broken on the right side and her face being terribly lacerated. Mrs. Frawley fainted as the car reached about the half way point in its point, but clung to her little daughter, whom she had gathered in her arms.

Eben E. Bradley of 1710 Seventh street wrenched off the gates of the front platform of the car, on which he was riding, and essayed to leap from the flying coach. This was at about the Victoria hotel. He struck on his head and it was feared that the skull was fractured or at least that concussion of the brain would result.

None of the others was seriously injured. There were eighteen passengers on the car, residents of North Des Moines. The motorman, William M. Kline, stood at his post until hurled from the car when it struck the telephone pole within fifteen feet of its collapse. He has received the warmest praise, both from the officers of the street car company and the passengers who witnessed his marvelous display of grim courage.

Des Moines, Nov. 29.—Little Helen Frawley, the 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Frawley of 1403 Eighth street who was injured in the street car wreck at Sixth and Locust street Thanksgiving morning, died at Mercy hospital at 6 o'clock yesterday.

IOWA HAS A DISTILLERY.

Interesting Revelation in Report of Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The annual report of the commisioner of internal revenue, includes some figures of interest to Iowa.

Under the heading "distilleries" Illinois looms up with long and wide columns of figures, while Iowa is on record as possessing a single distillery. This is doubtless one more than the average Iowan supposed existed in the state, although the memory of the "great distillery" is still fresh. It appears that Iowa's solitary distillery is a concern which manufactures, exclusive, fruit brandy. The report does not indicate the location of the distillery, but gives the information that during the fiscal year the total output reached the enormous quantity of 136 gallons. While it may be said that no more spirits were distilled in Iowa during the year, 106,000 gallons were imported into the the state and rectified.

It appears that Iowa has twenty-one rectifiers engaged in taking the raw product from the still and converting it into the finished article. There are 4,418 retail dealers in liquors and 74 wholesale dealers. Twenty-four breweries are in operation and 665 dealers in malt goods and 500 wholesalers. The approximate value of the malt liquors produced was $305,000.

The tobacco industry flourishes in Iowa. The figures are: Fine cut tobacco produced, 22,750 pounds; smoking, 540,000; snuff, 130. Manufacturers of tobacco, 110; cigar factories, 667. During the year 1,707,560 pounds of tobacco were used in the manufacture of 95,000,000 cigars.

Iowa has one factory producing what is known as mixed flour. The output of the mill is not indicated, but the amount of tax paid was $200.10.

The record shows that $636 was paid by Iowa on account of oleomargarine during the year, divided $600 for manufacturer and $36 for retail dealers, of which latter there were two. It appears from these figures that one Iowa concern has been producing oleo and that two retailers have been dispensing the compound. There are no wholesalers in the state.

During the year 73 suits were begun by United States district attorneys. Of these 35 were decided in favor of the United States and only two adversely. Twenty-six suits were either dismissed or abandoned; 10 are now pending. Fines, recovered $1,000. Seizures of property on account of violation of internal revenue laws: spirits, 688 gallons, valued at $959; beer valued at $1,600.

MUST PAY $24,895.53

Geo. Reed Admits Judgment To That Amount.

Des Moines, Nov. 26.—The case of the United States against George A. Reed, former quartermaster of the Fifty-first Iowa regiment, was settled by stipulation in the district court yesterday, the defendant agreeing to admit judgment in the sum of $24,895.53.

The petition in the case was filed April 29, 1901, and the suit at the time created something of a sensation. Mr. Reed was quartermaster of the Fifty-first regiment during the Philippine war and went with it to San Francisco. While there, it was claimed, he gave out the supplies of the regiment promiscuously and failed to take vouchers in return. When his time came for settling with the government he had nothing to show for the supplies that had been entrusted to him. The original suit was commenced to recover $22,442.14. After the commencement of the action Mr. Reed made strenuous but unavailing efforts to secure his vouchers and the trial of the action was postponed a number of times to enable him to get them. He was finally unsuccessful and the stipulation just filed is the result. No allegation of dishonesty was made in the case.

LOSS MAY BE $100,000.

Railway and Express Officials Withholding Facts.

Des Moines, Nov. 28.—Remarking upon the hackneyed statement by railroad and express officers, upon being informed of train robberies that the robbers got nothing and had their trouble for their pains, a well known banker of this city said, while discussing the hold-up of the Rock Island train near Davenport last Friday night:

"If the men who held up that train got only $25,000, they did a poor job, notwithstanding denials of the express officials that all there was in the safe were a package of municipal bonds, a number of certified pay checks and a quantity of jewelry. That train carries money for Rock Island, Davenport, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Topeka, El Reno and Ft. Worth. I would not be at all surprised if the actual loss, if ever learned by the public, will exceed $100,000. I recall a similar incident in which a Northwestern train was held up a short distance out of Chicago a year or two ago. The first I learned of the robbery was from the Leader, which contained an account of it. The telegraphic account stated that the loss would not be more than $20,000. The extras of the evening papers contained telegrams reducing the loss to $10,000. Now, what was the actual loss? I do not know, but I have a distinct recollection of the agent for the express company coming to our bank the next morning and asking if we had received a package containing $20,000 in cash. I supposed we had, but upon asking one of the clerks, I was told the package did not arrive.

"'Well,' remarked the agent in a whisper, 'you'll not get that package. The train was held up last night and your package was one of several others.'

"According to the reports of the express and railroad officials the loss was only $10,000. Yet our bank had a package for twice that amount taken. The train carries money for Clinton, Cedar Rapids, Boone, Council Bluffs, Sioux City and Omaha. The $20,000 consigned to our bank was twice the sum reported to have been taken. If the company lost $20,000 for Des Moines alone, what do you suppose was the actual loss? Perhaps $100,000 when it is considered that banks in each of the cities I have named had similar packages consigned to banks located in even two or three of them. It would not be at all surprising, if the facts could be learned, that the robbers who held up the Rock Island train the other night secured nearer $50,000 or $75,000 than a few municipal bonds and several articles of jewelry."

GIFT TO CITY OF CLERMONT.

Ex-Governor Larrabee Gives Splendid Bronze Statue of Lincoln.

Decorah, Dec. 1.—There has been erected in the little park opposite the railroad station at Clermont one of the finest monuments in the state, the gift of ex-Governor Larrabee to his home town. The monument, statue and historic bronze tablet cost more than $5,000. This work is of more than ordinary interest from the fact that it has been constructed under the almost personal supervision of the governor and his own ideas. The heroic figure of Abraham Lincoln standing 7 feet 6 inches, and the four tablets, all in imperishable bronze, were executed by Bissell, the noted New York sculptor, and are worthy of especial note. Mr. Lincoln holds in his hand the emancipation proclamation and he looks as though he meant every word of it. The tablet on the west is a reproduction of the room and the group of all those assembled in the McLane house at Appomattox accepting Lee's surrender. The tablet on the east represents "leaving the war," the central figure in the bas-relief being Thomas Henderson, brother of Col. D. B., who was killed at Shiloh. The tablet on the north is a scene at Pittsburg Landing. In the foreground is a surgeon from Clermont, the late Dr. Lewis, in attendance on a wounded soldier; while at the head of his company is another Clermont hero, Captain Warner, who died rather than surrender. The south tablet is a scene on board the flagship Hartford in Mobile bay, Admiral Farragut lashed to the rigging and the then Lieut. George Dewey in charge of a gun crew. The relief for this grand monument were planned by the governoor and the inscriptions selected by him; and taken altogether we doubt whether there is another monument in this country containing so much of local interest. The pretty park in which the monument is located is ornamented at each corner by a piece of heavy ordnance such as was used in the civil war.

GOT HER $30,000.

Unknown Daughter Who Claimed Bennett Estate Takes Her Own.

Webster City, Nov. 30.—Mr. and Mrs. John T. Britt of Helena, Mont. has arrived in the city and expect to remain several weeks looking after the property given Mrs. Britt by the courts, belonging to her father, the late Reuben Bennett. The case is a familiar one, by which this daughter, unknown to the resident heirs, appeared upon the scene shortly after his death and brought suit for possession of his prooperty. The case was tried in the district court here and Mrs. Britt won. An appeal was taken to the supreme court, and the decision of the lower court was sustained. A rehearing was asked for, which the supreme court refused to grant, and, so far as the law is concerned, the case is at an end.

Mr. and Mrs. Britt will now go before the district court for a settlement with Dr. O. A. Hall, the administrator, and take possession of the property. The estate is valued at between $25,000 and $30,000, and consists of 400 acres of choice farm lands in the vicinity of this city, all of which goes to Mrs. Britt by the decree of the court.

GAMBLERS ADMIT DEFEAT.

Cannot Remain Open Under Public Exposure.

Des Moines, Nov. 26.—The gamblers of Des Moines have closed their doors and attribute their defeat to the fight waged against them by the Des Moines Daily and Sunday News and other Des Moines news papers. No unusual legal or official proceedings were had, but the gambling dens simply could not stand the publicity thrown upon them by the press. The immense circulation of the News, now close to 40,000, makes it a great power in local and state affairs. Its large circulation is partly due to its low subscription price of $1.50 a year for both its daily and Sunday editions. The News is probable the only daily in the state which is always stopped when the time is out. It publishes the full Associated Press dispatches, including daily markets by wire.

CHAPTER XIV.—(Continued.)

The fellow set off at a lively pace on his snowshoes and in an hour and a half was back, saying:

"They be not there."

"What d'ye mean?" asked Kate.

"Gone."

"What is gone?"

"Camp."

"Where?"

"Dun know," and he shrugged his shoulders again.

She was nonplussed and in fact frightened.

"Gone!" she whispered, half aloud. "Gone and left me alone with this sick man in this wilderness! Gone, and with that poor child. Why, I can't hardly believe it, and yet my heart has always told me th' rascal was a villain. Oh, Laura, Laura! where are you now, my poor child?" she began to sob. "I promised ye I'd stay by ye through thick un' thin, an' I've gone an' lied to ye. That rascal put this poor sick man on me, an' what could I do?"

In her helpless rage she looked about for some object to vent her wrath upon, and seeing Horsa Cummins emerging from the small tent in which he had slept, she rushed at him like a virago, saying:

"You red-headed thief, where is yer master? I say, where is yer master? Speak or I'll chuck yer head in the snow an' hold it there till ye smother."

With a look of surprise he said:

"Why, I did not know he had gone."

"He is, and took my little friend with him."

"Well, that is strange; that beats anything I ever heard! What can he mean?"

"I don't know, but there is some mischief in it, and I'll be bound you are at the bottom o' it."

"Why, my dear good woman, you do me a very great injustice," began Cummins with mock humility.

"Look here!" she yelled. "Don't ye come none o' yer monkey-doodle business around me, for I won't stand it. Rack out an' find that good-for-nuthin' master o' yours, and tell him t' bring that girl back or I'll make Alaska so hot for you the icebergs will melt!"

With this threat Kate turned and entered the shanty.

"That woman's a regular she tiger!" growled Cummins, as he walked over the hill. Once out of her sight he sat down in the snow to think the matter over. "Blame me if she ain't a perfect devil of a woman. The boss has put a hard job on me. She knows I had a hand in it. Now the youngster don't show any signs o' dyin' very fast. I wish he would, but he don't. What am I to do with this tiger cat? She'll snatch my eyes out if I go back."

Meanwhile Kate went into the small shanty, vowing she would have harmony or know the reason. Her patient was wide awake, his great, dark brown eyes on the door. For the first time Kate realized that he was a young man and quite handsome.

"Were you talking to some one out there?" he asked.

"Yes; I was just a-layin' one o' them triflin' critters for not attendin' to his work. I give him a piece of my mind and I reckon after this he'll know what's what!" Kate declared.

"Don't your people agree?"

"Yes; all agree with each other, but none don't agree with me. They go do things, without askin' me or consultin' me a bit more'n if I was a block o' stone, and had no more sense'n a Kansas badger."

Paul, who felt considerably stronger, raised himself on his elbow and asked:

"What have they done, my good friend, without consulting you?"

"Pulled up stakes an' gone! Yes, gone, an' not left a sled nor dog to foller 'em with. I don't keer so much so fur as I'm concerned, but that poor child all alone with that man; and she told me with her own mouth she mistrusted him, and I said I'd stand by her, and, like a lunk-head, let 'em side-track me off here and then he slopes an' takes the pore little thing with him! Oh, it makes me hot; but I'll have harmony yit; see if I don't!"

"What do you mean, my good woman?" Paul asked in amazement. "Who is this man that deceived you?"

"That scamp from Fresno called Lackland!"

"Lackland from Fresno!" The patient started up in bed staring at her. "Who is the poor young thing he took away—the girl?" asked the patient, seizing her arm in a vice-like grip.

"Laua Kean."

With a wild shriek he leaped half-dressed from the bed and rushed from the shanty.

CHAPTER XV.

The Old Man of the Mountains.

Long after day had dawned the little train of porter Indians, dogs and sleds, continued their way over the snow. Laura protested against this separation from her friend, but it was all in vain.

When the tents were pitched Laura met Lackland and asked:

"Where is my companion, Kate Willis, from whom you promised I should not be separated?"

"She is back with the sick man," he answered. "It was our wish to bring her, but the storm came up so sudden that we had no time to send for her."

"Can you not do it now?"

He shook his head and said the avalanche had fallen in the pass behind them and they were completely shut in where there were.

"Will there be no escape?" she asked.

"Not until spring unless we can cut our way through."

Laura went to her tent and wept. She realized how helpless she was and began to distrust the man who professed to be her friend.

"Oh, God," she groaned, "to Thee alone can I now appeal for help! I need expect none from these men."

Mr. Lackland seemed very much distressed that she was cut off from her female companion, and selected four men to go back, as he said, and bring her over the fallen avalanche if possible. The four selected were Ben Allen, Morris, Ned Padgett and Tom Ambrose. When Lackland took them apart, to give his final instructions, he said:

"Take the woman and wounded man back to Skaguay."

"What! An' have him hang us for holdin' him prisoner in the mountains?" asked Allen.

"But he is insane. You are four witnesses to one."

Ned shrugged his shoulders and muttered something about never wanting to see Skaguay, especially while their late prisoner lived.

"Very well, then, start with them toward Skaguay, but don't reach the place. Become lost. You understand how to do that. At least he must not know anything of the young woman here, and she must have no knowledge that Paul Miller is alive."

His final instructions were so clear and imperative there could be no possible mistaking them, and when he had finished they took their departure. The story about the avalanche falling in their rear and blocking up the way was all a clever invention on the part of Mr. Lackland.

Lackland went to Laura's tent, his white face wearing a careworn and troubled look. The lines of his features seemed more deeply drawn and his face was expressive of the greatest concern.

"Laura—Miss Kean," he began, in his cautious, considerate manner, "I hope you will believe me when I say that this lamentable accident causes me unaccountable annoyance on your account. When awakened in the night with the intelligence that a storm was coming and the pass would be impassable, I decided that for you I must act at once. If we were aboard a sinking ship and I should rescue you and take you ashore, would you deem it an act of hostility because I did not wait for some companion of yours?"

She bowed her head and was silent. In argument, the subtle villain always beat her, but when left to herself to con over what he had said and commune with her own heart, she instinctively felt the man was a villain. Intuition, or whatever you may choose to call it, told Laura her lover lived. She was conscious of his presence somewhere in this vast world, and felt as instinctively drawn to him as the needle to the magnet.

Days passed and the small party was still in the valley, hemmed in by the mountains and eternal snows. Lackland made frequent visits to Laura after despatching the four men to give an account of their progress in cutting their way through the pass.

"Laura," he said, in a low gentle tone, which would have thrilled any other woman, "I have tried to hope against hope for your sake. I have tried to believe your lover lived, but I must yield to facts. All this journey, hardship and suffering, this passing the winter in an Alaskan wilderness is to no purpose."

"Is it not?"

"Laura, are you very strong?"

She gave him a swift, wild look—an imploring glance and gasped:

"What do you mean?"

"Can you bear a great shock?"

"What shock—what is it—speak out, I beseech you!"

"Paul is dead!"

"It is false!"

"It is true!"

"What evidence have you?"

"The evidence of men who saw him die. He died three weeks ago!"

His face was so white, he expressed such concern, that she was strongly impressed with his manner, yet she cried:

"What you say can't be true! My heart tells me he lives."

Nevertheless, her eyes grew dim with tears, which trickled adown her damask cheeks. Lackland, for several moments overcome with his own emotions, at last said:

"Laura, it's your noble, sanguine nature—which I admire—that makes you hope against hope. But, alas! it is useless for you to feed yourself on hopes longer. I know it must be true, for men whose word I cannot doubt tell me, and it must be true. But Laura, whatever may happen, believe me, I will ever be your friend. Let me weep with you over your loss!"

"Don't, don't talk so! You frighten me!" she gasped.

"Frighten you, darling?" he whispered. "Frighten you? Oh, if you know the pangs of this heart—if you only knew how tenderly devoted I am to you; if you only knew how willingly I would change places and lie in the unknown mountain tomb until the sounding of that great trump which shall wake the dead, you would not have the least cause for fear."

"Hush—hush! Don't talk so!"

She was stunned and confused by his impassioned speech. Poor girl, alone in an unknown forest, with a madman—no wonder she was frightened.

She had started up from the camp stool and taken a step toward the door of the tent as if she would fly, but he quickly put himself before her and said:

"No, no; don't leave me, dearest, I will not harm you. I will not touch you. I only want to say one word. When convinced our poor, dear Paul is no more, will you, oh, will you look with more favor on my suit?"

She found her voice now. The words—the stinging insult fired her soul—and in a voice in which grief, rage and disgust were strangely blended, she cried:

"No, no—a thousand times no! If it was for this you have followed me across the ocean and wilderness you can go—yes, go! I will have no more to say to you—go!"

Drawing herself up to her full height, with all the scorn which an injured soul can depict in a handsome face, she pointed toward the door of the tent. Unable to stand before the proud, defiant creature whom he had in his grasp, he started toward the door of the tent, when one of the strangest figures either had ever seen, entered.

It was a man fully fifty years of age, his long, white hair and beard evidently many years strangers to either razors, scissors, combs or brushes. In his hand the old man carried a Winchester rifle, the butt of which he placed on the ground, while he leaned on the muzzle, and fixed his curious eyes on the man before him. So piercing was that glance that it seemed to penetrate the very soul of the scoundrel.

The old man might have been taken for a Rip Van Winkle, but for the fact that his arms were all of the latest improvement. Advancing a pace or two and pausing, he leaned on his rifle, glancing from first one and then the other, but uttered not a word.

After a moment's amazed silence Lackland gasped:

"Who in Satan's name are you?"

"The old man of the mountains," was the answer, in a low husky voice, which seemed to chill the blood in the veins of the rascally Lackland. There was firmness in the voice, a steady gleam in the eye, which indicated he had met a man whom it would not do to trifle with.

"Where did you come from?" asked Lackland, quaking.

"From the mountain," was the answer.

"What are you doing here?"

Without paying any heed to him, the old man of the mountains, none other than our hermit friend, the captain, turned his eyes upon Laura and asked:

"Are you going to the Klondyke?"

"I was going," she answered.

"And alone?"

"A woman companion was with me, but she remained back on the trail twenty-five miles, and an avalanche has filled the trail, so she cannot come."

"There has been no avalanche," the old man answered, in his deep voice; "There has been no avalanche!"

He quickly fastened her gaze upon the face of Lackland, who began to retreat toward the door.

"So you have deceived me, monster!" she began.

"If you listen to that old fool you will believe anything. He is crazy!" cried Lackland, and darted from the tent, leaving Laura alone with the old man of the mountains.

CHAPTER XVI.

Driven to Desperate Straits.

Once outside the tent, Lackland was like one dazed and confused. He saw a figure coming toward him and recognized it as one of his men. He hurried toward him, saying:

"Cummins, you have come at last?"

"Yes; they relieved me and told me to report here. Right glad I am of it, too, for if ever there was a fiend in woman form it's that tarmagant down there."

(To be continued.)

LONG LIFE AND A MERRY ONE

Strenuous Americans Outlive the Indolent Africans.

It seems that we are all wrong about the hurtful and life-shortening effect of American "hustle." Our national motto may be said to have been "A short life, but a strenuous one." We were willing, as a people, to have the span shortened a little if only we could have something worth while, something active and effective, going all the time. But it seems, according to the latest bulletin of the census bureau, that the fast life is also the long one, says Harper's Weekly. Our "median age"—that is, the age which is such that half the population is under it and half over it—is more than seven years greater than it was a century ago, and increases from decade to decade. We are surpassing easy-going foreign countries in this respect; we are surpassing even the loose-jointed, indolent, beautifully relaxed, never-worrying African in our midst; for whereas the median age of our American whites is 23.4 years, that of the devil-may-care colored person is but 18.3. Lately much confusion has arisen in the minds of many Americans over the statement made by certain eminent neurologists that it is next to impossible for a man to "overwork," provided his bodily functions are kept in good order by temperate and wholesome living. Other physicians, to be sure, tell us that hurry and worry spell death. We had accepted the latter judgment, with the qualifying reflection that no matter what science tells us, it always seems to have "another think coming." This census bulletin which links the long life with the fast one appears to be the other "think."

QUEER PEOPLE OF THE WORLD

Definitions Unfamiliar to Most Geographical Students.

If a person were confined to one text-book, the best one to choose would be a dictionary, since it gives an inkling of every art, science or profession known to mankind. A study of the dictionary is always interesting and instructive, and a simple turning of its pages will acquaint us with many things of which we have never previously heard. Notice what a fund of information is contained in the following definitions:

Amphiscians are the people who inhabit the tropics, whose shadows in one part of the year are cast to the north and in the other to the south, according as the sun is north or south of their zenith.

The Antiscians are the inhabitants of the earth living on different sides of the equator, whose shadows at noon are cast in contrary directions. Those living north of the equator are antiscians, to those living south of that line, and vice versa. The shadows on one side are cast toward the north and upon the other toward the south.

The Ascians are the people who live in a land where, at a certain time of each year, they have no shadows at noon. All the inhabitants of the torrid zone are Ascians, they having a vertical sun twice a year.

The Periscians are the inhabitants of the polar circle, whose shadows, during some portions of the summer, must in the course of the day move entirely around and fall toward every point of the compass.

The womanly woman is born—not made. She is not only good, but good for something.

IRONING A SHIRT WAIST.

Not infrequently a young woman finds it necessary to launder a shirt waist at home for some emergency when the laundryman or home servant cannot do it. Hence these directions for ironing the waist: To iron summer shirt waists so that they will look like new it is needful to have them starched evenly with Defiance starch, then made perfectly smooth and rolled tight in a damp cloth, to be laid away two or three hours. When ironing have a bowl of water and a clean piece of muslin beside the ironing board. Have your iron hot, but not sufficiently so to scorch, and absolutely clean. Begin by ironing the back, then the front, sides and the sleeves, followed by the neckband and the cuffs. When wrinkles appear apply the damp cloth and remove them. Always iron from the top of the waist to the bottom. If there are plaits in the front iron them downward, after first raising each one with a blunt knife, and with the edge of the iron follow every line of stitching to give it distinctness. After the shirt waist is ironed it should be well aired by the fire or in the sun before it is folded and put away, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

WONDERFUL WORK.

Case No. 18,977.—David M. Bye, P. O. Address, Box 297, Midland, Mich., says: "Three months I was almost incapacitated from labor; could not sleep at night; had to walk the floor, owing to terrible pain in the hips, in the small of the back, in my instep and ankle of the right leg.

I was treated for sciatic rheumatism in the hospital, but received no benefit. One month ago I returned home and was given a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. To-day residents of this city can bear witness to the fact that I am able to work, and can also walk to my work without the aid of a walking-stick or crutch.

In speaking of the immediate effect of Doan's Kidney Pills, I did not find them to deaden the pain, but quickly and surely to eradicate the cause of it.

I am of the opinion that Doan's Kidney Pills are the best remedy for kidney ailments that can be procured.

I was especially careful in my diet, in order to give the treatment fair play.

In conclusion, I shall be pleased, at any time, to answer any inquiries regarding my case, from anyone desirous of obtaining it."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Bye will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

Archbishop Ryan, visiting a small parish in a mining district for the purpose of administering confirmation, asked one nervous little girl what matrimony was, and she answered that it was "a state of terrible torment which those who enter it are compelled to undergo for a time to prepare them for a brighter and better world." "No, no," remonstrated the pastor; "that isn't matrimony, that's the definition of purgatory." "Leave her alone," said the archbishop; "maybe she's right. What do you or I know about it?"

Fibroid Tumors Cured.

A distressing case of Fibroid Tumor, which baffled the skill of Boston doctors. Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, Mass., in the following letter tells how she was cured, after everything else failed, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Hayes' First Letter Appealing to Mrs. Pinkham for Help:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been under Boston doctors' treatment for a long time without any relief. They tell me I have a fibroid tumor. I cannot sit down without great pain, and the soreness extends to my spine. I have bearing-down pains both back and front. My abdomen is swollen, and I have had flowing spells for three years. My appetite is not good. I cannot walk or be on my feet for any length of time. The symptoms of Fibroid Tumor given in your little book accurately describe my case, so I write to you for advice." —(Signed) Mrs. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St., (Roxbury) Boston, Mass.

Note the result of Mrs. Pinkham's advice—although she advised Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, to take her medicine—which she knew would help her—her letter contained a mass of additional instructions as to treatment, all of which helped to bring about the happy result.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Sometime ago I wrote to you describing my symptoms and asked your advice. You replied, and I followed your directions carefully, and to-day I am a well woman.

"The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound entirely expelled the tumor and strengthened my whole system. I can walk miles now.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth five dollars a drop. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors or any trouble of any kind to give it a faithful trial."—(Signed) MRS. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St., (Roxbury) Boston, Mass.

Mountains of gold could not purchase such testimony—or take the place of the health and happiness which Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought to Mrs. Hayes.

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for all the distressing ills of women; all female troubles; tumors; inflammations; ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb; backache; irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation. Surely the volume and character of the testimonial letters we are daily printing in the newspapers can leave no room for doubt. Mrs. Hayes at her above address will gladly answer any letters sick women may write for fuller information about her illness. Her gratitude to Mrs. Pinkham and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so genuine and heartfelt that she thinks no trouble is too great for her to take in return for her health and happiness.

Truly is it said that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing so many women, and no other medicine; don't forget this when some druggist wants to sell you something else.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

IS THE OLDEST CLERK.

A Kentucky Man Who Has Held Office for 66 Consecutive Years.

Richard White of Kentucky is the oldest clerk in the executive department in Washington, according to a correspondent of the Cleveland Plain Dealer. With the exception of a postmaster in New York state, who has held his office for 74 consecutive years, White is believed to be the oldest man in point of service, as well as in years, in the federal employ. He was appointed in 1836, and therefore has spent 66 years in the service of the government. He was a personal friend of Henry Clay, and the letter of Mr. Clay to President Andrew Jackson, recommending the appointment of "my dear friend, Richard White," is on file in the treasury department.

Mr. White was born in 1814, and thus has passed the Biblical term of human life by 18 years. In addition to his record of long continuous service, he holds another record that is without parallel. Nearly every government clerk takes the full 30-day annual leave of absence authorized by law, and the majority of them also take advantage of the 30-day sick leave in each year. In all his experience Mr. White has never exceeded 10 days in his absence from the department in any one year. Throughout his remarkable career he has been employed in the office where the accounts of the postoffice department are audited. He was appointed at a salary of $640 a year. For a brief time he drew $1,000 a year, but five years ago, because of growing feebleness, he was reduced to $840.

Auditor Castle, in whose department Mr. White is employed, says the veteran does his work to the satisfaction of his chiefs in spite of his great age. While no civil pension list is maintained by Uncle Sam, it is safe to say that Richard White will be assured of remaining on the government pay roll as long as he lives.

A EUROPEAN PRACTICAL JOKE.

All Right in Theory, but Somewhat Dangerous in Practice.

Here is a practical joke which is now causing much amusement in Europe. As you walk along a street with some friend say to him: "You see that man in front of us? Well, I'll bet you $5 that I'll knock his hat over his ears."

Your friend will naturally accept your wager, and all you have to do is to step up behind the unsuspecting man and hit his hat such a blow with your fist that it will come down over his eyes. Ten to one he will begin to fume and swear like a trooper, and while he is struggling to get his hat back into its former position, you must pull your own hat down over your eyes, just as though someone had subjected you to similar treatment.

As a result, when he turns around to attack you, he will conclude that you, too, have been insulted by some one, and the next minute both of you will be looking in every direction for the ruffian who has damaged your hats and disturbed your temper.

Then you will condole with each other for a few minutes, after which you will rejoin your friend and demand the $5 you have won.

Men and Women.

Men lie more about big matters; women about trivial affairs. A man may lie about his business schemes, but he is incapable of buying a suit of clothes at a cheap place, taking off the tag and sewing on the mark of a swell tailor; that's a woman's trick. A man may lie about politics—there have been instances—but never about a dab of powder on the end of his nose.

Many men consider it perfectly legitimate to lie to women. They look upon women as mere puppets created for their diversion. They do not credit them with brains or hearts. And so they lie to them—early and often. They lie about everything, but especially about their love.

It is the easiest thing in the world for a liar to say: "I love you."

Wise is the woman who takes that declaration not too seriously. For it is from those three little words that many shocking tragedies spring.—Chicago Chronicle.

Open Secrets.

The truth lies round about us,
All too closely to be sought;
So open to our vision that
'Tis hidden to our thought.

We know not what the glories
Of the grass, the flower, may be;
We needs must struggle for the sight
Of what we always see.

Waiting for storms and whirlwinds,
And to have a sigh appear,
We deem not God is speaking
In the still small voice we hear.

In reasoning proud, blind leaders
Of the blind through life we go;
And do not know the things we see,
Nor see the things we know.

Single and indivisible,
We pass from change to change
Familiar with the strangest things
And with familiars strange.

We make the light through which we see
The light, and make the dark;
To hear the lark sing we must be
At heaven's gate with the lark.
—Alice Cary.

It's only natural that the man who is perpetually short should be looked down.

ALARM IS FELT IN VENEZUELA

Fear of War With Germany Causes Renewal of Friendly Relations With France.

BLOCKADE IS NOW AN ISSUE

The United States Is Called Upon to Say Whether the Blockade of the Orinoco Is Effective—Other Powers Have Taken Taken a Stand.

Caracas, Venezuela, Dec. 1.—President Castro has opened all the prisons in this city and at Puerto Cabello and Maracaibo and liberated the political offenders confined therein.

Among the released prisoners are Olavarria, the brother-in-law of General Matos; Acedo, the latter's confidential agent, and the leading traders in Caracas named Travieso, Volcan and Nunez, who were arrested for complicity in the revolution. This act has produced a good impression, and it is reported that General J. M. Herangez, called "El Mocho," and three others of the revolutionary leaders will be liberated shortly.

The Venezuelan General Antonio Velutini has been appointed minister plenipotentiary to France. He will renew the diplomatic relations between the two countries, which have been ruptured since 1894. The precipitate nomination of General Velutini is due also to the fears entertained by the Venezuelan government of complications with Germany. The newly appointed minister is of French descent.

The news that Germany will send three warships to reinforce the German squadron in Venezuelan waters, which already consists of three vessels, has produced a feeling of apprehension in this city, and especially in official circles.

The following is a quotation from the semi-official papers which comment on the cables treating of the attitude of Great Britain and Germany toward Venezuela:

"We will await confirmation of the cables before speaking more clearly, and we must suppose, with respectful seriousness of the cabinet of St. James and the decisions of the German government, that these cables are unfounded."

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Dec. 1.—The United States is confronted with the question of declaring its attitude regarding the blockade of the Orinoco river, which has been declared by the Venezuelan government.

The British authorities say they have asked United States Consul Smith what the intentions of the Washington government are regarding the steamer Manzanares, belonging to the Orinoco steamship company, which is now here. Some days ago the British authorities announced their willingness to convey the Mazanares up the Orinoco, but withdrew their offer on the arrivel of the United States gunboat Nashvile, on the ground that the United States now having a warship in port should convoy its own merchantmen.

Consul Smith is conferring with Admiral Crowninshield and Admiral Sumner, it is believed, with regard to the Manzanares. The Nashville is suited to the purpose of convoying the Manzanares, but no action is possible until instructions have been received from Washington.

The United States is the only nation which has not taken a decisive stand regarding the blockade and it is claimed that this situation is embarrassing American commerce, especially the Manzanares, which has been here since last June, her cargo spoiling and the delay involving a great loss to the company.

GERMANS WANT TO LEARN.

Delegation of Farmers Coming to Study American Methods.

Berlin, Dec. 1.—A large delegation of farmers under the auspices of the German Agricultural society is going to the United States in April for a three months' tour, studying American agricultural methods. The German embassy at Washington negotiated the affair with the agricultural department, which will furnish a guide during the entire trip. His expenses will be defrayed by the Germans.

The trip includes stops at Baltimore, where special attention will be given to dairy farms, and Washington, where the agricultural department German Agricultural society, though a private organization, has taken the United States agricultural department as a model and is trying to do in Germany many things which the department does in the United States.

After leaving Washington the industries of West Virginia will be examined and then the horse breeding and tobacco growing industries of Kentucky will be inspected. The tourists afterwards will visit St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha, where the stockyards will be investigated, and will also inquire into the Nebraska beet sugar industry. They will next stop at the irrigating systems of Colorado.

From San Francisco the German farmers will go on an excursion to Los Angeles and study the fruit farms. They will return eastward via Tacoma and see the wheat fields of the Dakotas and Minnesota. Later they will visit the Chicago slaughter houses and grain elevators, after which they will be shown the beet root industry of Michigan. A number of agricultural experiment stations along the route will be examined. The travelers will embark for home at New York June 30.

The German Agricultural society's board of managers will be represented on the trip by Baron von Allenberg-Pashaly. Besides a number of important agriculturalists the party will include a dozen students of the Berlin agricultural institute, who will take the trip at their own expense, regarding the knowledge to be gained as a valuable investment for the future great farmers of Germany. Dr. Gilbert, the agricultural attache of the German embassy at Washington, will accompany the delegation. There is a great rush here of farmers from all parts of the empire to file applications for membership in the delegation, but most of them must be rejected, as it is regarded as impracticable to do good work if the party exceeds thirty or forty.

The society has just completed an immense building here costing over $250,000 in which will be installed the new bureau to be founded upon the researches made during the trip to the United States.

A fox farm is conducted by Elijah Norton, near Bangor, Me. He finds the raising of foxes more profitable than the culture of grain or vegetables.

BOXERS IN CUBAN CONGRESS

Think They Are Now Able to Get Along.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—William E. Curtis in a Washington special to the Record-Herald says: There is nothing very serious in the Cuban situation, although it is irritating and humiliating to the United States, and it is our fault that it is so. The attitude of the Cubans is perfectly natural under the circumstances, and if they do not like us and are not willing to make concessions in favor of our merchandise, and refuse to carry out the conditions of the Platt amendment, we have nobody to blame but the "boxers" of the United States senate who prevented the adoption of the reciprocity treaty at the last session.

Nobody denies that the United States has done a great deal for Cuba. We relieved her from the Spanish yoke, we set her up in business with good credit and no debts, cleaned her streets, improved her waterworks, built hospitals and docks and drove out yellow fever. We gave her several thousand schools and showed her how to run them, and finally we compelled her to include in her constitution a provision that she should not borrow any money or any favors upon foreign governments without our permission, and then we came away and let her alone. When her industries were paralyzed and her planters could not sell their sugar for what it cost them to raise it she asked the United States to help her out by giving her products the preference over European sugar in our custom houses, but fourteen senators whose constituents owned beet sugar factories, blocked the way and prevented our government from giving the relief prayed for.

Now that the price of sugar is going up and the demand in Europe is becoming so active that the Cubans are confident of getting along without our assistance they turn their backs in our faces as they would to any false friends, saying that they can get along without us if we can get along without them.

The Cuban congress has elected a speaker who is jointly opposed to making any concessions to the United States, and that is construed to be an indorsement of his sentiments. President Palma has declined to submit for ratification the treaty negotiated between the Cuban minister at Washington and Secretary Hay, because he knew it would be rejected. The Cuban congress refuses to carry out the provisions in their legislation required by the Platt amendment, binding upon them until a treaty is negotiated with the United States, and at present they are in no hurry to negotiate a treaty.

That is practically the situation, and in order to soften the hearts of the Cubans and teach them wisdom and understanding. President Roosevelt sent General Bliss to Havana. General Bliss has been working for a week or more with the president, the ministers of foreign relations and finance but has made very little progress. He has ascertained, however, and has reported to Washington that the feeling in the Cuban congres is decidedly hostile to the United States, and that while the president and his cabinet are disposed to be friendly there are "boxers" in Havana as well as in Washington. Hence, the outlook is not encouraging.

ACROSS MINDANAO.

First White Man Who Ever Crossed the Island.

Manila, Dec. 1.—Captain Pershing, with sixty men, has completed a march across the island of Mindanao from Camp Vicars to Iligan. This possibly is the first time that white men have made the journey. Captain Pershing visited the villages of Madaya and Marahui. On his way to Madaya he found the Moros were surprised to learn that Americans were not monsters ten feet tall, with horns and tails At Marahui he adressed 500 Moros telling them of the friendly purposes of the Americans. Representatives of the Nato and Boycayutan tribes, which are now at war, asked Captain Pershing to arbitrate the difference between them. The captain agreed to visit them and give his arbitration on his return journey to Camp Vicars. No hostility was shown towards the column on the march.

The constabulary in the Zambales province reports a repulsive incident of cruelty perpetrated by ladrones. Several columns of constabulary had been chasing the ladrones with the assistance of friendly natives. Two of the friendlies straggled from the column and were captured by ladrones, who amputated the tongue and gouged out the eyes of one and then sent him back to the constabulary. The fate of the other is unknown.

The efforts to restore agriculture in the Philippine islands have been blocked by a dearth of field animals Ninety per cent of the carabos died in the original epidemic of rinderpest and of the small number left many have died.

The government had planned an extensive importation of these animals to meet the crying need and had arranged to have them immunized. It was forced to abandon this plan on account of the lack of money to meet the purchases.

The general cultivation of the plantations is impossible without them and the absence of any immediate prospect of getting the field animals leaves the agricultural situation in a serious condition.

RUSSIA MUST PAY DAMAGES

For Illegal Seizure of American Sealing Ships Ten Years Ago.

The Hague, Dec. 1.—Professor Asser, the Dutch jurist who has been arbitrating the claims of American sealers for the seizure of the vessels by the Russian government about ten years ago, has delivered his award in favor of the United States. The appraisers appraise the damage in the case of the American schooner C. C. White at $32,444; in the case of the James Hamilton Lewis at $28,588, the Kate and Anna at $1,488, and the Cape Horn Pigeon $37,850.

Professor Asser delivered his judgment in the arbitration court in the presence of the representatives of the United States and of Russia and others, including the foreign minister of The Netherlands, Dr. Van Lynden.

In giving his reasons for the award Professor Asser held that the schooner C. H. White was seized outside Russian territorial waters, and that the Russian contention that a warship of one nation was entitled to pursue beyond the boundaries of its territorial seas and seize a ship of another nation guilty of illegal action within these waters was untenable. The arbitrator declared that the jurisdiction of the state could not extend beyond its territorial waters except by special treaty. The seizure and confiscation of the C. H. White and the imprisonment of her crew was therefore illegal, and Russia was condemned to pay the C. H. White $32,444 with interest at 6 per cent.

Lost Twenty Years.

Kokomo, Ind., Dec. 1st.—Twenty years is a long time to take out of one person's life but that was the fate of Anna M. Willis of this place. For twenty years she suffered all the torments of Kidney Trouble, and anyone in that state is not living, but simply existing.

Now Anna M. Willis is fully recovered. She appreciates the pleasure of living again and never forgets to tell you that it is all because a friend advised her to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

In speaking of her wonderful cure she says: "For twenty years I suffered from Kidney Trouble. The disease was terrible in itself and it was all the more terrible because I could get no relief and my case seemed hopeless.

"But one day I got six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and by the time I had taken five boxes my pains had left me and I was a free woman."

Constipation Cured

Those who have used salts, castor oil, and the many home and manufactured purgatives, know that in such treatment there is no possibility of a cure from constipation. These remedies are at most physics and do absolutely no good. In fact they frequently provoke piles fistula, female disorders and many cases of appendicitis are traceable to their use. Soon the ordinary doses of these physics fail to have any effect upon the bowels.

There never was a case of temporary or obstinate constipation that would not cure. First, Mull's Grape Tonic is unlike any other treatment for constipation. It is the greatest and most positive laxative known. But that isn't what cures. The Epworth League people of the Eng. M. E. church will hold their next meeting at Mrs. A. C. Gibbs' home, Tuesday Dec. 9th.

Mrs. and Miss Dow, of Garner spent Thanksgiving with E. P. Dow and family. They are mother and sister, respectively, of our genial merchant.

Chas. and Nate Mashall and sister Miss Sarah left on Thursday morning last for Clermont where they will take charge of their mill which they recently purchased.

Literary meetings will be held at Ell Center school house on each Thursday evening commencing with Thursday of this week. All are most cordially invited to attend.

Miss Jennie William, who resides with her parents about 3 miles southeast of town, for the past two week has been a sufferer from pneumonia. We are glad to note however, that she is improving at this writing.

Miss Gertrude Wendle, who it will be remembered was shot by the accidental discharge of a shot gun several weeks ago, we are glad to say has entirely recovered and is now able to attend school. Her escape from death was certainly a narrow one.

We are headquarters for 5 per cent farm loans, optional payments. Bring in your abstracts for free examination. You should have one of our safety deposit boxes for your valuable papers. Call and see them. Only $1. to Jan. 1st, 1904.

A change in time in the evening passenger going south took place on Monday. It is a change for the worse as the train now gets here at 10:06. This makes the mail service from the north very poor, and will be very inconvenient for the traveling public.

Monday, February 1, 1902, was the tenth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Aug. Ridder and they properly observed the occasion by inviting in a number of relatives of the family. Many useful gifts in the way of tinware were received by the host and hostess and the evening was most pleasantly whiled away in games and other forms of social intercourse. At a late hour the guests departed hoping that the worthy pair live to celebrate their golden wedding.

Portable CORN CRIBS

Can be set up in ten minutes when empty can be used for chicken fence or for corn again when needed, or can be sawed into a two-foot hog fence as each section contains six cable wires, thus leaving three cables in each piece of two foot fence. This is just the thing to pen up small pigs to wean or to make a yard to feed smal chicks in.

Directions wish each crib on back of tag for setting up and making the door.

These can be set up in the feld while husking or to feed out during the winter. If wanted to store corn in, some pieces of boards or something else should be laid on the ground and the crib set on top. A covering can be made of hay with stringers to hold it on. Will also make a good grain bin if lined with straw or canvas. Tar paper laid on the bottom will keep out mice and rats. The two sections are done up in one roll. Nearly all farmers, grain dealers and storage men use them. Crib is 8 feet high 12 feet in diameter, and holds 400 bushel. It is cheap and handy

THOS. B. REED PASSES AWAY

Acute Bright's Disease Complicated Other Troubles, Causing Death.

HE WAS ILL BUT SIX DAYS

He Served for Twenty-two Years in Congress, Six Years as Speaker, and Voluntarily Retired—Will Be Buried at Portland, Maine.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Thomas Brackett Reed, former speaker of the house of representatives and for many years prominent in public life, died here yesterday morning at 12:10 o'clock in his apartments in the Arlington hotel. The immediate cause of death was uraemia.

A change for the worse was noted in Mr. Reed's condition early Saturday morning. At 9:30 o'clock he was given a subcutaneous saline transfusion in order to stimulate his kidneys, which were failing to perform their proper function. At 5 o'clock this afternoon saline solution again was administered, about three quarts of fluid being used. The heart became weaker and weaker, but the patient retained consciousness until 11 o'clock Saturday night, when a complete coma came on.

At the bedside when he died were Mrs. Reed and Miss Catherine Reed, Drs. Gardner, MacDonald, Bishop and Goodnow and the nurses. Mr. Reed's mind was in such a state during the day that he did not realize the seriousness of his condition. He was cheerful and conversed with those about his bedside. When it became known that he would not survive his illness, the wife and daughter were notified and they remained constantly at the bedside until the distinguished patient breathed his last. With only a faint hope of saving his life, oxygen was administered throughout the day.

It was stated Saturday that Mr. Reed had been suffering from Bright's disease for some time, which reached the acute stage yesterday, and this furnished an additional cause for alarm. Mr. Reed passed away peacefully and without pain.

Mr. Reed reached Washington Sunday, having come to attend to some matters in the United States supreme court. He was at the capitol Monday visiting friends and former associates in congress, and witnessed the convening of the second session of the Fifty-seventh congress. Apparently he was enjoying good health, but later in the day he called on Dr. F. A. Gardner and complained of gastric distress.

The following day his physician compelled him to remain in bed while a diagnosis was made of his condition. Mr. Reed was strongly averse to staying in bed, but a rise in temperature made it imperative that he remain there. Symptoms of appendicitis appeared, though his condition was not considered alarming. A trained nurse remained with him throughout Tuesday night, and the patient showed signs of improvement.

Mrs. Reed and daughter, Miss Kittie, arrived Wednesday, and have remained with Mr. Reed at the Arlington hotel since.

On Thursday the physicians announced appendical symptoms were abating, but that kidney trouble had developed, giving a more serious aspect to the case.

Thomas Brackett Reed was born in Portland, Me., October 18, 1839. He was the son of Thomas Brackett Reed. He graduated from Bowdoin college in 1860, and studied law until April 19, 1864, when he was appointed acting assistant paymaster of the United States navy, which position he held until November 4, 1865. He was admitted to the bar in the same year and began the practice of law in Portland. He was a member of the state house of representatives in 1868-9 and a state senator in 1870. For two years beginning with 1870 Mr. Reed was attorney general of Maine, and was the city solicitor of Portland from 1874 to 1877. In the latter year he was elected to congress. He was the speaker of the Fifty-first, Fifty-fourth and the Fifty-sixth, but resigned in 1899. Thomas B. Reed was a prominent republican and was a candidate for the presidency in 1896. He was a member of the law firm of Reed, Simpson, Thacher & Carnim and had his office at 10 Wall street, New York. He resided at 160 West Fifty-ninth street in the same city. Mr. Reed was a brilliant writer and was a frequent contributor to periodical literature. He was the author of "Reed's Rules of Order" and the editor of Modern Eloquence.

Washington, Dec. 8.—The remains of Thomas Brackett Reed, former speaker of the house of representatives, who died yesterday morning, left here yesterday afternoon for Portland, Me., his former home, where the interment will take place on Tuesday afternoon. They were placed aboard a special train leaving Washington at 4:50 o'clock and running as the second section of the federal express, scheduled to arrive at Portland today.

Accompanying the body were Mrs. Reed, the widow; Miss Catherine Reed, the daughter; Hon. Amos L. Allen, Mr. Reed's successor in the house of representatives; Mr. Asher C. Hinds, Mr. Reed's parliamentary clerk while speaker, and Mr. Augustus G. Payne of New York, a life long friend. At Mr. Reed's request there were no ceremonies of any kind here, and at Portland they will be of a simple character.

FOURTEEN DEAD IN FIRE.

Escape Cut Off and They Perished Like Rats in a Trap.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—Fourteen men met death by suffocation yesterday in a fire which originated at 6 o'clock in the Lincoln hotel, 176 Madison street. Thirteen of those who lost their lives were stifled while lying in their beds One was taken from the building before life was extinct, but died in the ambulance on the way to the nearest hospital

Coroner Treager, after inspecting the building, united with Fire Chief Musham in declaring that the building was a veritable fire trap and should never have been used for hotel purposes. Chief Musham declared that there were such wide cracks in the floors that smoke poured through the building in clouds, rendering escape extremely difficult.

There was no fire escape on the front of the building, although one was in progress of construction.

The scaffolding was up and from it dangled several ropes, down which a number of people slid to the pavement after all escape by the stairway had been cut on.

All men may be born equal, but the average man imagines he was born a little more so.

CONGRESS.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Senate.—Mr. Frye ascended the rostrum at noon and a hush fell upon the assembly while Rev. F. J. Prettyman pronounced the invocation. The clerk called the roll and sixty-eight senators responded to their names. The customary methods of notifying different officials of the house that the senate was ready for business, appointing a committee to join with one from the house to wait on the president and inform him that congress was assembled were used. Burrows, of Michigan, then announced the death of his colleague, James McMillan. He spoke with great emotion and briefly referred to the life and services of the dead senator. Resolutions of regret were offered and unanimously adopted and as a further mark of respect the senate at 12:12 p. m. adjourned until 12 o'clock tomorrow.

House—Three minutes before the hour of noon a door in the rear lobby swung open and Speaker Henderson entered. He was immediately surrounded by members and held a reception up the marble steps of the rostrum. Exactly at 12 o'clock noon he ascended to his place. A great outburst of applause greeted him as he faced the house and galleries. With severed vigorous whacks of the gavel the speaker stilled the demonstration in his honor. Then followed the blind chaplain, Rev. Couten, who offered prayer, fervently invoking the Divine blessing upon the president, the government, the members of congress and the work of the session. Roll call showed a quorum present. The oath was administered to newly-elected members. Immediately after the swearing in of these members Taylor of Ohio created a flurry by offering a resolution to investigate the election of Carter Glass in the Sixth Virginia district. Referred.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Senate.—Today's session of the senate was especially interesting because of the reading of the president's message and the swearing in of General Russell A. Alger of Michigan, former secretary of war under President McKinley, as successor to the late Senator McMillan. A number of bills and resolutions were introduced, following a brief executive session. The resignation of the Rev W. H. Milburn, the blind chaplain of the senate, was received with genuine regret. At 1:50 p. m. the senate adjourned until tomorrow out of respect to the memory of the late Charles Russell, late representative from Connecticut.

House.—The house was in session an hour and forty minutes today. One hour of the time was consumed in reading the president's message. The reading was listened to with attention by members without regard to party but without demonstration except at the conclusion of the reading when the republicans applauded generously.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Senate.—The senate today began the real work of disposing of the business before it, although the session lasted only an hour and a half. When an adjournment was taken at 1:30 o'clock, out of respect to the memory of Representatives De Graffenreid and Shephard of Texas, the bill to amend the immigration laws was under discussion. Early in the day Nelson, from the committee on territories, reported a substitute for the omnibus statehood bill, with the recommendation that Oklahoma and Indian territory be admitted into the union as one state under the name of Oklahoma

House.—The house today passed the bill to appropriate $50,000 to defray the expenses of the anthracite coal strike commission and then adjourned until Friday, when the London dock charge bill will be considered. There were two hours of discussion on the commission bill, during which the president's course in creating the commission was highly commended, except by Burton, a Missouri democrat, who contended that the commission was created without authority of law or constitution. There was some criticism of the feature of the bill allowing double salaries to members of the commission now in government employ and also because the bill left the amount of the compensation of the members to the president. But all amendments were voted down. The bill was passed without division.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Senate—Soon after the senate met Beveridge had read resolutions of the convention composed of delegates from Oklahoma and Indian territory favoring the admission of both territories as one state and opposing the house omnibus bill. On motion of Stewart of Nevada, a concurrent resolution was adopted calling on the president for the papers in the Pius fund case, recently decided at The Hague.

At 12:30 p. m. on motion of Mr Hoar of Massachusetts, the senate went into executive session and shortly afterwards adjourned until Monday next. The senate confirmed the nomination of Hon. Oliver Wendell Holmes to be an associate justice of the supreme court of the United States.

Washington, Dec. 5.—House.—The house devoted to bills on the private calendar. The most important bill passed was one to adjudicate in the court of claims the claims of certain importers of steel blooms who, between 1879 and 1888 paid custom duties equivalent to 45 per cent ad valorem when it is claimed the correct rate should have been 30 per cent. About $350,000 is involved.

Washington, Dec. 6.—House.—The house today passed the pension appropriation bill carrying $139,000,000 without a word of debate and devoted the remainder of the day to the passage of bills on the calendar, quite a number of which were passed. To prevent the passage of a bill to prohibit the military bands from engaging in competition with private bands, Smith of Michigan, made the point of no quorum, and the house thereupon adjourned.

DOCTORS DISCUSS MOSQUITO.

Pest Comes in for Consideration at Sanitary Conference.

Washington, Dec. 5.—The sanitary conference of American republics, which has been in session here since Tuesday, came to an end last night. Santiago de Chili was selected as the place of next meeting, which will occur March 15, 1904.

Dr. Edouardo Moore, the delegate from Chili, assured the delegates that all Chile would welcome them and said a hygienic exhibit would be given in Santiago at the time of the conference.

The mosquito came in for a good share of attention during the closing session and several resolutions bearing on the subject of infection were adopted.

One of these, offered by Dr. Arthur Reynolds of Chicago, urged the different governments to study in the respective territories the geographical distribution of the mosquito in order that it may have practical application in subsequent conventions. A resolution offered by Dr. Guiteras of Cuba is of broader scope and in a measure makes the statement that insect is the one factor in the communication of disease.

BOLD HOLD-UP AT DES MOINES

Lone Highwayman Robs Jewelery Store During Noon Hour.

Des Moines, Dec. 5.—A lone highwayman with a big revolver held up H. P. Hobbs, who was alone in his jewelry store at 514 East Walnut street, getting away with money, three watches and a tray of opal rings valued in all at $1,000. The robbery was committed just as the whistles were blowing 1 o'clock, while scores of people were passing the store on their way to work.

Hobbs was alone in the store when the man came in. The jeweler stepped from the back room when he was confronted by a big gun and the bold thief ordered him to throw up his hands or he'd fill him full of holes. The man, slight of build, and entirely unmasked, coolly went through the jeweler's pockets and then backed him into the back room, ordering him to go upstairs and stay there or he'd kill him. Hobbs started up the stairs and the robber backed into the front of the store, holding his gun on the retreating jeweler.

Hobbs slipped down the stairs when but half way up, ran out the back door, up the alley and called for the police. The robber ran out with the tray of jewels and again pushed his gun in Hobbs' face when he tried to stop him. He then ran up the alley between Fifth and Sixth streets toward Walnut, followed by the shouting jeweler and a few other persons. In his haste the thief dropped the tray of rings and, turning down Locust street, disappeared.

The thief was a slight man with dark clothes, light hair, blue eyes and a light mustache.

Later the police made a thorough search of the vicinity and at last located the coal house in which the thief had found refuge. He had turned north in the alley in which Finkelstein was killed and hidden in a coal house near the corner of Seventh and Locust streets Here the overcoat, the watches and the missing rings which he had gathered up loosely were found. They are the clues by which the detectives hope to catch the fellow

VICTORY FOR AMES COLLEGE.

Carries Off Sweepstakes Prizes at Chicago Live Stock Show.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—Despite the inclement weather, yesterday proved one of the biggest days in point of attendance in the history of the International Live Stock Exposition, 40,000 people having passed through the gates during the day and evening. The judges were kept busy on the many important entries that gathered in the respective rings, and when their labors were finished last night, had made the greatest showing on record for the number of animals judged.

The Iowa Agricultural college came off with flying colors, capturing the principal prizes in cattle and hogs. Shamrock, the grand champion of the show, entered by the Iowa college in the fat Angus grades, won everything and aggregated over $500 in cash prizes.

The Iowa college also won the prizes for the best general exhibit of cattle, sheep and swine.

BOY KILLS EMPLOYER.

John Kesner, Hotel Man, Killed by Ethridge.

Grenville, Dec. 3.—At Pocahontas Albert Ethridge, aged 18, shot and instantly killed his employer, John Kesner, proprietor of the Western hotel. The shooting was the result of a disagreement over some meat which Kisner had ordered the boy to get for dinner. Smarting under the reprimand, Ethridge borrowed a gun from a neighbor and on the pretext of going hunting, lay in wait for Kesner at a corner. When Kesner came within a few feet Ethridge deliberately raised his gun and fired, the charge taking effect in Kesner's head and breast. The coroner's jury held Ethridge to the grand jury without bail on the charge of murder, and he was brought here. He expresses no remorse, saying that he had made up his mind to kill Kesner.

TWO LITTLE GIRLS DROWN.

They Were Playing on the Ice Near Iowa Center.

Nevada, Dec. 4.—Two little girls, Lottie and Tottie Mitchell, were drowned in a pond on their father's farm about half mile south of Iowa Center.

The two girls, one of whom was an adopted child whose name was Taylor, were within a few months of the same age, about twelve years, and had been inseparable companions from babyhood. After dinner Sunday they went out to the pond to play. The ice was far too thin to be safe, but the children ventured out upon it, the ice gave way beneath their weight and side by side, as they had spent their lives, they went down together to a watery grave.

NEGROES IN A FATAL ROW.

Fred Dysart Was Shot Near the Heart and Died.

Lucas, Dec. 4.—At Cleveland, a mining place two miles west of here, several negroes engaged in a fatal shooting scrape. Fred Dysart, James Miller, Green Bowdins and several other colored men were shooting craps in Boddale's boarding house, when a man named Polson came into the room and wanted to join the game. Dysart objected and words soon brought blows and Polson drew his gun and began shooting. Dysart received a bullet just below the heart and is dead; Bowdins' arm was broken and Miller had a bullet through the wrist.

No Water or Light in Nebraska City.

Nebraska City, Neb., Dec. 8.—The sudden shifting of the main channel of the Missouri river to the Iowa side has left this city without a water supply. Last night the waterworks mains were drained and every basin empty. The electric light plant is shut down and the streets dark. The breaking out of a fire of any consequence would cause disaster. It may be days or weeks before pipes can be extended to the main channel, and in the meantime every manufactory in the city dependent on steam or electricity must shut down.

Got 60 Cents on the Dollar.

LeMars, Dec. 5.—Thomas Thornton, receiver for the defunct LeMars National Bank, acting for the government, has filed his final report and left for Dallas, Texas. The creditors of the bank get sixty cents on the dollar. This bank closed its doors in April, 1901, when the vice-president, T. F. Ward, absconded with $50,000.

Carl Hector Was Acquitted.

Avoca, Dec. 5.—In the case of Carl Hector, charged with the murder of Fred Johnson on July 8 last, the jury rendered a verdict of not guilty after having been out eight hours. The verdict did not receive general approval.

A man feels blue with trouble, red with rage, white with fear, yellow with envy and green with jealousy.

CHAPTER XVI.—(Continued.

"Did you leave the others there?"

"Yes; an' lemme tell ye, it'll take four to manage that woman. I couldn't stay in the same camp and set up quarters by a big black stump half a mile away from her."

"Curse such luck! I wish the men had stayed."

"Why? Who are you afraid of?"

"I don't know who he is, only he calls himself the Old Man of the Mountains."

"Where is he?"

"In her tent."

"Where did he come from?"

"Looks as if he had slid down the peak of some iceberg. Go and take a squint at him."

Cummins, though a coward when there was a woman in the case, had little fears of men. Creeping stealthily up to the tent he peeped in and beheld the "Old Man of the Mountains," seated on a camp stool before the fair Laura, his rifle between his knees, while she was telling him her story.

"Umph! It's old St. Nick or an escaped Selkirk. Looks as if he bristled with weapons, and I don't doubt but he can use 'em. The boss is right, for a glimpse o' that face and the arsenal he carries is enough to give a polar bear the ager."

Notwithstanding the unprepossessing appearance of the man from the mountains, he pressed his ear close to the tent to listen to the conversation between the two.

"Why did you come to Alaska, my poor child?"

"I came to find the man I love. My Paul, who was lost."

Laura told the old man her story and at the conclusion said:

"He tells me Paul is dead. I do not believe him. He has deceived me on more than one occasion, and he will do so again if it serves his purpose. My heart tells me Paul lives."

"My child, that silent monitor is never wrong. Your Paul lives. He is not far away, but he, you and I are in great peril. We must act with caution and secrecy or we will all be dead before morning. These men are desperate criminals. Will you trust me?"

"Yes, with my life!"

"Pretend as if you had heard nothing, but be ready to act as I direct."

"Do you know where Paul is?"

"Yes, but he is under a strong guard. Is there no one with the train you can trust? No Indian or Esquimo?"

"I do not understand them nor they me; but I have my trusty servant, Ben Holton."

"Where is he?"

"He was sent to-day to see if the pass could be opened."

"The pass has not been closed," said the hermit. "My dear daughter, sending him off was only an excuse to get your friends out of the way; but all is well. Heaven is on your side and directed me here."

"Humph! We'll see about that!" growled Cummins, rising from his knees. "They kin put their trust in what they like, but if the boss will let me have my way, I'll put mine in about ten inches of cold steel!"

He hurried to Lackland, who was sitting on a sled, his face expressing the deepest anxiety. In as few words as possible he narrated the interview between the mysterious old man and Laura. Lackland made several efforts to speak before he finally succeeded, then, in a voice strangely unnatural, he said:

"It has come at last! I hoped I would be spared bloodshed, but there is no help for it. Since it must come, let it come. We will do our worst. If the old man and Paul Miller are in our way, let them die!"

"Well, there will be little time to act."

"I know it."

Lackland, who still shrank from the thought of committing murder himself, began to plan to have his myrmidons do all the work, and agreed very readily to have reinforcements.

"I think it would be well for you to start back and get two of the men," he said. "Can't you do it in a few hours?"

"Yes; on snowshoes I can make it by to-morrow noon. Let us leave the valley and start down the trail."

They had to cross the river to reach the trail, but by this time the Yukon was frozen over, so they crossed on the ice.

They had scarce got over when they saw three forms coming along the trail.

"There they are now," said Lackland.

The three forms could be seen coming hurriedly up the path and, when they drew nearer, the form of the old man could be seen coming along behind.

"Holton, come here!" said Lackland. As the old man advanced toward him, the Indians were ordered across the river on the ice.

"What d'ye want, Mr. Lackland?"

"Your mistress sent for you to go back and meet Miss Willis—"

"Me go back!" gasped old Ben. "This do seem monster queer. Why, I'm about petered out. I don't believe I kin go a mile furder."

"It's not over a mile."

"We'll try t' stand it."

Lackland took the arm of the tired, faithful old fellow and led him as rapidly as he could travel until the cavern was reached.

"Is that the place, Cummins?" he asked.

"Yes."

"Come in here—in this cavern!"

"What for?"

'Shut your infernal mouth and come on; you talk too much!"

"I won't go!" he cried, for his suspicions began to be aroused, and he made an effort to pull away.

The faithful old man seemed to realize that in some way this attack had reference to his mistress, and he fought with the desperation of a madman; but he was choked into insensibility, and Lackland said:

"Take him up! Drag him in there, and tie him hard and fast!"

Cummins obeyed instructions, and a few moments later emerged from the cave, saying:

"Well, boss, that's done."

"Yes, but there is not a second to lose, for the old man at the camp will not be dealt with so easily. You must get two or three of the others, if they have not gone, and bring them here at once. Don't waste a moment, for everything depends on getting reinforcements before daylight."

The nights in Alaska were long at this season, and it was possible for reinforcements to arrive before dawn.

CHAPTER XVII.

A Groan In the Dark.

When Paul Miller leaped from his pallet and rushed from the door of the hut, he was as insane as any inmate of a madhouse.

"Oh, stop! stop! stop!" shrieked Kate Willis. "Where are you goin'—where are you goin'?"

"Laura! Laura!" he shouted.

"Laura! Oh, my goodness sakes alive, does he know her?" cried Miss Willis, clapping her hands as a new and wonderful thought burst on her mind. "It can't be—it must be—he is the girl's lover! He must be her Paul!" She shouted to some of the Indian porters left to look after the camp:

"Stop him!"

The Indians were soon on him, had him tied with mooseskin thongs and carried him back to the shanty, where he was lain on the bed. Kate followed them, sobbing frantically and groaning:

"He's dead! They've killed him and I'm to blame for it. Oh, what a fool I've played all the way through!"

He breathed and, placing her head on his breast, she discovered that his heart still beat. She placed the kettle over the little oil stove and prepared some nourishment, bound up his head, which was slightly bruised, and soon had his eyes open. No sooner was he rational enough to recall what had happened than he began to sob.

"Don't take on so!" the kind-hearted woman said. "I tell ye, ye couldn't have got a mile away from here! Ye would have died and ye must know it!"

"But Laura, my darling, in the power of that man!"

"Say, let's you and I understand each other, an' then there won't be any danger of making mistakes. Are you Paul Miller, who's been dead so long?"

"I am Paul Miller and they may have reported me dead."

"From Fresno, California?"

"Yes, from Fresno, California."

"Have you a sweetheart called Laura Kean?"

"Yes—yes! It was she you told me had gone on—and I will—"

"Now, look here! I am your friend. I am the best friend you and Laura ever had aside from yerselves. If ye'll jist listen t' me, we'll outwit the whole caboodle an' show 'em what's what yit."

Kate told him he must pretend to be a great deal worse than he really was, and she would report that she believed he was going to die. He at once fell in with the plan, with the assurance that as soon as he was strong enough he was to start secretly for the camp where Laura was waiting for her companion to join them.

Meanwhile there was a change in guard. Cummins was relieved and four men sent to take his place. The Indians went with Cummins, and Kate had four white men to contend with.

She often eavesdropped the four men when at quarters, and gained enough of their plans to realize that they must act promptly.

The very night the "Old Man of the Mountains," as he called himself, so suddenly appeared in the tent where Laura was expelling her unwelcome suitor, they set out. On and on they hastened over the frozen snow, and Paul's heart began to beat with pleasure. But hark! What are those ominous sounds in their ears? They have been four or five hours on the route when they hear the sound of feet crushing the hardened snow.

"Paul!" Kate whispered, "we are pursued! Can you run?"

"I can—and I can do more—I can shoot!"

"Run first and shoot when you have to. Gimme yer hand."

The strong woman took his hand in her own and they ran along the snow-covered trail swiftly as hares. They were almost at the point where the river was crossed on the ice when a voice behind them cried:

"There they go!"

"Halt—stop, or we'll fire!"

Paul wheeled around and leveled his rifle at one of the dark objects coming toward him, but just as his finger was ready to press the trigger he was struck a blow between the shoulders, which sent him sprawling in the snow.

It was Cummins, going after reinforcements, who came up at this inopportune moment.

The two prisoners were lifted from the ground and carried to the cavern, where they were left tied hard and fast, their fates to be determined later.

Paul Miller was not unconscious at any time, and when he found himself tied, lying on the hard floor of the cavern, he began to calculate on his chances.

Suddenly he heard a groan in the darkness.

"Kate—Kate—was that you?" he whispered.

"No!" was the answer.

"Who was it?"

And another hollow groan came on their ears.

"Great goodness gracious! What is it?" shrieked Kate Willis. "What is it?"

"Hush, Kate!" whispered Paul. "Some other unfortunate is here as well as ourselves!"

Then came another deep groan, which seemed to be only a few paces away.

"Who are you?" asked Paul.

"I'm Ben Holton," came a feeble answer. "I ain't done nuthin' t' be tied up here an' left t' die in this way!"

"I know him;" gasped Kate, who was Laura's faithful servant.

In the anguish of his soul he groaned:

"Oh, Laura, Laura, would I could reach your side and save you from those fiends?"

Paul had deep thoughts, but those to himself. He could not believe that heaven would never permit an evil as these unscrupulous men contemplated to succeed, but that divine interposition would come. He had no idea, but he believed it would come.

At that very moment the kind and faithful friend of whom he had spoken thought coming to him, and the courier that had borne the message that he and his companions were perishing in the forest had developed a strange fondness for him.

On the night Paul left Laura his friend was tied with thongs, the better lest he should follow and attempt flight. The dumb brute knew better than to follow, and when Paul was well on set to work to deliberately gnaw the thongs seal riata in twain. His powerful jaws did the work and his keen sense of smell soon told him the direction he had gone, and he finally arrived safely at the cavern.

Paul was lost in pain and darkness when he suddenly felt the touch of a cold nose tip on his cheek, and he became aware that a friend was near. The dog sniffed about him with excitement, and, reaching his master at last, realizing that something was wrong, seized the thongs with his teeth and began pulling at them.

"What is that noise?" asked Kate Willis.

"Be quiet!" Paul answered in an undertone.

The sharp teeth of the dog were silently cutting the thongs that tied his master. In a few moments Paul's hands were free. Then he released his ankles, he crept to where Kate sat against the big rock, her head around it.

"Who's that?" she asked.

"Keep quiet!" he whispered. He was a bit nervous and very anxious to know if there was any chance of escape, but she restrained her natural inclination and said nothing.

Paul released her and then went to old Ben Holton who was breathing as if he was breathing his last.

The old fellow, dumb with astonishment for a moment, blurted out:

"Be ye agoin' t' untie me?"

"No, no, ye won't!" roared the sentry, who began to suspect and look up. Lighting a torch, he examined the interior of the cavern, and when they had left the captives, suddenly there came a sharp report, an oath, a cry and a man was seen to back, a furious dog at his throat.

TRADE IN OLD CLOTHES.

Philadelphia Does Large Business in Cast-Off Raiment.

Philadelphia is said to do a large business in old clothes, says the New York Commercial—that is, more than in the cast-off or second and third hand clothes of men—than any other city on the American continent. It is the center of the trade in this line and the buyers of New York come with bags from Canal, Hester and Baxter streets—and from all over the middle states "work" the field. Brotherly Love for old clothes is the business day of the year. The old clothiers number nearly 600 on an average. The capital invested in the old clothes trade of Philadelphia aggregates $3,500,000. There are about 1,000 flourishing retail stores. The average value of their stock, as given by experts in the trade at $3,000, and of a half dozen stores carrying stock valued at $15,000 or $20,000. Each store gives employment to three persons on an average—the proprietor, his wife, and the "bushelman" or mender. In all there are fully 6,000 in the retail shops.

Services of the Worm.

Ever since Darwin showed how the common garden worm helps to fertilize ground by keeping constantly at work loosening it and making it fine, scientists have been studying these humble creatures with renewed interest. Lately a Swiss naturalist, Professor Maserre, has been investigating the chemical value of the worm's work, and he finds that, after a worm has finished with any particular piece of earth, it is far richer in phosphoric acid and lime than it was before. In short, the worm does constantly, as a regular process of nature, what the farmer strives to do artificially with chemical compounds. The worm fertilizes and enriches the ground just as the farmer does.

Unique Method of Courtship.

"Doc" Brown of Morgansfield, who represents his district in the state legislature, is one of Kentucky's unique characters. To illustrate a point in a recent speech he gave the following account of his courtship: "Take my advice and never tell a woman anything she can't ever never make love to her out of a bottle. Why, when I courted my wife I just grabbed hold of her and said, 'Sallie, you are the sweetest thing on earth, and your beauty baffles the skill of man and subdues his fellow nature,' and I got her."

To Honor French Caricaturist.

Paris is to have a new statue of Gavarni, the caricaturist, and a Gavarni ball will be given in his honor and to pay for the statue, in which costumes he drew will be worn. Gavarni was as much the historian of Louis Philippe's reign as John Leech was of the first part of Queen Victoria's.

Honduras in Hard Straits.

Honduras, since 1900, has had a market for her cattle. In the past she depended on Guatemala, but financial conditions in that republic have closed the market.

All He Needed.

"Wonder what Brown needs to make him a successful author?" "Nothing but a story to tell. He has brains to tell it."—Atlanta Constitution.

Value of Texas Cattle.

It is said that Texas alone must have $50,000,000 worth of cattle annually.

SISTER OF CHARITY

Use Pe-ru-na Coughs, Colds, Grip and Catarrh--An gressman's Letter.

In every country of the civilized wor Sisters of Charity are known. Not on do they minister to the spiritual a intellectual needs of the charges co mitted to their care, but they al minister to their bodily needs.

With so many children to take care o and to protect from climate and disease these wise and prudent Sisters hav found Peruna a never failing safeguard.

Dr. Hartman receives many letters from Catholic Sisters from all over the United States. A recommend recently received from a Catholic institution in Detroit, Mich., reads as follows:

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio:

Dear Sir:—"The young girl who used the Peruna was suffering from laryngitis, and loss of voice. The result of the treatment was most satisfactory. She found great relief, and after further use of the medicine we hope to be able to say she is entirely cured."—Sisters of Charity.

The young girl was under the care of the Sisters of Charity and used Peruna for catarrh of the throat with good results as the above letter testifies.

Dr. Hartman, one of the best known physicians and surgeons in the United States, was the first man to formulate Peruna. It was through his genius and perseverance that it was introduced to the medical profession of this country.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Dec. 5, 1902.

An examination of the election returns shows that the congressional ticket ran over 6,000 votes behind the head of the state ticket in the entire state. Secretary Martin's vote was in excess of the republican congressional vote in the different districts as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| First district | 382 |
| Second district | 592 |
| Third district | 642 |
| Fourth district | 1,228 |
| Fifth district | 327 |
| Sixth district | 727 |
| Seventh district | 1,276 |
| Eighth district | 114 |
| Ninth district | 96 |
| Tenth district | 193 |
| Eleventh district | 626 |

The difference in the vote is ascribed to the fact that the democrats made their chief effort on congressmen.

The highest scoring bird at the exhibition of the Des Moines Chicken Fanciers' Association was a handsome jet black Minorca pullet, the property of G. M. Hol, 614 Lyon street. The bird scored 96¼. This is a remarkably high score, and the bird is as high bred as it is possible to produce. Mr. Hol also as a number of hens which score very high and carried off prizes at the show.

At the present time there is over $38,000 in outstanding checks that have been drawn by E. F. Sperry as pension agent at Des Moines and sent to pensioners who have failed to get the same cashed. In view of the change in the agency, to take effect January 1st, it is desirable that all of these checks be sent in for payment so that the accounts can be more easily adjusted at the end of the present year.

Police Judge Silvari dismissed the contempt case against Chief of Police Brackett, pending in his court. "I am bound to accept the excuse of the chief," said the court. "He swears in his showing that he knows nothing of the existence of the disorderly house against which I ordered him to file an information. I admit that I have not the power to compel him to swear to something of which he says he has no knowledge. I contend I have the power to compel him or any other officer of the department to file an information against person or places the facts of whose offenses he or they know. But if they come in and declare that they do not know, then I cannot require them to swear to the information."

A fine portrait of Philip M. Crapo of Burlington has been presented to the state historical department. The portrait was requested by Curator Aldrich some time ago. Mr. Crapo complied with Mr. Aldrich's request, and the painting has just arrived. It is nearly life size, and was painted by Louis Meyer of Milwaukee, one of the foremost young painters of the west, and one of the few artist whose paintings were accepted recently for the second annual exhibition of the Copley society of Boston. The portrait of Dr. William Salter of Burlington, which was added to the art gallery of the historical department a short time ago, was also painted by Mr. Meyer.

Some of the papers in the state are criticising Governor Cummins because of the paroling of inebriates. Private Secretary Briar says there is no justification for this. "As a matter of fact," said Mr. Briar, "the governor has no discretion in such cases. When the superintendent of the hospital for inebriates and the physician in charge of the patient recommend his parole, the law requires the governor to grant the parole. It is mandatory, and the governor has no option as to whether he shall release the patient or not. Some of the papers are saying it is useless to send inebriates to the hospital because the governor will parole them out as fast as they are sent. Such criticisms are made by persons who simply don't know what the law requires."

The grand jury has returned a true bill against J. B. Rush, the well known colored attorney, charging him with obtaining money by false pretenses. Rush, since the departure of Sam Marsh probably the oldest colored attorney practicing in Des Moines, with a large practice among the people of his race, was retained to defend John Walker, the colored man indicted jointly with Harris Levich for the murder of Isaac Finkelstein, and assisted in the defense of Levich. The charge is that Rush went to C. E. Sampson, a prisoner in the county jail, and represented to him that if he would give him $40 he could compromise the suit brought against him. Sampson says he wrote to his brother for the money, that it was sent out in New York exchange, that he endorsed it over to Rush and that that was the last he saw of the money. Other witnesses testified that Rush cashed the draft and that the money did not go to the parties for whom it was intended, and that there was no offer or talk of a compromise.

Marvin Hughitt, president of the Chicago & Northwestern road, has put an end to the oft repeated story that negotiations are pending looking to the purchase of the Chicago Great Western road by the Chicago & Northwestern. Mr. Hughitt has caused to be sent over the wires of his company, a statement to the effect that there is absolutely no truth in the report, that there never have been negotiations looking to the purchase of the property, and that the Northwestern does not desire to control it.

Mahall P. Wider tells of a certain Irishman, famed for hard drinking, who is asked why he did not take just one drink each day and let it go at it. "Shure," answered Pat, "what good would wan be? A bird can't fly with one wing."

In reminiscences, Charles Brookfield, a retired English actor, says: "My father was dining in London one night with the Oxford and Cambridge Club with Tennyson and two or three others. After dinner, the poet insisted on putting his feet on the table, tilting back his chair "more Americano." There were strangers in the room, and he was expostulated with for his uncouthness, but in vain. "Do put down your feet!" pleaded his host. "Why should I?" retorted Tennyson; "I'm very comfortable as I am." "Every one is staring at you," said another. "Let 'em stare," replied the poet, placidly. "Alfred," said my father, "people will think you're Longfellow.' Down went the feet.

"THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING LIE IN THE EATING."

The doors are dumbfounded, the druggists astonished, and the people excited at joyful over the wonderful cures and tremendous sales of the great Rendy, St. Jacobs Oil. Every case of Rheumatism—some of many years' standing—has given way to this powerful remedy. Thousands of certificates like the following can be furnished as to its value:—

George Meyer, Publisher of the Chilton, Wis., "Volksbote," used St. Jacobs Oil for "almost unbearable pains in the back, which had completely prostated him." A few applications cured him entirely.

Mrs. Fred Eberle, Bellaire, O., was for a long time severely troubled with Rheumatism. St. Jacobs Oil instantly relieved and entirely cured her.

Rev. Dr. B. Pick of Rochester, N. Y., suffered so intensely from Rheumatic pains that he was unable to preach. Several applications from a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil relieved him."

F. Radder, Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Two applications of St. Jacobs Oil cured me of great and long-continued pain in my foot."

Messrs. C. L. Brundage and Son, Druggists, Muskegon, Mich., write:—"St. Jacobs Oil has a wonderful sale. We sold eight bottles at retail yesterday. This will give you some idea of how well it is liked in this section."

Mr. Louis Hinkel, of East Poesten, Kill, N. Y., says:—"I call St. Jacobs Oil the best liniment I ever used. It cured me of Rheumatism and pain in the back."

Herman Rittner, Manchester, N. H.:—"I have tried St. Jacobs Oil, and found it excellent. All those who have purchased it speak of it as 'simply incomparable.'"

Geo. G. Erffle, Palestine, Ill.:—"I was in bed suffering from a swollen leg. I used St. Jacobs Oil, its effect was wonderful. The following day I attended to my business again."

Dr. Otto Fuls, Reading, O., writes:—"The sale of St. Jacobs Oil is constantly increasing; it is praised by everybody, and never fails to give entire satisfaction."

CONVINCING PROOF.

Case No. 41,206.—Capt. Alfred G. Rigler of Hose Company No. 4, Canton, Ohio, says: "I had a weak back ever since I was a boy, and about six years ago the cause developed into rather a bad case of kidney complaint. It was not a little backache now and then, but backache which caused actual suffering day and night, and the harder I tried to get rid of it the worse it became.

When the attacks were in the acute stage it was difficult to sit down, and when down it was just as hard to regain an erect position, on account of the twinges of pain in the kidneys. I can only describe some of the pangs as similar to that received from a knife thrust.

In time, distressing and terribly inconvenient urinary weakness resulted, causing annoying embarrassment during the day and loss of sleep during the night.

I took everything which came to my notice from reading, from observation, and which my friends and acquaintances advised. I consulted physicians, but none of them were able to relieve the trouble, let alone stop it.

It became so well known that I had a pronounced case of kidney complaint that I often received circulars from medical companies offering to cure me, and one day eighteen letters were handed to me by the mail carrier.

When Doan's Kidney Pills attracted my attention I wanted to try them, just as I had tried everything else, and Mrs. Rigler went to Durban & Wright Co.'s drug store for a box. Relief followed.

I knew after a dose or two that the medicine was acting directly on the kidneys from the altered condition of the kidney secretions, and, encouraged, I continued the treatment. Finally, the backache and other complications stopped.

Let me sum up my opinion about Doan's Kidney Pills by saying, I would willingly pay one month's wages for a box of them if I could not buy them for less. You can refer any one to me about Doan's Kidney Pills and I will convince them that they act just as represented."

Four Years After.

"Lapse of time has strengthened my appreciation of Doan's Kidney Pills. I gave this remedy my unqualified endorsement in the summer of 1896, because of the results I obtained from a course of the treatment. I can now add to my original endorsement the experience of a number of others who are just as enthusiastic, when they express their opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills, as I."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Rigler, will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

At Worthville, Ky., the other day, President Roosevelt made a few remarks to a large and enthusiastic crowd. The barking of a number of wildly enthusiastic yellow dogs punctuated his remarks, whereupon the President remarked: "It may interest this community to know that I have six children and five dogs at home, and that at last reports all of them were well." "Say!" shouted a lean and lanky citizen, "what sort of dogs is that you've got?" "I wouldn't like to specify any particular breed for any of them," said the President, "but I don't believe you can name any breed that isn't represented."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Charles James Fox was, on one occasion, a guest at a dinner-party at Horace Walpole's, where, at the last moment, George Selwyn, the readiest of wits, whose strange weakness was attending executions, strolled in. "George looks as cheerful as though he had just come from an execution," remarked Horace Walpole. And Fox said, smilingly: "A namesake of mine was to be hanged at Tyburn today. I suppose you were in at the death, Selwyn?" "No, my friend," said Selwyn, promptly, "I make a point of never frequenting rehearsals."

It is said that at a banquet during his visit to America, Prince Henry of Prussia, in speaking to a certain senator, deplored the estrangement between Great Britain and Germany owing to the South African war. "I am afraid," he added, "the press is making matters worse," and he concluded by asking the senator his opinion of the attitude of America if there should be a war. "Well, sir," said the senator, "it is the tradition of America to remain neutral, but you have so won our hearts that we would stretch our neutrality, and as the war developed itself we should be very happy to offer you and your brother an asylum in Washington."

"Then I started taking Dodd's Kidney Pills and—well, you can see how I look and I feel as well as I look. My Rheumatism is gone and the Dropsy with it.
"I don't think they'll ever bother me again, but if they do I'll just get some more of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I know that will fix them."
Mrs. Hanson, too, whose health was far from good, took the same remedy and she joins with her husband in recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills.

How glad I am that I did so; two bottles brought me immense relief, and after using three bottles more I felt new life and blood surging through my veins. ### Ridder-Lenz.

On Wednesday of this week occured the marriage of Mr. Adolph Ridder, of Fenton, Iowa and Miss Martha Lenz, of German township. The solemn vows were taken at the home of the brides parents Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lenz, who reside about one mile west of Klemme. The ceremony took place at four o'clock in the presence of a number of relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties and was performed by Rev. Koerner.

The groom is quite well known in Klemme, having been engaged in the blacksmith business here for some time, but is now in the machine business at Fenton, and is numbered among that thriving town's prosperous business men. He is a very pleasant gentleman to meet, a young man of excellant habits and will make for the lady of his choice a kind and loving husband.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. E. Lenz, one this county's most prosperous farmers, and is highly spoken of by her acquaintances. She posse ses a very lovable d sposition and is very popular with her associates. She is in every way worthy of the young man to whom she has given her hea t. These young people will take up their residence at Fenton about Christmas time.

The TIMES extends congratulations to the newly married couple, may their future be a prosperous and happy one.

We call attention to the statement of the State Saving Bank in this issue. The showing made is creditable to the management of that institution, and shows that good sound banking principles are employed.

Geo. Asplin and S. W. Merten of Garner, were business visitors here on Thursday.

Wm. Ramsey, one of Garner's legal lights transacted business here on Thursday.

A. D. White and daughter Miss Mamie, of Goodell, were guests at the Sweigard home on Thursday.

What Has Been Going on During the Past Week.

FIGHT IN PASSENGER COACH

Gang of Laborers En Route to Kansas City Get Into a Free Fight on a Santa Fe Train and Five are in Serious Condition as a Result.

Centerville, Dec. 15.—A gang of twenty laborers enroute from Chicago to Kansas City on a Rock Island passenger train, No. 9, got into a fight near Centerville. Three of them were seriously cut, and one cannot live. The train was stopped here and five men were taken off and given in charge of doctors. None of them would give their names. The remainder of the party, fourteen in number, were arrested at Trenton, Mo., and will be held pending an investigation. The men were workmen in the employ of the Rock Island, it is understood. The fight lasted several minutes. It began by one man slashing another man across the face with a knife. He was immediately jumped upon by the other men in the party and beaten to insensibility. It is thought his skull was fractured as a result of his being kicked in the head. The man cut suffered from loss of blood, but will recover. Two other men were slightly cut about the head in the melee. The man who did the cutting was almost thrown from the smoking car, where the fight occurred, before the row was stopped by passengers.

NEW ROAD ELECTS OFFICERS.

Meeting of Stockholders of Iowa Falls Road Held at Iowa Falls.

Iowa Falls, Dec. 11.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Des Moines, Iowa Falls and Northern Railroad company was held at the offices of the company in this city, the most of the stock being represented by the stockholders in person or by proxy. The annual reports of the officers of the road were made and showed the progress made by the road the past year. The following board of directors was elected: E. S. Ellsworth, W. H. Woods, J. H. Funk, Z. K. Hoag, Wm. Welden, W. H. Courtney, M. W. Hill, H. C. Miller, H. B. Hall, W. V. Shipley, C. E. Shaw, T. E. Jones, J. L. Farrington, J. M. Rinehart and J. D. McKay. The board elected the following officers for the coming year: President, E. S. Ellsworth; vice president, William Welden; secretary, J. H. Funk; treasurer, W. H. Wood; auditor, W. V. Shipley.

The matter of running the line northeast from this city was brought up and thoroughly discussed, finally being placed in the hands of the executive committee to make preliminary surveys as soon as the weather will permit of field work in the spring.

COUNTY AUDITOR IS INDICTED.

Marion County Man Charged With Changing Election Returns.

Knoxville, Dec. 12.—Quite a sensation was sprung upon the people here yesterday morning when it was given out that County Auditor G. W. Van de Wilt had been arrested on two charges of forgery. The grand jury found two indictments against him, one for changing the poll books of Lake Prairie township to read 358 for himself and 152 for Ruckman instead of 112 for Ruckman and 348 for Van de Wilt. The other charge is for changing Summit township poll book to read 145 instead of 141, and Ruckman 98 instead of 104. These two townships were thrown out in the official count, and gave Ruckman a majority, otherwise Van der Wilt had a majority. Mr. Van der Wilt has a contest against Ruckman in this term of court. Mr. Van der Wilt has always been highly thought of, and these charges are causing a sensation. He gave bond in the sum of $2,000.

EXONERATE CAR MEN.

But the Responsibility of Company Is Unsettled.

Des Moines, Dec. 13.—The coroner's jury, having in charge the inquiry into the cause of the death of Helen Frawley in the street car accident Thanksgiving day, returned a verdict exonerating the employes of the street railway company from blame. The jurors found the cause of the accident to be due to a breaking of a rod, but did not express any opinion regarding the causes responsible for the same. The jury and coroner repaired to the residence of Motorman Kane, and heard his statement. His testimony was corroborative with that of Conductor Norton. He stated that the brake refused to work and that the trolly having left the wire he was unable to apply the current to reverse the motor and thus check the speed.

"SUNDAY NEWS" A YEAR OLD.

Great Success of Des Moines' New Sunday Newspaper.

Des Moines, Dec. 11.—The Des Moines Sunday News will close its first year this month. The Sunday edition was added to the daily nearly one year ago and the price of both combined fixed at $1.50 a year—the lowest price of any paper in the world published 265 days in the year. The Sunday edition is exceedingly popular and the result is that the total circulation of the News is now close to 40,000. Last Sunday's News was a 16-page paper, teeming with interesting news, literary and pictorial features. No subscriptions are taken for either the daily or Sunday edition alone.

SALOON KEEPERS INDICTED.

Jones County Grand Jury Makes Clean Sweep.

Anamosa, Dec. 12.—The grand jury for the December term has adjourned after finding indictments again seventeen of the eighteen saloons of Jones county for keeping a nuisance, selling liquors or beer from rooms or buildings outside of the building and for selling to minors. Only one city or town escaped, which was Mariette. An effort will be made to postpone trial until the March term of court, as the saloon element of Jones county are in mortal terror of Judge Remley, whose term expires January 1, 1903.

Thompson Firm Is Insolvent.

Thompson, Dec. 13.—Jerde Bros., retail merchants, are insolvent. Their book accounts and stock are in the hands of H. O. Brown, trustee. The liabilities are $33,000. The assets will not exceed $12,000. The proprietors have made application for discharge in bankruptcy.

MURDER CAUSED BY WOMAN

Ottumwa, Dec. 11.—At the mining camp of Keb in this county a fatal stabbing affray occurred among colored miners. Frank Williams and William Slater had a quarrel over an alleged insult which it was said had been offered to Williams' wife. The exact nature of the accusation is not known, but both men became embittered over the affair. Finally Williams' wife went after Williams and took him over to the place where Slater lived and it is said demanded revenge. What happened within is not known, but a few minutes later Slater came running out of the rear door of the cabin and he had a deep cut in his body. He ran about thirty feet and leaned up against an outbuilding, standing there about two minutes before he fell to the ground. Those who were present and saw the affair were afraid to approach Slater for about a half hour, when others came and it was found he was dead. Williams gave himself up to Justice Stainer and will plead self defense. The cut in Slater which caused his death was a deep one in his right breast. Williams has a wife and one child. Slater was single.

IOWA CROPS SHORT.

Rain of 1902 Did More Damage Than the Drouth of 1901.

Des Moines, Dec. 13.—Iowa's 1902 crop, at current prices, is worth $215,722,339. Such are the figures collected by Director Sage. This looks big but for Iowa it is comparatively small. Last year, despite the drouth, the crops were worth $274,000,000, or $59,000,000 more than this year. The year before the crops were worth at current prices at that time $229,000,000.

Wet weather, frosted corn and a ruined oats crop are responsible for the $59,000,000 shortage as compared with a year ago. The corn crop alone, current prices and average yields compared, is worth $35,000,000 less this year than a year ago, while the oats crop is worth $18,000,000 less than a year ago. Other crops suffered, but the big loss was in the damage to corn and the ruin of fully half the oats crop.

Carefully compared figures made up by Professor Sage, director of the Iowa crop service, and aided by reporters who are experienced farmers from each township, in the county, show the above results.

His report shows that but 47 per cent of the corn produced in Iowa this year will be marketable. The total yield is 296,950,230 bushels. The marketable corn amounts to 137,629,608 bushels. In 1901 the entire crop was classed as marketable corn. The yield was 227,000,000 bushels in that year or 69,000,000 bushels less than this year. Despite the small yield in 1901 there were 90,000,000 more bushels of marketable corn than this year. In 1900, when the bumper crop of 345,000,000 bushels of corn was raised, the marketable corn exceeded that of this year by 208,000,000 bushels.

Professor Sage's reports show, however, that the soft or frost bitten corn all has a value for feeding purposes but it is worth much less for this purpose than would be a corresponding amount of sound corn. This is due to the fact that at basket measure it will run about eighteen pounds to the bushel lighter than the sound or marketable corn.

The estimates on the total yield are at basket measurements. The estimate of the amount of marketable corn is based on weight measure of fifty-six pounds to the bushel.

DOUBLE MURDER AT CLINTON.

Benjamin Carroll and Charles Granderson Quarreled Over Woman.

Clinton, Dec. 15.—As the result of a quarrel here yesterday forenoon Charles Granderson was shot and instantly killed, Benjamin Carroll was seriously wounded in two places, and Mrs. Gertie Carroll is at the hospital with a bullet in her right lung, which the physicians say will cause her death. All are colored. Granderson came here about a month ago from Sioux City and secured board in a house two doors from the Carrolls. He was very attentive to Carroll's wife, although the latter never offered him any encouragement. He was told by both Mr. and Mrs. Carroll to cease his attentions, but was persistent and a quarrel followed. They met frequently and their bitterness grew so intense each armed himself with a six shooter. Saturday Carroll told a police officer that he would kill Granderson, but the threat was considered an idle one. Sunday forenoon the two men met early in front of the Carroll residence and after a few words each commenced to fire with revolvers. Mrs. Carroll, who was in the house, heard the quarrel and rushed down between the combatants and almost immediately fell with a bullet hole in her back. When the smoke of battle had cleared Granderson was dead with a bullet hole in his heart, Mrs. Carroll was fatally wounded and Carroll had a wound in his leg and one in his shoulder. The police were soon on the scene and arrested Caroll and placed him in jail. Mrs. Carroll was taken to the hospital.

MAIL CLERK DISAPPEARS.

Throws Up His Job and Leaves for Parts Unknown.

Dubuque, Dec. 15.—Cornet F. Stark, a clerk in the railway mail service, running between Dubuque and Sioux City, has disappeared as completely as if the earth had swallowed him. A week ago he sent in his resignation said to send his mail in the future to "Unknown," and now cannot be located by those who are interested in him. His wife, who is a practicing physician of Cherokee, is very much worried and doing everything in her power to find him. Stark is a man about 3 years of age and has been in the railway mail service for many years, running out of Dubuque. He originally came from Kansas, secured a position as newsboy on the Illinois Central road, and while doing this work passed an examination for railway mail clerk. He was taken into the service and has since been running out of Dubuque. During the war he served in the Philippine Islands. He was a careful, conscientious man and performed his work in a competent manner. A few years ago he was married to a Cherokee girl, who is a graduate of a medical college and practices her profession in the western part of the state. It is thought he wandered off while temporarily deranged.

Trees for the Fair Grounds.

Des Moines, Dec. 13.—The state agricultural board has authorized the purchase of 100 or more trees to be set out on the state fair grounds and other work looking toward systematic making of the grounds more beautiful. The horticultural society will co-operate in this good work and the park and forestry association is also deeply interested. A movement has also been started in the horticultural society for a conservatory on the fair grounds.

PORTO CABELLO IS BOMBARDED

British and German Men of War Fire on Defenses of That Port.

THE FORT IS SOON SILENCED

Custom House Also Shelled By the Attacking Warships—Castro Sends a Note to Germany Declining to Yield One Point to the Powers.

Porto Cabello, Dec. 15.—The British cruiser Charybdis and the German cruiser Vineta have bombarded the fortress here. They quickly silenced it.

The Charybdis and the Vineta arrived here Saturday morning. The captain of the English merchant steamer Topaze which was seized by the mob last Wednesday visited the English commodore on board the Charybdis and returned an hour later with a detachment of fifty marines who took charge of the Topaze.

The populace were greatly excited at this incident and raised the cry "to arms" but no incident occurred.

The English commodore sent a demand to the authorities for immediate satisfaction for having pulled down the British flag from the Topaze and advised the government that if satisfaction was not forthcoming in two hours the fortress and the customs house would be bombarded. The authorities on the receipt of this demand sent a message to President Castro asking for instructions.

A committee of the merchants of Porto Cabello then approached the American consul here, petitioning him to intervene. The consul accepted this mission and visited the cruisers, but he could obtain no alteration in the decision of the allies.

At a quarter before 5 a reply was received from President Castro, who authorized the chief official here to give the British commodore ample satisfaction. Before this answer could be communicated to the American consul the hour stipulated for its receipt had arrived; the cruisers immediately opened fire on the fortress.

The fire was returned from Fort Solano and Castle Libertador, but the Venezuelan guns were soon silenced.

While the firing continued there was intense excitement in this port. Every house in town was closed.

The people of Porto Cabello cannot account for this precipitate action on the part of the allies, which they consider to be proof that Great Britain and Germany intend forcing war upon Venezuela.

The British marines purpose to make use of the cannon in Castle Libertador.

No damage was done to the town. The excitement of the people is subsiding. Only a few persons were injured by the shelling.

La Guaira, Dec. 15.—The German cruiser Vineta captured near Guanta the Venezuelan gunboat Restaurados, formerly George J. Gould's yacht Atlanta. A crew from the Vineta was put aboard and the captured vessel was sent to Trinidad.

Berlin, Dec. 15.—President Castro's reply to the German ultimatum is a refusal to yield on any point.

The foreign office has not received the text of President Castro's reply, but only a bulletin from the German charge d'affairs, Herr von Pilgrim-Baltazzi, dated December 10, announcing that the president's answer had been placed in his hands that day and that the Venezuelan executive refused to yield to the German demands on all points. This telegram, with the text of the reply, was filed at Port of Spain, Isle of Trinidad. With this exception the foreign office has received no news since yesterday to indicate that the situation has grown worse. A landing force is not considered probable under any contingency. The orders to blockade the coast stand, and that is all the naval commanders are authorized to do.

VENEZUELANS MORE CAREFUL.

Following Admonitions of Bowen They Assume Moderatae Tone.

Caracas, Dec. 15.—It is now stated that Italy has handed to the Venezuelan government similar demands to those made by Germany and Great Britain for the payment of her claims.

The immediate object of the German commission in coming to La Guaira is to try and induce the commodore to delay the blockade.

Popular demonstrations continue here and the government is protecting the German legation in which Madame von Pilgrim-Baltazzi is lying ill. It is impossible to remove her to the United States legation.

Three thousand two hundred Venezuelan troops are in the neighborhood of La Guaira.

It is learned from a government source that, on the advice of Minister Bowen, a calm and cool attitude for twenty-four hours more has been adopted and that if the Anglo-German forces disembark at La Guaira the troops at the fort and in the newly erected redoubts will not fire on them, the object being to obtain time for Washington to answer as to the proposal for arbitration made to Berlin and London.

President Castro has taken up a new attitude. Strong in Venezuela's rights he ordered that reprisals are to cease and he has given instructions that all the property of the British and German railroads and British telephone companies all be returned. The government will retain still the control of the La Guaira railroad, but its administration will be left independent.

The Venezuelans have decided to boycott all goods manufactured in Germany and Great Britain, and in all stores notices are posted declaring that henceforth the owners will refuse to sell goods coming from those countries.

A special train left Caracas for La Guaira taking Alfred Blohm, a leading German merchant, and a German banker of Caracas. They are going on board the Vineta on a special mission to try and get Germany's acceptance of arbitration. President Castro gave the passports, though the initiative in this mission was taken by Germans and not by the government.

Revolver Duel on Highway.

Bloomington, Ill., Dec. 15.—Roy Colsen and Landers Parker fought with revolvers in the highway near Atlanta, Ill. Eight shots were fired. Parker was hit five times and probably will die. Colsen received a bullet in the jaw and in the arm. The men met while driving in their wagons. Parker is in a hospital at Lincoln, Ill., while Colsen is in jail. The shooting is believed to have been the outcome of an old quarrel.

CONGRESS.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Senate.—The senate today adopted all the committee amendments to the immigration bill, with the exception of one prescribing an educational test, and also the action of the committee in striking out section 36, prohibiting the sale of intoxicants within the capitol building, and then laid aside the bill until tomorow to pass a number of unobjected pension bills.

House.—The house paid a remarkable tribute to the memory of ex-Speaker Thomas Reed. His death had created a profound impression and there was a universal desire among the members that the house show a mark of respect to his memory. For the house to take action on the death of an ex-speaker only three cases in history are recorded, namely, on the occasions of the death of Benton, Blaine and Alexander Stephens, when the house adopted resolutions and adjourned out of respect to their memories. It was decided to follow these precedents in the case of Mr. Reed. The chaplain at the opening of the session paid a feeling reference to the death of the ex-speaker. No business was transacted. Mr. Sherman of New York, then amid profound silence, arose and in a few feeling remarks introduced the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That the following minutes be spread upon the record of the house of representatives:

"The Hon. Thomas Brackett Reed died in Washington, December 7, 1902. For twenty-two years he had been a member of the house; for six years its speaker. His service terminated with the Fifty-Fifth congress. Within this chamber the scenes of his life's great activity were laid. Here he rendered service to his country which placed him in the front ranks of American statesmanship. Here he exhibited characteristics which compelled respect and won admiration. Forceful ability, intrinsic worth, strength of character, brought him popular fame and congressional leadership. In him depth and breadth of intellect, with a full and well rounded development, had produced a giant who towered above his fellows and impressed them with his power and wisdom. A distinguished statesman, a lofty patriot, a cultured scholar, an incisive writer, an unmatched debater, a master of logic, wit and satire, the most famous of the world's parliamentarians, the great and representative citizen has gone into history."

"Resolved, That in honor of the distinguished dead, the house now adjourn."

When the reading of the resolutions had been concluded Speaker Henderson asked if there was objection to their consideration. The silence remained unbroken. The resolutions were then unanimously adopted and accordingly at 12:15 p. m. the speaker declared the house adjourned out of respect to the memory of Mr. Reed.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Senate.—The senate devoted most of the day to the immigration bill and adopted a number of amendments. There was considerable discussion of an amendment offered by Mr. Burton of Kansas to admit Chinese laborers to Hawaii. It was met with considerable opposition, and was finally laid on the table. The provision in the bill prohibiting the sale of liquor in the capitol building caused some criticism of the house for putting it in the bill, but the provision was not taken out. During the day the militia bill was discussed. It will be taken up again Thursday.

House.—After debating the London dock charge bill for almost four hours, the house today chopped its head off by striking out the enacting clause. This killed the bill. The debate was spirited on both sides, and all day the members were flooded with telegrams respecting the bill.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Senate.—Almost the entire session of the senate today was devoted to discussion of the omnibus statehood bill. The bill came over as the unfinished business from the last session and by agreement today was fixed for calling it up. The senate passed the bill passed earlier in the day by the house to relieve the conditions growing out of the repeal of the duty on tea.

House.—The feature of the house proceedings today was a thoughtful speech by the venerable Galusha A. Grow of Pennsylvania on the relations between labor and capital. His conclusion was that some sort of a co-operation between labor and capital was the only solution of the impending problem.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Senate the senate passed with several amendments the bill fixing the compensation of the anthracite coal strike commission, and it now goes to conference. The sentiment of the senate was strongly in favor of allowing the members of the commission, who are not in the civil or military service of the government, a lump sum for their service, and after considerable debate, $4,000 was, on motion of Senator Allison, settled upon as the proper amount, thus taking the matter out of the hands of the president, as the bill originally provided. Several other amendments to the bill were adopted, fixing the expenses of the commissioners and the assistant recorders at $10 per day, instead of $15, and leaving the question of the amount of salary of the assistant recorders and employes to the commission.

House.—The house today devoted practically the whole day to discussion of a resolution to limit the period of taking testimony in the Wagoner Butler contested election case to forty days and finally adopted a resolution to that effect by a party vote, 155 to 118.

Washington, Dec. 12.—House.—DeArmond of Missouri offered a resolution in the house today requesting the secretary of state to inform the public of the nature and extent of the claims of Great Britain and Germany against Venezuela and what efforts, if any and by whom, had been made to settle peaceably by arbitration the matters subject of the controversy and the full particulars.

TREATY WITH CUBA SIGNED.

Uniform Tariff Reduction of 20 Per Cent on Cuban Products.

Havana, Dec. 13.—A definite treaty of commercial reciprocity between Cuba and the United States, has been signed by General Bliss and Secretaries Zaldo and Montes. It only lacks the signatures of Secretary Hay and Senator Quesada and the approval of the United States and Cuban senators to make it operative.

Although the treaty provides for a uniform reduction of 20 per cent from the present tariff charges on Cuban products entering the United States, a parallel list of products has been drawn up in which is set forth the reductions on each item made by Cuba and the United States respectively. It is impossible now to make any material change in this list.

She—"I know that it is not so, but I cannot help feeling that it is." He—"I don't care whether it's so or not—I don't believe it."

VENEZUELA WARS WITH POWERS

No Formal Action, But Hostile Action Has Been Taken on Both Sides.

CASTRO CALLS MEN TO ARMS

It Is Announced That Minister Bowen Has Compelled the Release of the British and German Prisoners Placed Under Arrest By Castro.

La Guayra, Venezuela, Dec. 11.—Ten German and four British cutters captured the Venezuelan fleet Tuesday. They went alongside the Venezuelan vessels and ordered them to surrender, and without a shot being fired the British and German forces seized the fleet in the name of the German emperor and the king of England. Two of the vessels which were undergoing repairs were broken up.

The German cruiser Panther steamed into the harbor during these proceedings with her decks cleared for action. The Venezuelan steamers were taken outside the harbor and at 2 o'clock yesterday morning the General Crespo, Tutmo and Margarita were sunk.

The Assun was the only vessel spared, in view of the protest made by the French charge d'affairs, H. Quivreux, who notified the commodore of the allied fleet that the Ossun is the property of a Frenchman.

At 10 o'clock last evening 130 German sailors were landed and proceeded to Cardonal, a suburb of La Guayra in which is situated the residence of German Consul Lentz, whom, with his family, they escorted back to La Guayra and placed on board the warship Vinetta. On their way back to this port the German sailors met a party of Venezuelan soldiers, but no collision took place.

At 5 o'clock yesterday morning a landing party of thirty British seamen went to the British consulate and conducted the British consul, R. Schunck, and his family on board the Retribution.

The German and British residents at La Guayra were also arrested with the exception of Messrs. Fieldwick, Prince and Lepage, the English directors of the harbor corporation, who barricaded themselves in their house. These men were later taken on board the Retribution under guard of the allied powers.

No one here can explain the action of the allied powers in taking action without giving Venezuela time to reply to their note.

ASKS FOR ARBITRATION

PRESIDENT CASTRO APPEALS TO UNITED STATES.

Notice of Request Has Been Forwarded to Powers, but Little Hope of Success Is Entertained.

London, Dec. 9.—Premier Balfour announced yesterday that an ultimatum had been sent to Venezuela and that in the event of a satisfactory reply not being received the British and German governments would take measures to enforce their claims against the country.

Washington, Dec. 13.—A cablegram received at the state department yesterday from Minister Bowen at Caracas, states that the Venezuelan government has requested him to propose to Great Britain and Germany that the difficulties arising out of the claims for alleged damages and injuries to British and German subjects during the civil war be submitted to arbitration.

Secretary Hay went immediately into the cabinet meeting after the receipt of Minister Bowen's cablegram. Later, when Secretary Hay returned from the cabinet meeting the embassies were placed in possession of the news from Venezuela, and it was immediately cabled to Berlin and London. It is probable that news will be received over night and will be communicated to Minister Bowen, and will be communicated to the foreign ministers.

Therefore Secretary Hay replied to Minister Bowen's cablegram, authorizing him in his discretion to use his good offices to secure arbitration. He was, however, made to understand that in the arbitration, if one should follow, he would represent not the government of the United States, but that of Venezuela at its request.

It is realized here that the outcome is very doubtful, and the way is beset with difficulties. If the claims against Venezuela were only those of Great Britain and Germany, the adjustment might be easier, but France and Italy, the united States and perhaps other nations also have claims, and they cannot accept any arrangement which Great Britain and Germany might force upon Venezuela which would deprive them of their reclamation.

MRS GRANT DEAD.

Widow of Great General Succumbs to Attack of Heart Failure.

Washington, Dec. 15.—Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant, wife of President Grant, died at her residence in this city at 11:17 o'clock last night. Death was due to heart failure, Mrs. Grant having suffered for some years from valvular disease of the heart, which was aggravated by a severe attack of bronchitis.

Her age prevented her rallying from the attacks. Her daughter, Nellie Grant Sartoris, was the only one of her children with her at the time of her death, her three sons, who had been summoned here, all being out of the city.

There also were present at the bedside when the end came Miss Rosemary Sartoris, a granddaughter; Dr. Bishop, one of the attending physicians, and the two trained nurses. Death came peacefully, the sufferer retaining almost complete consciousness practically to the end.

NEW CABLE CHRISTENED.

Young Daughter of Governor Gage Performs Ceremony.

San Francisco, Dec. 15.—"In memory of John W. Mackey, I christen the Pacific cable. May it always carry messages of happiness." With these words Lucille Gage, 11-year-old daughter of H. T. Gage, governor of California, yesterday christened the trans-Pacific cable and breaking a bottle of champagne over the shore end, inaugurated a new era in the commercial development of the Pacific coast.

The landing and splicing of the shore end which is to connect the main land with Honolulu was accomplished without a hitch of any kind, and was witnessed by 30,000 or 40,000 people. Ideal weather prevailed, there being scarcely any surf.

THE INFLUENCE OF HEREDITY.

Lilias Haggard, Aged Nine, Is Now in Literature.

Admirers of Rider Haggard's writings will doubtless be interested in knowing that his youngest daughter, 9-year-old Lilias, who striking resembles her father, already has developed a taste for writing. She has recently completed a romance in which most of the characters come to fearful ends. In this, her first attempt, she shows the influence of her father's weird romances, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Haggard family formed an interesting picture at an "at home" given by them recently at the Hall, Ditchingham, England. Mrs. Haggard, handsomely gowned; her eldest daughter, in white silk, embroidered with silver; the second daughter, Dollie, who will soon be presented; the little Lilias, and the writer himself formed the home party. One of the guests was a brother of Mrs. Haggard, who is Consul in New Caledonia, and the original of Captain Good, in "King Solomon's Mines."

The novelist, tall, loose-limbed, and with a peculiar swinging gait, looking not unlike one of his own heroes, took his friends through the hothouses to look at the orchids. The love of those flowers with him amounts to a passion. He would rather talk flowers or farming than of literature or art.

Colorado Celery for the East.

Colorado celery is this year for the first time being shipped East. From an insignificant business of a few years ago it has developed to an enormous industry. Three years ago such a thing as shipping celery to the eastern markets was unheard of. But a few enterprising spirits decided to make the experiment and were amply rewarded for their efforts. The returns were so large that the next year they shipped nearly their entire crop East. Since then the business has developed rapidly, and this year will be the banner season of them all. Nearly twenty-five cars have been shipped, and a conservative estimate for the season would be that not less than forty cars will be shipped altogether. As each carload will easily average 24,000 pounds in weight, it means that fully 960,000 pounds of celery will be used for export trade alone.

Fifty Dollars to Sit Down.

Carmel, Ind., Dec. 15th.—Mr. Joseph L. Duffy relates an experience that has aroused considerable interest in this locality. It is best given in his own words:

"When I was working in the fields," says Mr. Duffy, "I would be ready to quit, but I could not get to the house I was so weak. It was worth fifty dollars to get to sit down.

"I had no strength and a person without strength is not much use.

"But bless the Lord I took four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they gave me health, strength and appetite.

"I might say I am cured, but I will keep on taking Dodd's Kidney Pills. Yes, I'll get them if it takes the last thing on the farm."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have effected quite a number of other cures here and it seems safe to say they are an effective and permanent cure for all diseases arising from the Kidneys.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Lost Found.

While the stirring events just narrated were transpiring in the grotto two men but a few miles below the valley were making their way along the trail made in the snow by old Ben Holton and the Indians.

"Can you follow it, Glum?" asked the young man, who was Clarence Berry.

"[illegible]kin follow it," he answered. The two travelers followed the trail until they came to where a portion of the tracks led up the stream, and some went across the river. Here Glum Ralston called a halt. He stood looking at the foot-prints in the snow and shook his great shaggy old head like one in doubt.

"Wall, I want t' tell ye I'm a mite wool-gathered" the old man growled, as he gazed at the foot-prints. "It's my opinion that we'll find the camp on the other side."

"I see a light!" exclaimed Clarence.

Glum Ralston turned his eyes in the direction indicated and said:

"Yes; now I see it—now I don't."

"It seems moving about."

"There is some one in the valley."

They could not only see a light, but figures moving about, and Clarence added:

"Glum, let us go over there first."

"Well," come on," the old ex-sailor grunted, and they started over the frozen river. When nearly across they discovered people running about in great excitement and loud cries, mingled with which was the shriek of a female voice. Then came the report of a gun, followed by two or three more in quick succession.

"Ho! Clarence, git a move on ye—there's a fight over there!' cried Glum Ralston, and the two increased their speed to a run.

* * * * * * *

We will precede Clarence Berry and Glum Ralston to the little camp and explain the cause of excitement.

When Lackland left to send reinforcements to kill or capture the old man from the mountain, whom he was quick to perceive was inimical to his interests, he little dreamed they would be coming to meet him.

The old man of the mountains, or hermit, as we have known him, watched Lackland across the river, but did not see him meet Cummins. Knowing it would be some hours before he would return, he did not consider haste necessary.

"We will be gone, my dear child, before that man returns," he said, in a kind, fatherly way, that won the heart of the girl.

"What do you propose?" she asked eagerly.

"Across this frozen river, the ice of which will bear your weight, as I have tested it myself, we will find a deep, dark cavern. Now, we will cross the river and I leave you there—"

"Why leave me there? Why not take me on to Paul?" she asked.

"Because you would be a hindrance to my rescuing him. No, no! You must consent to stay in the cavern or we will have to abandon the project of rescuing Paul."

"I will—I will do anything."

They began the search for capsules, lozenges and buttons of compressed and dessicated food, which took up little space and the weight trifling in comparison to the original food.

All this took time, and there came one delay after another, until hours had glided by before they were ready to depart. At last everything was ready.

"Now, my dear child, we are ready to go. I hope you won't find this journey too much for your strength."

"Don't consider that for a moment."

"Hark! I hear footsteps approaching!"

"Some one comes!" she gasped, turning deathly pale.

The men approaching the house were Lackland, with Cummins, Allen, Padgett and Ambrose. They had seized pine knot torches and were creeping stealthily toward the tent. The keen eye of the hermit had seen them and he hastily formed a little barricade, behind which he crouched, a revolver in each hand.

"Ho, there!" called the hermit captain. "Don't advance too near until you explain what your mission is!"

"My mission is to get to my tent," interposed Lackland. "Who are you who presumes to take our camp from us?"

"Keep off!"

One of the men behind Ned fired at the old captain and the bullet grazed the top of his cap.

"You got him!" shouted Ned. "We've got him this time!" and struck a blow at his head with his knotted stick. The stick fell on the sled runner and there came a blinding flash, a stunning report from the door of the tent. Ned staggered back and fell to the earth. For a moment his companions were appalled. Tom Ambrose fired two shots at his captain, but the mutineer was excited at the death of his companion, and aimed high.

"The hour of vengeance has come!" an awful voice shouted from the tent, and another report shook the air, and Tom Ambrose sank, a bullet in his brain.

This unexpected resistance appalled and unnerved Lackland and his companions, who beat a hasty retreat toward the river. They were nearly to the river bank when two men, leaping from the ice, ran toward them, crying:

"Hold! What does this mean? Lackland, you here?"

"Clarence Berry! I'm undone!"

Then, followed by his men, he ran up the stream, instead of across it.

"Let us follow them," said Clarence.

"No, let's go to the tent. There's been bloodshed there!"

They ran to the camp now deserted by the Indians and Esquimaux. Two men lay where they had fallen, the snow crimson with their blood. An old man came from the tent, holding a pale, trembling girl by the hand.

Clarence snatched up a burning brand that had fallen from the hand of some fugutive, and at a glance cried:

"Laura—Laura Kean!"

His shout was drowned by a roar from Glum Ralston.

"My captain, oh, my captain, found at last!" and in a moment those grizzled men, lost to each other a score of years, were clasped in each other's arms.

CHAPTER XIX.

Conclusion.

The reuinon of the sea captain and the faithful sailor was mild compared to a reunion that quickly followed. Another party was coming across the ice. The long, Arctic night was spent and the opening door of dawn was filling all the eastern Heavens with glory, when Paul, Kate, old Ben and their faithful canine friend sprang from the ice and hurried up the hill to the narrow valley, where the camp was.

Paul led the party, with Kate close behind. The first object he recognized was his faithful old friend, who had long mourned him as dead—Glum Ralston. The meeting can be better imagined than described. He was told that Laura was inside with Clarence and the long-lost captain, who was making desperate efforts to explain something which had befuddled everybody, and Paul tumbled head first into the tent, the worst befuddled of any one, and embraced Laura and Clarence, and for several moments the only rational being in the party was the faithful unknown dog, who sat on his haunches and panted.

It was fully an hour before everybody inside and everybody outside were at all themselves. Paul afterward had a dim recollection of hearing a voice very much like Glum Ralston's roar:

"Ain't you Kate Willis, my Kate?" and then he heard a voice which sounded very much like Kate crying:

"Ain't you Jack Ralston, my sailor boy?"

Then there was a collision, explosion, and the hub-bub increased.

At last, when all had time to recover, Kate and Jack, as she still called him, entered the tent, she declaring she would never permit him to leave her again. Jack explaining that he was staying in Alaska in compliance with an order from his captain to the effect that he was to never leave until he returned.

"And he has returned," said Jack. "He has come back and is here now; and Kate, I am ready to go."

The man whom we have known as the hermit captain said:

"My friends, this is the happiest day I ever knew. But one person more is necessary to make the reunion complete, and my cup of happiness run over. I want to ask some questions, and then make some explanations. First, is your name Paul Miller?"

"Yes, sir," Paul answered.

"Who was your father, and where is he?"

"My father was Captain Joseph Miller, who was lost before I can remember in Alaska or some of the islands of the Bering Sea."

"Do you know the name of the ship he last sailed in, and from what port?"

"Mother told me he sailed from San Francisco in a sealing schooner called the Eleanor."

"Jack—Jack! Have you been with him all these months and not know this?"

Glum Ralston leaped to his feet with a startled yell and cried:

"Crack-lash! A Miller—son of my captain! Why, by the name of Neptune, didn't ye tell me ye had some other name'n Crack-lash?"

Paul was dumbfounded. He had heard a hint that the hermit was his father, but the old man had so stubbornly denied it that he had concluded it must be false.

"Why did you deny I was your son when those men threatened to hang me?" Paul asked.

"My boy, I knew it then as well as now, but to acknowledge you to be my son was to be your own doom. They'd a hung ye then for sure, or tortured us both."

"What was they goin' to hang Crack-lash for?" asked Jack Ralston.

"Because I wouldn't tell where I'd cached a fortune in gold I got from the Alaskan mines. So long as they didn't know he was my son they could not force the secret from me that way."

"Well, cap'n, you played your part very fine, an' now that we have outwitted 'em, an' all goin' home soon, can you find the place where the gold is cached?"

"If I had a certain walrus hide I could. It is the one my son took from the cave."

"I gave it to you, Glum."

"And I've got it safe at camp."

In the midst of their rejoicing Paul did not forget the poor wretch who was lying in the cavern mangled and torn by the dog. Clarence and two Indians went and brought Morris to the camp, where Kate carefully dressed his wounds. He was the only man living save Belcher, who had robbed Paul, and told them where the treasure could be found, also making a full confession of his crime, admitting that Lackland had hired them to detain Paul in Alaska until he, Lackland, should win a certain lady's hand and heart.

The second day after the startling incidents narrated above the little camp was broken, all the dog sleds secured and porters, packers and Esquimaux set out for the Klondyke. Providence favored them, for there was no snow fall during their march.

At the Klondyke Ethel Berry gave them a reception in her shanty. Her amazement was unbounded to learn that Laura was in Alaska, and still, strangest of all, Paul had found a father who had been dead twenty years.

Kate went to Dawson City and established her laundry, though Jack tried hard to dissuade her. She said until she was Jack's wife she would support herself, and as there was no priest or parson on the Klondyke she saw no chance to marry until they left. Kate did a big business that winter, and as soon as the spring of 1897 came and the pass was open our friends went to Juneau and took a ship for San Francisco.

Paul had not only recovered his gold, but much more, which he took out that winter, while his father recovered his gold. Jack Ralston was worth seventy-five thousand dollars, while Clarence Berry and his sweet, brave little wife were rich several times over.

It was several months before the real fate of Lackland and his companions was known. After their failure to abduct Laura Kean the three men dared not return to the land of civilization, but went to Sheep Camp.

One morning, while the camp was still buried in sleep, there came a peculiar rumbling sound from the southwest side of the mountain, and, like an avalanche, the great glacier came rumbling, thundering down, burying tents and shanties and men beneath it. Some fled and a few escaped, but when the debris had cleared away several were missing. Buried deep under the landslide were Lackland, Cummins, Allen, Morris and Belcher.

Some one had gone on to Fresno and broke the news to Mrs. Miller by degrees. She could at first hardly believe her son alive, and it was still more difficult to believe the husband, whom she had for twenty years thought dead alive. When she was told that she would see them that very day, she swooned for ojy.

She was at the depot when the train came in and Captain Miller, shaven and shorn, and dressed in the garb of civilization, looking twenty years younger than when a wanderer in the Klondyke, stepped from the train to receive his fainting wife in his strong arms.

There was a wedding—of course there was. No story would be complete without a wedding, and in this there were two, for Jack Ralston would insist on being married to his faithful Kate on the same day Laura and Paul were wedded.

Clarence and Ethel Berry, who contributed so much to bring about the happiness of their friends, were present, and declared they never enjoyed but one other event more—that was their own wedding, of course. As these young people are wealthy beyond their fondest dreams, as they have tasted the bitter cup of poverty, and take delight in making others happy, it is safe to predict that their millions will not be squandered in frivolity, but the world will be better by their having lived, toiled and suffered.

May they live long to enjoy the golden riches taken from the treasure house of the Ice King on the Klondyke.

The End.

ALLIGATOR SEEKS A CHILD.

Saved From Death by Quick Action of Former Policeman.

While a number of passengers were waiting for the morning train at Pablo Beach, they heard the wail of a child, seemingly in great distress. Jerry Delaney, deputy sheriff and a former Cincinnati policeman, headed a number who hastened to search for the cause of the cry. A short distance away they saw a big alligator dragging a child away, having secured a hold of its dress in its mouth. The child was shrieking in fright.

The posse rushed to its rescue, and the alligator redoubled its efforts toward getting into the bay near by. A big dog belonging to the child came running along and dashed at the saurian's head. The alligator whacked its tail around with great force and struck the dog, knocking the animal toward the 'gator's mouth, which opened with a gulp, taking in the dog. The saurian killed the dog and swallowed him with ease, dropping its hold of the child's dress in the struggle.

The posse at once killed the 'gator. It was fifteen feet long. It is thought to have been made fiercer by hunger, as it is seldom they will attack human beings and especially so near a habitation. The child was uninjured. Jacksonville (Fla.) Correspondence.

WAS NOTHING ELSE TO DO.

Kentuckian Explains Why He Knocked Insulter Down.

He was a Kentuckian of the Kentuckians, and during a temporary stop in a northern town he became involved in a difficulty with a citizen of the place, which resulted in first blood for the visitor and his subsequent arrest. He appeared before the police judge with the true southern dignity that would not desert him under any circumstances.

"You are charged with assault—you knocked the prisoner down," said the judge in the ordinary tones he employed for ordinary prisoners.

"I did so, your honor," responded the prisoner simply.

"What did you do that for?"

"He called me a liar, your honor."

"Well, sir, you should not have knocked him down for that."

"I know it, your honor," admitted the prisoner, with a faint blush of shame.

"Then why did you do it? You do not look to be that kind of a man."

The prisoner bowed.

"I am not, your honor," he explained; "but, you see, I didn't happen to have my gun with me and there wasn't anything else to do."—New York Herald.

Leigh's Caustic Wit.

In Bohemian circles Leigh was popular as a conversationalist, although his satire was biting and his humor often personal. He was too much of a wit to consider the feelings of the man against whom he might aim his humorous or cynical shaft. One day talking of epitaphs, that accomplished if eccentric German member of the Savage Club, Dr. Strauss, said: "What would you write of me, Harry?" "I would do your epitaph in a single line," was the quick reply. "What would it be, my son?" asked Strauss. "Give the devil his Jew," answered Leigh. Strauss was a linguist and an accomplished man in many ways. He had lost most of his teeth, however, and did not speak as distinctly as his friends could desire. "What language is he speaking now?" asked a puzzled listener. "Gum Arabic," said Leigh.

TO WORKING GIRLS

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE

Every working girl who is not well is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice; it is freely given, and has restored thousands to health.

Miss Paine's Experience.

"I want to thank you for what you have done for me, and recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all girls whose work keeps them standing on their feet in the store. The doctor said I must stop work; he did not seem to realize that a girl cannot afford to stop working. My back ached, my appetite was poor, I could not sleep, and menstruation was scanty and very painful. One day when suffering I commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and found that it helped me. I continued its use, and soon found that my menstrual periods were free from pain and natural; everyone is surprised at the change in me, and I am well, and cannot be too grateful for what you have done for me."—MISS JANET PAINE, 530 West 125th St., New York City.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

Constipation Makes Bad Blood.

MULL'S GRAPE TONIC CURES CONSTIPATION

Constipation is the rotting and decaying of undigested food in the alimentary canal. Disease germs arise from this festering mass, which find their way into the blood. The blood becomes impure and shortly the entire system gives way to the unhealthy condition.

You cannot cure a case like this by taking pills or other common cathartics. A laxative will not do. A blood medicine is ineffective. Mull's Grape Tonic is a gentle and mild laxative in addition to being a blood-making and strength-giving tonic which immediately builds up the wasted body and makes rich, red blood that carries its health-giving strength to every tissue at every heart beat.

Mull's Grape Tonic is made of pure crushed fruit juices and is sold under a positive guarantee.

Doctors prescribe it. All druggists sell it at 50 cents a bottle.

BANK OF KLEMME.

On Wednesday evening of this week Miss Ella Matilda Arnold was united to Mr. J. A. Schneider. We were unable to glean the particulars, but shall endeavor to get them by next week.

Chas. Lenz, son of ex-recorder Fred Lenz, of Germantown, and Miss Lydia Sampson, daughter of Louis Sampson, of Germantown were married today, Thursday, Decemcer. 18. Being unable to get particulars we must omit them this issue.

The rural telephone in Germantown is about completed and the people having connections are highly pleased. Farmer Jones, out there can now sit beside his hard coal burner with his feet up on the center table and talk to Farmer Brown without winking an eye or rubing an ear.

News comes in that Freddie Sampson, who accidently shot his hand almost off last week, has escaped by the removal of two fingers. It was feared for some time that his hand would be entirely useless, but with two fingers and a thumb he can help himself considerable. It is certainly bad enough as it is.

Among the guests from abroad who were in attendance on the Ridder-Lenz nuptials were Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Kohlstedt and family and Julius Ridder, of Fenton, and Henry Ridder and family, W. M. Koerner and family. A. Koerner and family, Wm. and Louis Veitmeyer, and Lillie and Annie Shiel, of Rockford, Iowa.

Remember there is to be a Grand Ball in the Bank Hall, in Klemme on Christmas night. Dec. 25, 1902. There will also be a Masquerade Ball on New Year's Eve, Dec. 31, '02. Both these dances promise to be enjoyable affairs. Commence to get your costume ready now and win the prize which is offered the neatest costume.

The editor and family are now comfortably domiciled in the H. E. Peitzke house. By this comfortable domicility the penman of this glorious journal of modern civilization gains the vantage ground of being at home to take care of the wife and the little one. Don't be backward about visiting at our house and dropping in at the office occasionally to inform us that you wish some work done. Your desires shall be attended to promptly, firstly and lastly.

Wedded Wednesday.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Mr. George Nissen, of our city, to Miss Amy M. Paul, of Clear Lake. This event took place on Wednesday, December 24, 1902, at the home of the bride's parents who reside about 3½ miles north of Clear Lake, and the marriage ceremony was performed by the pastor of the U. B. church of Clear Lake. Several years ago the groom started to learn the blacksmith trade under H. E. Pietzke and having a surplus of natural aolility along mechanical lines, made a great success of this undertaking, and is today numbered among northern Iowa's best mechanics. He is a young man of good character, energetic and painstaking and these attributes have won for him a large circle of friends whose admiration he enjoys. He is at present engaged in the blacksmith business here having bought the property owned by his former employer, H. E. Pietzke. His popularity is best judged by words of praise which are heard on every hand concerning him. We do not know his bride, but were she a queen she has indeed found a fit companion.

The bride is the second oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Paul, highly respected citizens of Cerro Gordo county. She first met the man of her choice while teaching in our public schools. During her short stay here she made many warm friends. She is a musician of unusual ability, and to number her friends would be to enumerate her acquaintances. This is indeed a worthy young couple, and Mr. and Mrs. Nissen will be welcome residents of our city.

They will be at home to their friends after Dec. 29, 1902, in the George Ell house in the north part of town. The intervening time between the 24 and 29 inst. will be spent at Lu Verne visiting at the home of H. E. Pietzke.

The TIMES extends most hearty congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Nissen. Long may they live, prosper and be happy.

Schneider-Arnold.

The marriage of J. A. Schneider of Monona, and Miss Ella M. Arnold, of this place, was a very quiet affair, only the nearest relatives being present. The ceremony was performed by Rev Troutman, of Garner, and took place at 6:00 p. m. on Wednesday. The groom is a stranger to our people but is highly spoken of by those fortunate enough to know him. He is one of Clayton county's prosperous farmers. The bride is well known to the residents of this locality and is much admired by all. She is a very accomplished young lady and possesses those traits of character that cannot but attract admiration. She will be much missed by her former associates hereabouts. They left on Thursday for an extended wedding trip after which they will be at home at Monona, Iowa.

We extend most hearty congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Schneider.

What Has Been Going on During the Past Week.

LAW PROTECTS GAME BIRDS

Supreme Court Decides They Cannot Be Killed for Purposes of Science—Death of Thomas Meredith at Atlantic—Creditors of Oto Bank Lose Heavily.

Des Moines, Dec. 19.—In the case of the state against Harry E. Fields, the supreme court decided yesterday that game birds cannot be killed in the closed season for purposes of taxidermy or other scientific purposes. Fields was convicted before a Black Hawk county justice of killing quail in the closed season. He appealed to the district court, his defense being that he was a taxidermist engaged in collecting and mounting specimens for the State Normal school museum. The district court found him not guilty. Section 2551 of the code for the protection of game birds prescribes periods during which the killing of game birds is prohibited. No exception is made permitting them to be killed for any purpose, but section 2561, referring to certain harmless birds, other than game birds, prohibits the destruction of them or their eggs, except for the use of taxidermists. The supreme court rules, however, in an opinion by Judge McClain, that the exception in section 2561 does not apply to section 2551.

THOS. MEREDITH PASSES AWAY.

Well Known as a Greenback and Populist Leader for Many Years.

Atlanta, Dec. 19.—Thos. Meredith, a pioneer of Iowa, died on his farm west of this place yesterday, after being ill for several weeks. Mr. Meredith was well known throughout the state, especially by politicians. He formerly owned the Farmers' Tribune, published in Des Moines, and spent large sums of money in an endeavor to sustain it as the organ of the populist party. Thomas Meredith, in his days of activity, spent much time and energy advocating the principles of the populist party, and was known as a reformer. Especially was his campaign for the greenback a vigorous one. He was born in England in 1824 and came to this country twenty-eight years later. He came to Cass county in 1855, and has been a resident of this place and Des Moines since.

He has accumulated a large amount of property, and was always a generous contributor to charitable institutions.

One of his last acts was a gift of $5,0.. and a site for a Y. M. C. A. building in this city.

NEW TRIAL DENIED.

Court Holds Tate Should Not Complain of Verdict Rendered.

Des Moines, Dec. 22.—In the district court Judge McHenry overruled the motion for a new trial in the libel suit of J. C. Tate vs. R. P. Clarkson whereupon plaintiff gave notice of appeal.

Judge McHenry said in overruling the motion that he was free to confess that the verdict was a surprise to him, that he expected the jury to find for the plaintiff, and thought that the record made in the case was all with the plaintiff. He said that he had expected the jury to find nominal damages. He said that the plaintiff in pleading that the Register had come to be known as the Ever Truthful because of its well established reputation for truthfulness had placed the defendant in an awkward position and precluded his coming in to plead that the article was not believed by the readers of the Register as mitigation. Continuing he said that he did not believe that Tate had been damaged by reason of the publication, that he did not think readers believed the charges contained in the Register and that he thought that was the view of it taken by the jurors. He said that believing that the plaintiff was entitled to recover only nominal damages, he thought that it was not his province to set the verdict aside, and that in doing so he believed he was doing a kindness to Tate in putting an end to the litigation in so far as the district court is concerned.

MERRIAM DENIES IT ALL.

Claims His Course Was Regular Throughout.

Des Moines, Dec. 20.—Hon. Frank F. Merriam, auditor of state the past four years, arrived in the city yesterday from New York. He had received telegraphic information of the public statements that the state executive council had taken up alleged complaints made by insurance companies against the state auditor charging him with extortion in the examination of eastern insurance companies. It was because of this that he returned sooner than expected.

Mr. Merriam was seen in his office and was asked to state what course he would pursue.

"I have no plans whatever," he said. "I have no information that there has been any complaints against me other than the publications in the newspapers, which were shown me this morning on my return home. I do not know that the members of the executive council have considered the matter or have had it called to their attention or that they have any accusation against me. Until I have some cause to defend myself I do not feel it necessary to do so, and least of all I do not care to go into the newspapers in defense of mere newspaper stories, the source of which I do not know."

"How about the charge of extortion hinted at in the New York Insurance Press?"

"I can say in regard to that, that I do not know what company is referred to; but I can say this, that there has been no charge of $250 for two half days or anything of the kind. That is absolutely false and without foundation."

"The fact is," continued Mr. Merriam, "that I have made these examinations in pursuance of notices sent to them last April. There has been no 'swing around the circle' at the end of my term or anything of that sort. The examinations have been made regularly and properly. And more than that there has been no objection whatever to these examinations, save possibly in the case of two of the companies examined. I have here letters of thanks from a number of them because of the examinations and the reports made."

TWO MEN ESCAPE GALLOWS.

Supreme Court Grants a New Trial to Phillips and Brooks.

Des Moines, Dec. 22.—New trials have been ordered by the supreme court in two murder cases, those of Albert G. Phillips and Louis Brooks, the Greenville bank robbers, and that of Matt Hunter, the slayer of Homer Holland, of Mt. Ayr. In each case the trial court was reversed because of errors in instructions.

The result of the decisions of the supreme court is that the executions of Phillips and Brooks, both of whom were originally sentenced to death December 1., are indefinitely postponed. Indeed, there is now almost no prospect that either of the men will ever be hung, and in view of the ruling made on the case by the supreme court, it appears unlikely that they wil be convicted of a worse crime than that of murder in the second degree, the extreme penalty for which is life imprisonment.

The history of the case of Phillips and Brooks has been told and retold repeatedly. November 1o, of last year the bank at Greenville, Clay county, was robbed, the crime being committed, as was made clear by the subsequent admissions of the men, by Phillips, Brooks and one Dolan, who was killed later at Albert City. The next day Marshall Lodine, of Albert City, a town in the eastern part of Buena Vista county, was advised the three men suspected, described as a mulatto and two white men, were headed toward Albert City. They were located in the waiting room at the depot by the marshal. That officer organized a posse in the business section of the town and, going to the depot, the marshal and posse rushed into the waiting room with weapons leveled and ordered the three suspects to throw up their hands. The bank robbers instead of complying, began to fire on the posse, and there was a general interchange of shots. In the fusillade, John Sunbald was fatally shot, Lodine was wounded, and Dolan, who was with Phillips and Brooks, was killed. Phillips and Brooks were captured, indicted for murder in the first degree, and were convicted and sentenced to hang in the court of Judge A. D. Baillie at Storm Lake.

The supreme court, in an extensive opinion written by Judge Weaver, reverses the lower court on errors in instructions.

The chief question that arises relates to the instruction of Judge Baillie that a presumption of wilful and premeditated intent to murder arises from the fact that one points a loaded weapon at another, takes aim and fires with fatal effect. The supreme court holds differently. It lays down this principle: "Proof of intentional homicide without circumstances of mitigation or excuse affords a presumption of malice and therefore of murder, but that presumption of murder is in the second and not in the first degree." Throughout, the court indicates the proper distinction between murder in the first and murder in the second degrees was not made in the instructions and it comes close to criticising the method of arrest and holding that the defendants were justified in resisting.

In the case of the state vs. S. M. Hunter, an appeal from the Ringgold county court, presided over by Judge R. L. Parrish, there was also a reversal on errors in istructions. "Matt" Hunter, as he was generally called, shot and killed Homer Holland, one of the leading all around athletes of the state and a former student at Drake university of his city. The shooting was on the streets in broad daylight and was the result of a quarrel over a gambling debt. The murder was committed November 9, 1901. Hunter was convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced to imprisonment for life. He is now serving out the sentence at Fort Madison. In reversing the lower court and remanding the case for a new trial, the supreme court, in an opinion by Judge Deemer, makes an important point of an error of the lower court in the challenging of the jury. When the jury was being selected, after the state had given eight peremptory challenges and the defendant seven, Judge Henry, counsel for Hunter, announced that he waived one more challenge. R. H. Spence, counsel for the other side, said: "So do we." The court asked the jury to be sworn, and when Judge Henry interrupted and asked the right to another peremptory challenge, the court refused to permit it. The court holds this was a reversible error and lays down these rules. "1st—That the waiver of a peremptory challenge does not amount to an acceptance of a juror already in the box. "2d—That after a waive of all challenges, but before the jury is sworn, a party who has exhausted the number to which he is entitled may exersise a further one peremptorily."

It is also held the lower court erred in not admitting evidence as to the quarrelsome disposition of Holland, as tending to show that Hunter acted in self defense.

LAMP EXPLOSION CAUSES FIRE.

Hardware and General Store at Archer a Total Loss.

Archer, Dec. 19.—Fire originating in the hardware store of A. Menning destroyed that store and the general merchandise store of Emmenbeck Bros. The loss will amount to about $12,000, with $7,000 insurance.

The blaze was caused by the explosion of a lamp. The flames spread quickly, and soon enveloped the entire building. Owing to the lack of fire fighting apparatus the conflagration could not be checked, and the Emmenbeck store adjoining was also destroyed. When the fire was burning it looked as if the whole town would go. No one was injured during the fire.

Emmenbeck Bros.' loss is: Stock, $4,000 and building $2,000, protected by $4,000 insurance. The Menning loss was $..,500 on store and $2,000 on building, with $3,000 insurance. All the insurance is in the German of Freeport.

CREDITORS LOSE HEAVILY.

Oto Bank Will Pay Less Than 50 Cents on the Dollar.

Sioux City, Dec. 19.—J. T. McVay trustee in bankruptcy for the Oto bank, has filed with C. L. Joy, referee in bankruptcy, his first report of the condition of the bank's affairs.

The schedule of liabilities, both secured and unsecured, totals $150,000.772.92; the schedule of assets amounts to $45,708.73. Of the liabilities, however, $74,000 in this list are secured, and these creditors should be able to satisfy their claims with the collateral. This leaves unsecured claims already filed of $76,772.92.

While Trustee McVay makes no estimate of the real value of the assets, which are scheduled at their face value, it is not expected that nearly $45,000 will be realized. The conclusion may be inferred from this showing of the bank's affairs that not more than 50 cents on the dollar will be paid.

CHAPTER I.

The Van Heemskirks.

It was May in New York one hundred and twenty-one years ago, and yet the May A. D. 1886—the same clear air and wind, the same rarefied freshness, full of faint, passing aromas from the wet earth and the salt sea and the blossoming gardens.

In the city the business of the day was over; but at the open doors of many of the shops little groups of apprentices in leather aprons were talking, and on the broad steps of the City Hall a number of grave-looking men were slowly separating after a very satisfactory civic session. They were all noticeable men, but Joris Van Heemskirk specially so. His bulk was so great that it seemed as if he must have been built up; it was too much to expect that he had ever been a baby. He had a fair, ruddy face, and large, firm eyes, and a mouth that was at once strong and sweet. And he was also very handsomely dressed. The long, stiff skirts of his dark-blue coat were lined with satin, his breeches were of black velvet, his ruffles edged with Flemish lace, his shoes clasped with silver buckles, his cocked hat made of the finest beaver.

With his head a little forward, and his right arm across his back, he walked slowly up Wall street into Broadway, and then took a northwesterly direction towards the river bank. His home was on the outskirts of the city, but not far away; and his face lightened as he approached it.

Councillor Van Heemskirk's father had built the house and planted the garden, and he had the Dutch reverence for a good ancestry. Often he sent his thoughts backward to remember how he walked by his father's side, or leaned against his mother's chair, as they told him the tragic tales of the old Barneveldt and the hapless De Witts; or how his young heart glowed to their memories of the dear fatherland, and the proud march of the Batavian republic.

"Good evening, Mr. Justice. Good evening, neighbor," and he stood a minute, with his hands on his garden gate, to bow to Justice Van Gaasbeeck and to Peter Sluyter, who, with their wives, were going to spend an hour or two at Christopher Laer's garden.

"Men can bear all things but good days," said Peter Sluyter, when they had gone a dozen yards in silence; "since Van Heemskirk has a seat in the council room, it is a long way to his hat.

"Come, now, he was very civil, Sluyter. He bows like a man not used to make a low bow, that is all."

"Well, well, with time, every one gets into his right place. In the city Hall, I may yet put my chair beside his, Van Gaasbeeck."

"So say I, Sluyter, and for the present it is all well as it is."

This little envious fret of his neighbor lost itself outside Joris Van Heemskirk's home. Within it, all was love and content. Madam Van Heemskirk was a little woman, with clear-cut features, and brown hair drawn backward under a cap of lace very stiffly starched. Her tight-fitting dress of blue taffeta was open in front, and looped up behind in order to show an elaborately quilted petticoat of light blue camblet. Her white wool stockings were clocked with blue, her high-heeled shoes cut very low, and clasped with small silver buckles. From her trim cap to her trig shoes she was a pleasant and comfortable picture of a happy, domestic woman; smiling, peaceful, and easy to live with.

When the last duty of the day was finished, she let her bunch of keys fall with a satisfactory "all done" jingle, that made her Joris look at her with a smile. Then he asked: "Where is Joanna and the little one? And Bram should be home ere this."

"I am not uneasy, Joris. They were to drink a dish of tea with Madam Semple, and Bram promised to go for them. And, see, they are coming; but Bram is not with them, only the elder."

Elder Alexander Semple was a great man in his sphere. He had a reputation both for riches and godliness and was scarcely more respected in the market-place than he was in the Middle Kirk. And there was an old tie between the Semples and the Van Heemskirks—a tie going back to the days when the Scotch Covenanters and the Netherland Confessors clasped hands as brothers in their "churches under the cross." Then one of the Semples had fled for life from Scotland to Holland, and been sheltered in the house of a Van Heemskirk; and from generation to generation the friendship had been continued. So there was much real kindness and very little ceremony between the families, and the elder met his friend Joris with a pleasant "good evening," and sat down in front of the blazing logs.

Joanna tied on her white apron, and, at a word from her mother, began to take from the cupboards various Dutch dainties, and East Indian jars of fruits and sweetmeats, and a case of crystal bottles, and some fine lemons. She was a fair, rosy girl, with a kind, cheerful face, a pleasant voice, and a smile that was at once innocent and bright. Her fine light hair was rolled high and backward; and no one could have imagined a dress more suitable to her than the trig dark bodice, the quilted skirt, and the white apron she wore.

Her father and mother watched her with a loving satisfaction, and Elder Semple was quite sensible of Joanna's presence, and of what she was doing.

At this point Katherine Van Heemskirk came into the room, and the elder slightly moved his chair and said, "Come awa', my bonnie lassie, and let us hae a look at you." And Katherine laughingly pushed a stool towards the fire, and sat down between the two men on the hearthstone. She was the daintiest little Dutch maiden that ever latched a shoe—very diminutive, with a complexion like a sea-shell, great blue eyes, and such a quantity of pale yellow hair that it made light of its ribbon snood, and rippled over her brow and slender white neck in bewildering curls.

Long before supper was over, Madam Van Heemskirk had discovered that this night Elder Semple had a special reason for his call, and when the meal was finished, and the girls gone to their room, she was not astonished to hear him say, "Joris, let us light another pipe. I hae something to speak anent—Sit still, guidewife, we shall want your word on the matter."

"On what matter, elder?"

"Anent a marriage between my son Neil and your daughter Katherine."

The words fell with a sharp distinctness, not unkindly, but as if they were more than common words. They were followed by a marked silence, a silence which in no way disturbed Semple. He knew his friends well, and therefore he expected it.

Joris at last said slowly, "For Katherine the marriage would be good, and Lysbet and I would like it. However, we will think a little about it; there is time, and to spare. One should not run on a new road. Say what you think, Lysbet."

"Neil is to my mind, when the time comes. But yet the child knows not perfectly her Heidelberg. And there is more; she must learn to manage a house of her own. So in time, I say, it would be a good thing. We have been long good friends."

"We hae been friends for four generations, and we may safely tie the knot tighter now. The land between this place and my place, on the riverside, is your land, Joris. Give it to Katherine, and I will build the young things a house; and the furnishing and plenishing we'll share between us."

"There is more to a wedding than house and land, elder. A young girl should be wooed before she is married. You know how it is; and Katherine, the little one, she thinks not of such a thing as love and marriage."

"Wha kens what thoughts are under curly locks at seventeen? You'll hae noticed, madam, that Katherine has come mair often than ordinar' to Semple House lately?"

"That is so. It was because of Col. Gordon's wife, who likes Katherine. She is teaching her a new stitch in her crewel-work."

"Hum—m—m! Mistress Gordon has likewise a nephew, a vera handsome lad. I hae seen that he takes a deal o' interest in the crewel-stitch likewise. And Neil has seen it too—for Neil has set his heart on Katherine—and this afternoon there was a look passed between the young men I dinna like. We'll be haeing a challenge, and twa fools playing at murder, next."

"I am glad you spoke, elder. Thank you. I'll turn your words over in my heart." But Van Heemskirk was under a certain constraint; he was beginning to understand the situation, to see in what danger his darling might be. He was apparently calm; but an angry fire was gathering in his eyes, and stern lines settling about the lower part of his face.

"My Lysbet is the finest lady in the whole land. Let her daughters walk in her steps. That is what I want. Now, there is enough, and also there is some one coming."

"It will be Neil and Bram"; and, as the words were spoken, the young men entered.

"Again you are late, Bram"; and the father looked curiously in his son's face. It was like looking back upon his own youth; for Bram Van Heemskirk had all the physical traits of his father—his great size, his commanding presence and winning address, his large eyes, his deep, sonorous voice and slow speech.

With the advent of Bram and Neil, the consultation ended. The elder, grumbling at the chill and mist, wrapped himself in his plaid, and leaning on his son's arm, cautiously picked his way home by the light of a lantern. Van Heemskirk put aside his pipe, nodded gravely to his son, and went thoughtfully upstairs.

In his own room he sat down on a big oak chest; and, as he thought, his wrath slowly gathered. Semple knew that gay young English officers were coming and going about his house, and he had not told him until he feared they would interfere with his own plans for keeping Neil near to him. He remembered that Semple had spoken with touching emphasis of his longing to keep his last son near home; but must he give up his darling Katherine to further this plan?

"I like not it," he muttered. "God for the Dutchman made the Dutchwoman. That is the right way; but I will not make angry myself for so much of passion, so much of nothing at all to the purpose. That is the truth. Always I have found it so."

Then Lysbet, having finished her second locking up, entered the room. She came in as one wearied and troubled, and said with a sigh, as she untied her apron:

"Joris, the elder's words have made trouble in my heart. What did the man mean?"

"Who can tell? What a man says, we know; but only God understands what he means. But I will say this, Lysbet, and it is what I mean: If Semple has led my daughter into the way of temptation, then, for all that is past and gone, we shall be unfriends."

"Give yourself no kommer on that matter, Joris. Hove not some of our best maidens married into the English set? There is no harm, I think, in a girl taking a few steps up when she puts on the wedding ring."

'Mean you that our little daughter should marry some English good-for-nothing? Look, then, I would rather see her white and cold in the dead-chamber. I will have no Englishman among the Van Heemskirks. There, let us sleep. To-night I will speak no more."

But madam could not sleep. She was quite sensible that she had tacitly encouraged Katherine's visits to Semple House, even after she understood that Capt. Hyde and other fashionable and notable persons were frequent visitors there. Lysbet Van Heemskirk saw no reason why her younger children should not move with the current, when it might set them among the growing aristocracy of the New World.

She tried to recall Katherine's demeanor and words during the past day, and she could find no cause for alarm in them. She could not remember anything at all which ought to make her uneasy; and what Lysbet did not see or hear, she could not imagine.

Yet the past ten hours had really been full of danger to the young girl. Early in the afternoon, some hours before Joanna was ready to go, Katherine was dressed for her visit to Semple House. It stood, like Van Heemskirk's, at the head of a garden sloping to the river; and there was a good deal of pleasant rivalry about these gardens, both proprietors having impressed their own individuality upon their pleasure grounds.

The space between the two houses was an enclosed meadow; and this afternoon, the grass being warm and dry and full of wild flowers, Katherine followed the narrow footpath through it, and entered the Semple garden by the small side gate. Near this gate was a stone dairy, sunk below the level of the ground—a deliciously cool, clean spot even in the hottest weather. Passing it, she saw that the door was open, and Madam Semple was busy among its large, shallow, pewter, cream-dishes. She was beating some rich curd with eggs and currants and spices; and Katherine, with a sympathetic smile, asked delightedly:

"Cheesecakes, madam?"

"Just cheesecakes, dearie."

"Oh, I am glad! Let me fill some of these pretty little patty-pans."

"I'll do naething o' the kind, Katherine. You'd be spoiling the bonnie silk dress you hae put on. Go to the house and sit wi' Mistress Gordon. She was asking for you no' an hour ago. And, Katherine, my bonnie lassie, dinna gie a thought to one word that black-eyed nephew o' hers may say to you. He's here the day and gane to-morrow, and the lasses that heed him will get sair hearts to themsel's."

The bright young face shadowed, and a sudden fear came into Madam Semple's heart as she watched the girl turn thoughtfully and slowly away into the house.

COLORED INKS IN TATTOOING.

English Expert Now Does Work in Many Colors.

In an article on the subject of tattooing, in Pearson's, the marvelous results obtained by an English expert are thus described:

"Until comparatively recently only two colors, indigo blue (or India ink black) and red were used in tattooing, but a Japanese increased the number by discovering a permanent brown, and Sutherland Macdonald has now added four more to the list, so that he works with no fewer than seven colors altogether. The difficulty has been to get a color that will hold; any color can be pricked into the human skin, but those made from minerals will all set up, sooner or later, a state of inflammation of the skin and the color will be forced out again, leaving only an ugly scar to mark the spot.

"But by careful experiments on his own body, experiments which have been going on for years now, he has been able to produce a very beautiful green, a permanent ultramarine blue a lavender, and, most difficult of all, a rich yellow, all not only perfectly harmless to the most delicate skin, but colors that will hold, and by blending some of these together he is able to produce brilliant effects, which to the uninitiated would appear to be altogether impossible.

"Tattooing in so many colors, with all their graduations of shading, is a lengthy process—Mr. Macdonald will spend a matter of sixty or seventy hours in completing a design to cover a man's chest—not at a stretch, of course, but working two or three hours a day for twenty or thirty days."

MONUMENT DID NOT SUFFER

Washington Memorial Came Well Through Severe Ordeal.

United States Attorney General Knox is a man much below the medium in stature, says the New York Times. One day he met a Pittsburg crony who was in Washington doing the sights.

"Well, sir, do you know," remarked the general, "that as long as I have lived in Washington I have had so little time to get about that I never visited the monument until last week."

"Did you go to the top?"

"Oh, no. I contented myself with walking about the grounds and standing at the base and having my photograph taken—and a very good picture it was."

"How did the monument bear the contrast?" jokingly inquired the friend.

"Well, it didn't look nearly as insignificant as you might imagine."

Out of the Game.

Samson, awaking to find himself shorn of his locks, wept bitterly.

"Why so sad?" asked Delilah. "Indeed, I always said you would look better with your hair short."

"Oh, woman, woman!" moaned Samson. "Don't you know that this simply shatters all my hopes of ever being full-back for the Beersheba University eleven?"

Then at last came upon the woman the full realization of the evil she had wrought.

ROOSEVELT ASKED TO AR BITRATE

Reply of Powers to Suggestion That Trouble Be Referrd to the Hague Tribunal.

A PECULIAR SITUATION

Were President to Act as Arbitrator His Position Would Be Delicate—Does Not Want Job—He Might Accept if No Other Way to Peace Could Be Found.

President Roosevelt has proposed to the allied powers that the Venezuelan dispute be submitted to the arbitration of the Hague tribunal. The powers have replied with a counter proposition that President Roosevelt himself arbitrate the issues.

These were the developments Saturday in the Venezuelan matter, and they seem to justify the prediction made in these dispatches that the critical point has been passed. President Roosevelt does not wish to act as arbitrator in the dispute, for as it is felt here he would be at once judge, jury and constable and would be under the moral obligation to execute his own judgment. The president feels that a reference to the Hague tribunal would vastly strengthen the cause of arbitration.

Still, rather than let the present dispute proceed to extremes, it is probable that the president will reluctantly assume the duties of abitrator. It is fully realized that any decision rendered by him in that capacity would be sure to bring him the emnity of one or the other of the parties to the controversy, and the fact was pointed out to the president early in the week by a leading senator who had been called into consultation. Nevertheless, to prevent bloodshed and the destruction of property and interference with great commercial interests that would result in loss it is believed that the president would assume the charge, providing his own view cannot prevail.

An important fact developed Saturday is that the punative measures about to be instituted, and in fact now in force in some degree will not be suspended by the allies until a definite agreement is reached as to the arbitration.

Venezuela also has been told through Minister Bowen that the president would welcome the suggestion of the dispute to the Hague tribunal. While no direct reply has been received, it is not doubted that the reply will be favorable if the other parties consented to such reference.

If an agreement is reached on arbitration the procedure would be for Minister Bowen, representing Venezuela as a plenipotentiary, to sign with the representatives of the allies a protocol stating that the case is to be submitted to arbitration; that Venezuela admits the right of diplomatic intervention in behalf of a claimant, a principle she has always resisted and that the details of the arbitration shall be arranged in a formal treaty which she pledges herself to sign. This treaty will provide in the greatest detail for the security of foreign interests against vexations and extortionate interference on the part of the Venezuelan government hereafter and will insure the administration of exact justice in the settlement of claims, and especially will it relieve foreign residents of Venezuela from forced loans and persecution in times of revolution.

The status of the arbitration negotiations at the close of the official day as disclosed at the state department was that the powers were waiting for an answer from the president to their proposal that he himself undertake to arbitrate the Venezuelan difficulty.

The president's answer can only be guessed at, for the officials decline to express any opinon of their own. However, it is believed, to be a safe prediction that he will repeat his suggestion that the case be submitted to The Hague tribunal, adding to the argument he has already produced the fact the United States having claims of its own against Venezuela to the amount of $100,000, it is a party in interest, and it would be unfair to put the president in the position of having to arbitrate his own claim. For their part, the powers bring against The Hague proposition the argument that President Castro would feel lightly bound by any decision by that tribunal, but would be certain to heed a judgment rendered by President Roosevelt.

It is said at the state dearment that no matter how these wo propositions are disposed of, there will be no backward step, and that an agreement of some kind which will bring about a peaceable settlement of the Venezuelan troubles will result from the present negotiations.

Of course, if the president should accept the charge, which he would only do as a last resort, it is understood that the actual burdensome work of arbitrating work of arbitrating the claims would not be undertaken by him personally, but probably would be, as is customary in such cases, confided to one of the thoroughly efficient and trained assistant secretaries of the department.

EACH GETS FIVE YEARS.

Five More Members of St. Louis House of Delegates Sentenced.

St. Louis, Dec. 20.—The joint trial of five former members of the house of delegates, which began Tuesday ended last night in a verdict of five years for each man in the penitentiary. The defendants, John A. Sheridan, Charles J. Denny, Charles Gutke, Edmund Bersch and T. E. Albright, were convicted on charges of bribery in connection with the passage of the suburban street car bill to accomplish which, it was charged, $75,000 had been placed on deposit to be used as required. The five defendants after hearing the verdict filed motions for a new trial and each was released on bond.

These cases make fourteen bribery cases that have gone to trial as the result of the investigation of municipal corruption, and thirteen convictions have resulted, one case being acquitted on the order of the judge.

The testimony offered by the state in the joint case all tended to show a combination existed in the house of delegates to control legislation, by which means the members of this combine could secure money for their votes. Other former members of the house of delegates, notably John K. Murrell, were placed on the stand and testified for the state.

There are plenty of people who have become depressed and discouraged, because that dry, hacking cough hangs to them continually. They have taken much medicine, mostly of the advertised quack sort, nothing like Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea, the discovery of a then noted German physician 60 years ago. We do not say that this will cure a case where the lungs are badly diseased, for it will not, and up to this date there is nothing that will cure under these conditions; but on the other hand, if the lungs are not hard hit, the patient should take Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea, a cup full every night on going to bed, have it hot, drink slowly, then every other night rub the throat and top portion of the lungs with St Jacobs Oil, cover with oil silk, let it remain an hour, then remove. Eat good, plain, nourishing food, live in the open air as much as possible. By all means sleep as near out of doors as possible, that is, windows wide open, except in the very severe weather. Take a cold sponge bath every morning; then immediately rub the body vigorously with a coarse towel. Take Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Drops every other day according to directions. One can buy the three remedies for $1.25 of any reliable druggist. Begin the treatment at once and see how much better you will be almost within a week's time.

General "Phil" Sheridan was once riding down the line, when he saw an Irishman mounted on a mule which was kicking its legs rather freely. The mule finally got its hoof caught in the stirrup, when, in the excitement, the Irishman remarked: "Well, begorrah if you're goin' to get on, I'll get off!'

"Why will you humbug yourselves," says Mark Twain in Harper's Magazine, "with that foolish notion that no lie is a lie except a spoken one? What is the difference between lying with your eyes and lying with your mouth? There is none, and if you would reflect a moment you would see that it is so. There isn't a human being that doesn't tell a gross of lies every day of his life."

When Roscoe Conkling first began the practice of law in New York, he lost a most important murder case on which he had worked very hard, not only for the fee, which he needed badly, but for a reputation which he [illegible] to make. Despite his efforts, his client was hanged. Later, his efforts, his presented his bill to the later, when he they refused to pay the man's family that it was excessive, on the ground bill to Charles O'Conor, the great criminal lawyer, asking him to pass judgment as to the equity of his charges. O'Conor scanned the account very closely, and then, turning to Conkling, very gravely remarked: "Well, Conkling, taking into consideration the enormous amount of energy and time you have devoted to this case, the charges are reasonable; but see here, Conkling, don't you think the man could have been hanged for less money than that?"

A Problem Solved.

Cabbel, Kans., Dec. 22nd.—This part of Kansas has solved the great question, How can Kidney Troubles be cured, and as Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Diabetes and other ailments resulting from Diseased Kidneys are common to all parts of the country the news is of great interest.

The cure is Dodd's Kidney Pills. Hundreds of people will tell you this of their own experience. Take J. B. Cunningham for example. He had Kidney Trouble of long standing. He sought relief in vain. He had tried Doctors and Medicines of different kinds.

Finally he tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and he stopped right there. No one who tries Dodd's Kidney Pills for Kidney Complaint ever needs to look any further. Here is what Mr. Cunningham says:

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are all right for Kidney Trouble. I have used them and know for they have done me more good than anything I ever used."

You may not be able to learn anything new, but there are people in the world who can teach you something old.

I Did Not Feel That I Could Walk

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It is with thankfulness I write that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been of the greatest help to me. My work keeps me standing on my feet all day and the hours are long. Some months ago it didn't seem as though I could stand it. I would get so dreadfully tired and my back ached so I wanted to scream with the pain. When I got home at night I was so worn out I had to go right to bed, and I was terribly blue and downhearted. I was irregular and the flow was scanty, and I was pale and had no appetite. I told a girl friend who was taking your medicine how I felt, and she said I ought to take it too. So I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and commenced to take it. It helped me right off. After the first few doses menstruation started and was fuller than for some time. It seemed to lift a load off me. My back stopped aching and I felt brighter than I had for months. I took three bottles in all. Now I never have an ache or pain, and I go out after work and have a good time. I am regular and strong and am thankful to you for the change.

"I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I hear of a girl suffering, for I know how hard it is to work when you feel so sick."—MISS MAMIE KEIRNS, 553 9th Ave., New York City.

Women should not fail to profit by the experiences of these women; just as surely as they were cured of the troubles enumerated in their letters, just so certainly will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure others who suffer from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, irregular and painful menstruation, nervous excitability, and nervous prostration. Remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; refuse to accept anything else in its place.

Miss Amanda T. Petterson, Box 131, Atwater, Minn., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM.—I hope that you will publish this testimonial so that it may reach others and let them know about your wonderful medicine.

"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was troubled with [illegible] kind of fainting spells. The blood [illegible] the worst kind; my head, was very nervous and would rush to it, had dark circles around eyes. always felt tired, [illegible] taken several bottles of Lydia E. THE CHILDREN ENJOY Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make, comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts, should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is—Syrup of Figs—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. The genuine article may be bought anywhere of all reliable druggists at fifty cents per bottle. Please to remember, the full name of the Company—CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.—is printed on the front of every package. In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only.

Happily Wed

In last week's issue we mentioned the marriage of Mr. C. H. Lenz, and Miss Lydia Sampson. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's Mr. and Mrs. L. Sampson at 2:00 and was performsd by Rev. Koerner. A large number of invited guests witnessed this ceremony. Immediately after the ceremony a delicious repast was served.

The groom is well known to most of our people and is a young man of exemplary habits. He for years lived with his parents in Germantown where he has the confidence and good-will of all. He is at present engaged in farming in Polk county, Minnesota. He has by steady industries habits accumulated enough of this world's goods to make for himself and estimable wife a cosy home. His bride is also well known here having resided here the greater share of her life. She is the oldest daughter of Louis Sampson one of this county's most prosperous tillers of the soil, and one of German township's best citizens. She is universally loved and respected for her true womanhood. We very much regret that these young people do not contemplate making this place their future home. but wish them success in their Minnesota home. Both these young people come from good families and their married life will undoubtedly be a happy one.

The TIMES extends congratulations May their troubles by few.
